CATHOLICS RIP RUSSIANS; ASK A SURE PEACE

Bishops Draft Plea and Protest

BY WALTER TROHAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17—The Roman Catholic hierarchy of the United States tonight expressed disappointment with the pattern of the peace in a statement calling for democratic rather than totalitarian solution of the problems of the world and predicting catastrophic atomic war is inevitable if the ideals of the Atlantic charter are not followed.

Archbishop Stritch

The statement denounced Russia for giving lip service to democracy, but actually following totalitarian practices. It protested against betrayal of Poland, the absorption of the Baltic countries by Russia, "indifference" to the plight of the people of Italy, and the policy of "vengeance" in force against Germany, Austria, and Hungary.

At the same time the statement called for holding fast to America's free institutions and for holding resolute against "the few amongst us who are trying to sabotage them."

"Between War and Peace"

The statement, entitled "Between War and Peace," was adopted at the close of the annual meeting of more than 100 Catholic bishops. It was signed by 10 archbishops and bishops, who make up the administrative board of the National Catholic Welfare conference.

Archbishop Stritch of Chicago is chairman of the board. Other members are: John Gregory Murray, archbishop of St. Paul; Francis J. Spellman, archbishop of New York; John Mark Gannon, bishop of Erie; John J. Mitty, archbishop of San Francisco; Joseph F. Rummel, archbishop of New Orleans; Richard J. Cushing, archbishop of Boston; James H. Ryan, archbishop of Omaha; John F. Noll, bishop of Fort Wayne, and Karl J. Alter, bishop of Toledo.

"Ideal of Peace"

"The war is over but there is no peace in the world," the statement opened. "In the Atlantic Charter we were given the broad outline of the peace for which we fought and bled and, at an incalculable price, won a great martial victory. It was that ideal of peace which sustained us thru the war, which inspired the heroic defense of liberty by millions driven underground in enslaved countries. Are we going to give up this ideal of peace? If, under the pretext of a fake realism, we do so, then we shall stand face to face with the awful catastrophe of atomic war.

"Since the Moscow conference of 1943, the United States, Great Britain, and Russia have undertaken

Coliseum Puts On Glad Rags for Veterans

Today's Program

1:30 p. m.—Call to Order: Edward N. Scheiberling (N. Y.), national commander.

1:50 p. m.—Addresses of Welcome: Dwight H. Green, governor of Illinois; Edward J. Kelly, mayor of Chicago; Arthur E. Canty, department commander of Illinois (1944-'45); Philip Collins, chairman, American Legion Convention Bureau committee of Chicago.

2:45 p. m.—Special Memorial and Religous Services—Honoring the nation's war dead of World Wars I. and II. (This section of program to be provided by Chairman Milton Myers at Chicago.)

4:30 p. m.—Address: Adm. Ernest J. King, commander in chief, United States fleet.

BY THOMAS MORROW

The Coliseum, apparently feeling its 45 years, waited yesterday with an air of tired gayety, for the opening this afternoon of the 27th annual national convention of the American Legion.

Flags and bunting hid the scars inflicted by past performing bears and wrestlers, marathon dancers, and thousands of orators who have pelted the tortured arena with millions of words.

Two Generals to Attend

This meeting, laden with more celebrities than any convention since Kansas City in 1921, will hear Generals Eisenhower and Doolittle, Admirals Nimitz and King, Presidents Green, AFL, and Murray, CIO, and a host of other dignitaries. It will greet at least 62 winners of the nation's highest military honor—the congressional medal of honor—and doubtlessly be beset by the usual characters who wear odd garments, never missed a convention, or go around looking like Abraham Lincoln.

Around the loop, where delegates asked each other anxiously about hotel rooms, the talk was that John Stelle, former Illinois governor, will be the next national commander. As the gathering Legionnaires held reunions, committee members met in hotel rooms and began to wade thru 617 submitted resolutions in search of the policy for 1946.

Study Military Training

The national defense committee went on record favoring a unified military command with the details to be worked out later. It also advocated universal military training with each boy to receive basic training of four months. Following this, the report held, the boy should be given eight months' advanced military or scientific training or given the choice of joining the national guard, army or navy, or entering college and participating in the advanced reserve officers' training corps program.

A slight rift developed in the labor relations committee where a labor representative urged that the Legion charter labor posts as such. He pointed out that 1½ million CIO men are coming back from World War II., that there is a suspicion that the Legion stand has been reactionary.

Labor Group Within Legion

An organization named the National Conference of Union Labor Legionnaires, Inc., claiming to represent 25,000 Legion members—altho Legion officials say they do not recognize organizations within the organization—announced it would oppose the Legion stand on seniority rights of veterans.

It was pointed out, however, that unless some one had been thoughtful enough to drop a resolution in the basket, the matter will never reach the convention floor. Also disclosed was the fact that a resolution, which is headed for the convention floor, asks that no charters be granted to special groups. This would bar the labor posts.

Indications were that the Legion will ignore the demand of National Commander Edward N. Scheiberling that the Legion participate more actively in politics. Feeling is said to be that the Legion has done pretty well staying out of political races—so why change?

In Legion headquarters at the Palmer House officials bit their fingernails and waited to see how many nonbusiness visitors will descend on a Chicago now tortured for hotel space. Ten thousand rooms were needed for delegates to the convention, the auxiliaries, and distinguished visitors, and no one seemed to be sure how many hotel rooms the Legion had reserved.

To date the pre-convention doings have been singularly free from pranksters with or without the aid of relaxing fluid. Donald G. Glasscoff, national adjutant, pointed out that most of the early arrivals have been busy in committee meetings.

PEACE MAKERS IN JAVA FAIL TO REACH ACCORD

Say Indonese Cry: 'War to Death'

BATAVIA, Java, Nov. 17 (AP)—The first conference of Dutch, Indonesian, and British leaders ended late tonight without a formula for peace in Java. The official Dutch news agency Aneta said Indonesian extremists had called for a war to the death against the British.

Aneta quoted the Nationalist controled Jogjakarta radio as declaring: "This is the last night of peace. Tomorrow we shall start and either kill the British or drive them from Java."

Thousands of armed Indonesians were reported massed in Jogjakarta, central Java stronghold of youthful Nationalists.

Reach No Decision

A bulletin issued just before midnight after the 3¾ hour conference of natives, British, and Dutch in Batavia said no decisions were reached because "the Indonesian leaders were not at present in a position to accept the responsibility of making definite replies to any of the questions discussed."

"Further meetings may be expected to take place in five days' time," the bulletin said.

Chief figures in the meeting were Premier Sutan Sjahrir of the unrecognized Indonesian republic, described as a moderate, Acting Gov. Gen. Hubertus J. Van Mook, and Lt. Gen. Philip Christison, British commander in the Dutch East Indies.

The conference, arranged by Christison and presided over by him, was a formal affair, with each of the leaders flanked by a staff of advisers.

Fight in Soerabaja

Sjahrir was attended by his right-hand man, Minister of Information Amir Sjarifuddin, and two other cabinet members, while Van Mook had with him several high officials of the Indies government and a Netherlands government emissary just arrived from The Hague, F. M. Baron van Asbeck. The British group included M. E. Denning, foreign office adviser to the Southeast Asia command, and Henry Walsh, foreign office adviser to Christison.

Meanwhile, bitter fighting continued in Soerabaja and sporadic disorders were reported in other parts of Java.

The British command reported a slow expansion of three bridgeheads its forces had won across the Semanpir canal, which formerly constituted the British eastern perimeter in Soerabaja. Indonesian opposition generally was reported decreasing in the big naval base.

Battle in Cemetery

At one point, said a Soerabaja dispatch, British and Indonesians were fighting from tombstone to tombstone thru a Chinese cemetery. The dispatch also said British tanks blasted frate sheds in the railroad yards where the Indonesians were strongly entrenched. Several jeep loads of machine guns were reported captured by the British.

The British reported the Indonesians were setting fire to warehouses and supply stores in Soerabaja, and said they suddenly appeared to have withdrawn from some areas where they previously had offered stubborn resistance. The main opposition, they said, was confined to sniper fire and some mortar fire.

The Indonesians appealed over the radio for officials of the local native government, who fled the British attack, to return to Soerabaja as an inspiration to Indonesian troops. Other broadcasts called upon Nationalists in other parts of Java to send food and troop reinforcements to the naval base, and said tanks and artillery were en route to Soerabaja from Jogjakarta.

The British said their casualties in the first five days of the week old battle at Soerabaja were 14 killed and 59 wounded, bringing total British casualties in Java to 405 killed, wounded, and missing.

Aussies Welcome British—If They Talk Australian

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 17 [Reuters]—Australia has no objection to group settlement of British immigrants, but all newcomers must learn to speak Australian, Arthur Caldwell, minister of immigration, said today. Establishment of an English community settlement in Australia has been suggested.

33d Vets See 500 Girls and Become Timid

BY LESLIE MONYPENNY

The fighting heroes who wear the golden cross and black patch of Illinois' 33d division licked the Japs from New Guinea to Lingayen Gulf but turned out to be very shy heroes indeed at a dance in their honor at Fort Sheridan last night.

The men, who arrived at the fort on two trains yesterday, will leave service today. The first group will be discharged at 1:30 p. m. and the last man will be out at 9:30 tonight. The first man to complete the discharge process today will be Corp. Emil A. Adams Jr., 23, 820 E. 47th pl., who was inducted into the army with the national guard in 1941.

Timid as They Meet Girls

The 1,100 high point men met about 500 girls at the dance last night. The girls said they were the most timid veterans they had danced with in the big dance hall, newly converted from a riding academy.

Many of the Chicagolanders stood around in groups and looked at the girls as tho they were diamonds in a window.

"I don't know if I still know how to dance," one soldier with several battle stars said. "Besides, these combat boots weren't made to dance in and anyway they've got composition soles."

Another soldier, who had shaved and showered and was as shiny as a new pin, pleaded that he was afraid to put his arm around an American girl.

"I haven't even seen an American girl civilian for three years and now you expect me to go up to one and actually put my arm around her," he said. "I wouldn't know what to say."

They Lose Their Courage

Two girls started to buy cokes at the snack bar. Two 33d division boys walked up and took over. They paid for the cokes. They opened them. And then their courage fled. They stammered, "Excuse us," blushed, and went away.

Many of the families of the men who had come to meet them at the fort's big reception center were spectators at the dance.

Gov. Green, who attended the party and dance with Mayor Kelly, praised the division's work. "Your homecoming will make this a very happy Thanksgiving in hundreds of homes," the governor said. "I don't believe that I am being unduly sentimental when I say that there will be many tears of rejoice shed over your safe return."

The army forgot the rules yesterday and literally held out its arms when the 1,100 men came home for discharge.

Two army bands were thumping out the Illinois "Loyalty" song when the second train, with nearly 600 men, pulled into the discharge center at 1 p. m. The army didn't waste any time. Brig. Gen. John P. Pierce, commanding officer of the post, gave an order and a loud speaker blared "Detrain!" even while the train was stopping. An earlier train had brought in 526 men.

A Good Time for Every One

The army had told families they could come down to the train to meet their soldiers. Several hundred persons did. Between the kissing and the doughnut eating and the rushing for telephones, every one had a good time.

There were reunions of every sort imaginable. Lots of soldiers had double armfuls—mother in one arm and wife or sweetheart in the other. Most of the mothers were crying. Some of the veterans cried a little, too. They were home and it wasn't any one's business how they reacted.

Army Shows It Has Heart

Most of the mothers and wives who came to greet their sons and husbands hadn't seen them since they went as a group to Camp Forrest, Tenn., in 1941, while the men were in training.

Even final pay showed the army had a heart If a man hadn't enough pay coming to make up his share of the family allotment, the army made up the difference and called it even.

A typical young wife was Mrs. Kathleen Glees, 26, of 3821 N. Hermitage av., who yelled, "I think I'm going to faint," when she saw her husband, Sgt. Robert, 27, for the first time in almost three years.

DIAMONDS SELL LIKE PEANUTS AS YANKS PUT IN AT CAPETOWN

CAPETOWN, Union of South Africa, Nov. 17 (AP)—The United States fleet is in today, and its men are buying engagement rings and loose diamonds like peanuts. More than 6,000 officers and men from two United States battleships and six destroyers are "going crazy" over Capetown's vast assortment of gems, dealers said. They also are stocking up on leopard skin bags, curios, and other souvenirs.

The highest price reported paid by an American has been $3,200 for a white diamond weighing four and a half carats. Nine out of 10 men are buying engagement rings, the jewelers said, and many are purchasing loose stones as investments.

The battleships, the California and the Tennessee, and the destroyers, the Lardner, Thorn, Nelson, Lansdowne, Stevenson, and Stockton, put in here for the week-end.

15 EX-COMBAT SHIPS TO ASSIST IN MOVING GIs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 17—A total of 145,724 American soldiers will be carried home over the North Atlantic by 15 former navy combat ships, including the carrier Enterprise, Adm. H. Kent Hewitt, commander of United States naval forces in Europe, announced today.

The program will be carried out by next Feb. 1 and will supplement the army's transport service. There are still a million and a half American troops in Europe.

Hewitt said one of the main difficulties in getting the boys home was the task of reconverting combat vessels into troop transports. The reconversion job has to include elaborate heating systems to keep the men warm as well as providing food and sanitary facilities, he said.

Hewitt disclosed that six American cargo ships had struck mines within the last few months in Mediterranean waters and European harbors.

Eisenhower's Wife Taken to a Hospital

Boone, Ia., Nov. 17 (AP)—Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, wife of the general, was taken in an ambulance to Boone County hospital at 9 o'clock tonight two hours after arriving here with her husband for a family reunion.

Mrs. Eisenhower

Dr. A. B. Deering, Boone physician, said "we fear she is coming down with pneumonia." Later he said "her present condition is not serious." He said an X-ray would be taken tomorrow.

Gen. Eisenhower followed the ambulance to the hospital where two nurses were caring for her.

Mrs. Eisenhower appeared pale as she left the private railroad car in which she and the general arrived here for a visit at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Joel C. Carlson.

Physician Called

Dr. Deering was called a short time later to the Carlson home and examined her there.

The general followed as his wife was carried from the home. He confirmed his wife was ill but said, "I don't want to alarm her friends."

The general and Mrs. Eisenhower came here to attend a family gathering celebrating tomorrow the 75th birthday anniversary of Mrs. Eisenhower's father, John S. Doud of Denver, who came her for the event.

For the Eisenhowers the return to Boone was almost like coming home. Mrs. Eisenhower was born here tho her parents moved to Denver when she was a small girl.

The general's aide, Lt. Col. James Stack, said Mrs. Eisenhower contracted a cold on the train last night between Washington and Chicago and spent most of today in bed.

PAUSED IN CHICAGO

Gen. and Mrs. Eisenhower paused briefly in Chicago yesterday while their special car, attached to the Pennsylvania railroad's Southland, was switched to a westbound train. The Eisenhowers breakfasted here with Mr. and Mrs. Hunter Gary of Reno, Nev., close friends, and a military physician prescribed for Mrs. Eisenhower's cold. Gen. Eisenhower is expected here Tuesday to address the American Legion convention.

Four Carrying Machine Guns Take $6,700

Four masked men carrying submachine guns, accompanied by a fifth man who drove their car, held up two Railway Express agency employes on a platform at the Grand Central frate depot last night and carried off a 100 pound pony safe containing $6,700 in express funds and $3,000 in checks.

The safe, consigned to the express company's Chicago office by its agent at Oelwein, Ia., had just been taken from an express car by A. H. Walters, 13 S. Central Park av., special agent for the company, and placed on an electric baggage truck operated by Amleto Landi, 2346 Thomas st., another express company employe.

Two Leap on Truck

The two men started along the platform, built along what would be an extension of Franklin st., toward an express truck parked at what would be Polk st. About midway down the platform, two men carrying machine guns jumped on the baggage truck. One of them told Walters, "This is a stickup."

Walters told police that at first he thought the men were carrying toy guns, until one of them thrust the muzzle of his weapon against Walters' head. The other bandit then took Walters' .32 caliber revolver from its holster, and forced Landi to leave the platform and drive the baggage truck across two tracks to a point where the bandit car was parked.

Safe Placed in Car

Two men, both carrying submachine guns, stood by the car. A fifth man was at the wheel. Two of the bandits lifted the safe, still sealed, from the baggage truck and placed it in their car, after which all of the men jumped into the car and drove off.

Thirty railroad employes were unloading frate on the other side of a string of box cars along the platform, but were prevented, by the cars, from seeing the holdup.

Holdup on Michigan av.

While scores of shoppers thronged the salesrooms of Jerrems clothing store, 324 S. Michigan av., yesterday, four armed Negro bandits entered the rear room and robbed the porter, Conrad Nolasco, 26, 5618 S. Wabash av., of $400 and three other employes of $700 and $500 in jewelry.

Nolasco told police that he had the $400 in his possession because his father had left town and had left the money with him to deposit in a bank. He said he saw the men with two others in an automobile parked in the alley behind the store when he came in from lunch.

After robbing the employes, two of them women bookkeepers, Mrs. Helen Henaghan and Miss Rose Fiene, the robbers escaped down the alley. No patrons in the store were molested.

U. S. DECORATES GIRL GUERRILLA WHO AIDED YANK

SHANGHAI, China, Nov. 17 (AP)—A Chinese girl guerrilla who assisted in the escape of an American pilot downed in Japanese held territory last April was decorated for bravery today by Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commanding army air forces in China.

The war department emblem for meritorious service was pinned on Miss Ho Jo-nei, who is recovering from Japanese tortures inflicted on her in the notorious Bridge house here.

The pilot she rescued, Lt. Col. Clyde D. Slocumb, Doerun, Ga., is commanding the 75th fighter squadron at Hangchow.

SEIZED GOLD CLEW TO DUCE'S MISSING RICHES

VICENZA, Italy, Nov. 17 (AP)—The mystery of Mussolini's missing treasure was believed to have been partly solved today. Police said they had arrested two men who were hunting a purchaser for 132 pounds of gold ingots. The police said they were convinced the gold was part of Mussolini's private fortune. They recalled published reports that a fortune, supposedly captured when the Partisans trapped Mussolini near Dongo last spring, disappeared.

JAPAN'S PEARL HARBOR ORDER: FLEE IF SIGHTED!

'Climb Mt. Niitaka' Signal to Attack

BY WILLARD EDWARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17—Out of the darkness on the night of Dec. 6, 1941, crackled a radio code message to a powerful Japanese task force plunging thru the waters of the Pacific some 800 miles north of Pearl Harbor.

"Climb Mount Niitaka" were the three words which spelled bloody disaster and a smashed American fleet at dawn the next morning.

Thus, Rear Adm. T. B. Inglis told the congressional Pearl Harbor investigating committee today, was the final decision given by the Japs for the attack on our Pacific outpost. Inglis said he had received this dramatic bit of testimony only the night before from American headquarters in Tokyo.

Japs Fearful of Failure

The surprise attack had been conceived in January, 1941, and the operational plan reached fruition by gradual stages. The date of Dec. 8, Jap time [Dec. 7 Hawaii time], had been tentatively selected Nov. 7 and confirmed Dec. 2. The attacking fleet had left Hitokappu bay Nov. 26 for the rendezvous north of Oahu.

But the Japs were fearful of failure until the last night, the committee was told. Their operational plan called for turning back of the fleet if detected by plane or ship. The battle orders also took into account the possibility of "an amicable settlement prior to the commencement of hostile action," in which case all forces were to return to their bases.

Success Beyond Expectation

Favored by good weather, unseen by hostile craft, without even a false alarm to disturb its progress, the Jap fleet was north of Oahu on the eve of the attack before the fatal "Mount Niitaka" message was sent from Japanese naval headquarters.

The success of the attack was beyond the wildest expectations of the Japanese high command, Inglis reported.

The Japs had expected to lose one-third of the participating units, which included two battleships, two heavy cruisers, six aircraft carriers, 16 destroyers, four light cruisers, 20 first class submarines, and five midget submarines. The carriers launched 361 planes in three waves for the attack.

Actual Jap losses were 27 planes and the five midget submarines.

The official Jap estimate of the American losses in warships was "highly conservative," the committee was told, whereas its estimate of damage to United States aircraft was "grossly exaggerated."

Discarded Landing Plan

The account, given to the committee by Adm. Inglis, chief of naval intelligence, was based on captured enemy documents, interrogation of prisoners of war, and statements by former members of the Japanese naval high command since V-J day.

The Japs discarded plans for attempted landings after the attack, the report stated, because they believed the problem of speed and of supplies for a convoy of troops accompanying the task force would have made it unlikely that the initial attack could be accomplished without detection. They also decided it was impossible to make such a landing in less than a month after the opening of hostilities, apparently not expecting the complete devastation which they were to accomplish at the Pacific outpost.

Naval Battle Planned

If the main body of the United States fleet had not been in Pearl Harbor the Jap plans called for a reserve group of heavy naval units to sortie from the Inland sea of Japan to support the carrier striking force in a decisive engagement with the American fleet on the high seas. The Japanese assumed, the committee was told, that the combined strength of their fleet, numerically superior to that of the United States fleet, would be sufficient to bring them victory.

Testimony Called False

The colorful story of the operation was preceded by a flareup in the committee during which Sen. Brewster [R., Me.], accused Adm. Inglis of "unqualifiedly false" testi-

DE GAULLE SAYS HE'S WILLING TO RESUME RULE

Refuses to Give Reds Foreign Policy Control

BY ROBERT SAGE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Nov. 17—After another 24 hours of stalemate in France's political crisis, Gen. de Gaulle went on the air tonight and offered to make a final attempt to form a government if the national constituent assembly sees fit to reëlect him president of the provisional government when it meets on Monday.

On the other hand, if the assembly decides to replace him, De Gaulle declared, he will step aside "without the slightest bitterness."

In his six minute radio talk De Gaulle revealed the reason he flatly refused to give the Communists the ministry of the interior, foreign affairs, or war, in the new government, a rejection that brought on the crisis. He said that by giving the Reds control of the foreign policy levers, he would have risked starting France on an exclusive pro-Russian policy that would have jeopardized France's relations with the United States, whereas his whole foreign policy is to strike a balance between the western and eastern allies.

MRP Holds Out

After caucuses this afternoon by the three principal parties—Communists, Socialists, and Popular Republicans [MRP]—the situation stood like this:

COMMUNISTS—Willing to join Socialists in forming a government under a Communist.

SOCIALISTS—Willing to enter any government that will include all three parties.

MRP—Will vote for no one but De Gaulle.

In his radio address after the caucuses, De Gaulle said:

"I was willing to associate men from the party in question with the economic and social work of the government, and give them ministries in line with this, but I did not feel I could turn over to them any of the levers controling foreign policy: diplomacy, which expresses it; the army, which supports it; or the police, which covers it.

"Moment Is Grave"

"It happened, moreover, that this question coincided with a moment that is difficult in the relations between . . . two very great powers, and is particularly grave for the future of peace."

After the air was cleared tonight by De Gaulle's speech, there is a final chance of the three main parties patching up a compromise agreement tomorrow afternoon, when the so called delegation of 15, composed of five members of each party, meets again.

The hope is held that the three parties can reach an understanding tomorrow, and that the assembly can settle the litigious points on Monday, then elect De Gaulle to succeed himself.

Crowds Demand De Gaulle

While the political parties fiddled today, the public temper began to burn. Then man in the street is quite annoyed about the whole tragi-comedy, and the student demonstrations that started modestly last night became more numerous during the day.

A crowd of 2,000, principally students and war veterans, formed in the Champs Elysees at the end of the afternoon, and with flags flying started to march toward De Gaulle's home in Neuilly. By the time the procession had arrived, its numbers had risen to 4,000. They pushed their way thru the big metal gates and were heading toward the general's house when large police reinforcements arrived and dispersed the demonstrators.

During the afternoon 1,000 students marched thru the Latin quarter shouting, "De Gaulle in power."

Third Amphibious Force Homebound for Dispersal

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Nov. 17 (AP)—The navy's 3d amphibious force, which fought the Pacific war all the way from Guadalcanal to Tokyo, arrived today en route to the mainland where it will be dissolved. The 3d will leave later today for San Francisco, arriving there Nov. 22.

BIG BUSINESS IN U. S. 'HARD,' SAYS BRITAIN'S LASKI

Labor Chief Hits Own Press and Radio

BY JAMES SLOAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 17—American private enterprise and the British press, radio and movies were attacked today by Prof. Harold Laski, spokesman of the British Labor party.

Speaking at a coöperative societies rally on the "Future of Democracy in Britain," Laski condemned American big business as "hard, relentless, and grasping."

"I hope," he said, "that we shall never defer to that American mind but pursue our own way under the authority of our own people to goals that our people demand."

"Instruments of Propaganda"

Laski criticized the British press, radio and films as "instruments of propaganda in the hands of a very small section of the community who are able to shape the content of mind of great masses."

The press, he said, distorts facts. "I have not observed that the press of this country is out to discover the truth," he said. "It is the business of the press to discover facts but our press gives the answers before it discovers the facts. The press is a money making concern and a part of big business. People hardly know whether the opinions or convictions they hold are the result of advertising media. Most of the propaganda in this country is under the control of a few people who are able to shape the mind of the individual."

The policy of the British Broadcasting corporation [BBC], he said, seems to be to do nothing to offend important people.

Press Attacks Bretton Woods

Of continued fighting by British troops he said he would "find it a matter of intellectual disturbance and moral regret if any British troops were used to return, or facilitate the return, of the Indonesians to Dutch imperialism."

The Evening Standard, mouthpiece of the Conservative party, meanwhile, struck at American business for a different reason than Laski's. It said the British government as a condition of the present loan negotiations in Washington, D. C., agreed to recommend that parliament accept Bretton Woods.

COL. M'CORMICK LISTS HARMFUL BRITISH POLICIES

Says U. S. Should Urge Their Abolishment

BY CHARLES GOTTHART
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

New York, Nov. 17—America's stake in Great Britain's economy was analyzed today by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and William L. Batt, president of SKF Industries and vice chairman of the war production board. They spoke before 900 at a luncheon meeting of the Foreign Policy association in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

Before considering a 5 billion dollar loan or other financial support for the British empire, Americans are justified in demanding abolishment or modification of British policies injurious to the United States, Col. McCormick said. They also are justified in demanding evacuation of British possessions in the western hemisphere, he asserted.

The publisher traced American-British political relations from colonial days, analyzed British economists' reports disclosing a lack of industrial efficiency by American standards, and said that the present labor government, "which has confiscation as a national policy," cannot hope to attract the outside investment funds necessary for England's industrial rehabilitation.

Lists "Sterling Bloc"

Among policies that he said were injurious to American interests, Col. McCormick listed the "sterling bloc" system, which encourges trade among countries with monetary ties to Britain and discourages trade in American dollars. He also mentioned the "empire preference" system of tariff concessions.

"On top of this, the totalitarian government of New Zealand denies import licenses to Americans while granting them to British exporters," he said.

Demanding correction of these policies, which "violate the doctrine of united nations," the publisher continued: "We believe there should be other conditions imposed in consideration of [American] gifts or loans.

Cannot Support Slavery

"The people of the Northwest territory, followers of Lincoln, cannot support slavery in any form. The British are in India, Burma, Malaya, and Java only because the Americans defeated the Japanese, who had defeated all their other enemies.

"We cannot escape responsibility for evils being perpetrated on helpless people by the British, Dutch, and French using American lend-lease weapons to force natives to work in the rubber plantations for $3.29 a month—11 cents a day. We must insist that these outrages stop at once.

"We have still another demand to make upon Great Britain, both in the name of humanity and of national security. It is to evacuate all of her possessions in this hemisphere.

"Canada has finally achieved her independence. The small colonies in and near the Caribbean sea are not strong enough to do so. They are of no economic value to the empire, altho politically they support a number of place holders.

Should Be Set Free

"They should be set free just as Cuba was set free. They have been used in the past as bases to attack us, and upon occasion, at need, could so be used again perhaps to launch atom bombs.

"There are people here, no doubt, who will be indignant at such a suggestion, but I have not forgotten the Fort Dearborn massacre and I have learned of the massacres in Java.

"Have lend-gift if you will, but get quid pro quo for America."

In tracing the history of American-British relations, the publisher recalled that New England threatened to secede from the Union and form an alliance with England during the War of 1812, which was pressed by westerners, and that the British inspired the Fort Dearborn massacre, awarding medals to the Indian perpetrators.

Resisted U. S. Expansion

England "resisted the birth of the nation and its expansion to the Pacific," Col. McCormick said. "When it had been accomplished, she participated in its success by investments made mostly thru Boston, New York, and Philadelphia banks."

The publisher remarked that "while in the east your relations [with England] have been those of profitable trade, or as broker between Europe and America, in the west they have been a continual struggle. We consider also that we won Britain's last two wars."

He said that British industry "is in a vicious downward spiral" thru a combination of government policies that encourage the use of obsolete machinery, management's refusal to invest adequately in modern equipment, insistence on cartel-like trade arrangements, and labor's failure to produce at the American rate of output per man.

The result, he said, was that Britain's own economists admitted American superiority in England's principal industry—textiles, as well as others—and that the British workman's standard of living was only half as high as the American standard before the war.

Batt Urges Barrier Removal

Batt, head of one of the largest ball bearing manufacturing companies in the world, told the audience that American financial aid to Britain would be to this country's economic advantage and would help in maintaining free economic enterprise in world trade.

He advised the removal of economic barriers to world trade and visualized an expansion in business that would provide outlets for the goods of all nations.

Referring to fears that a 5 billion dollar American loan would further economic socialism in Britain, Batt said:

"The one way to assure excessive socialization in Britain is to withhold aid that would otherwise be normally available. It would tend to throw the control into the hands of extremists; it would almost certainly compel Britain to follow a larger degree of economic isolationism, swinging with her the neighboring nations in the north of Europe, dominion areas, and others in the 'sterling bloc.' Then we would certainly find our own position in the world market infinitely more difficult.

Need Strong Britain

"Our need for a strong Britain is very real. We are one of the greatest forces in the world, and must carry a large share of the responsibility for an orderly world. No nation is more likely to stand shoulder to shoulder with us in that almost terrifying responsibility than Great Britain and the British commonwealth of nations.

"There is, of course, a limit to what we can afford to do, but the problem of assistance to Britain must be settled. We must have faith that Britain will regain her prosperity and rightful usefulness in the world. Therefore, anything we do to help Britain today is not money thrown away.

"It is a sound investment in a business partner, and it should have sound businesslike restrictions."

Cites Wasteful Industry

Batt mentioned coal mining as one of England's high cost, "wasteful" industries, but said the country had operated efficiently in a number of war time production activities. He said it must be assumed that economic planning by the new Labor government would include vast amounts of new machinery and new and better methods, "and what is more important, the effective use of both men and management."

"The American people have emerged from the war with a sharpened sense of their relationship to the rest of the world and with the conviction that we shall have economic peace and internal prosperity only as the United States is willing to participate more freely and intelligently in the world economy," he said.

"As a condition of that participation we should make it clear that the United States wants the opposite of the controled sort of trading under which the governments of other nations have so frequently dictated the overseas business of their nationals. We must do all within our power to eliminate trade barriers and trade restrictions.

U. S. Industrially Strong

"But we are not going to meet that situation realistically unless we realize that the United States cannot do the job alone; we must have strong allies in winning the economic peace, just as we required strong allies in winning the fighting war."

In contrast to England's economic depletion, America emerged from the war with a production machine 20 billion dollars larger than at the outbreak of war, Batt asserted.

In a discussion period that followed the formal addresses, the speakers amplified their positions on world policies in response to questions from the audience, which included several hundred students. Col. McCormick made it clear that he was "not opposing aid to England," but that, in his opinion, the lenders should be given the privilege of making satisfactory terms.

Miss Pauline Palmer Is Wed to Lt. Col. Arthur M. Wood

BY JUDITH CASS

Surrounded by a circle of relatives and close friends, Miss Pauline Palmer, daughter of Mrs. Potter Palmer, yesterday became the bride of Lt. Col. Arthur MacDougall Wood of the army air forces, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Arthur Wood of Highland Park.

The wedding took place in the Astor st. apartment of the bride's mother, with the Rev. Herbert E. Prince of the Church of the Holy Spirit, Lake Forest, officiating.

Chrysanthemums on Altar

The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her brother, Lt. Comdr. Gordon Palmer, and crossed the large room to an altar banked with white chrysanthemums and lighted by tapers in tall candelabra.

She was preceded by her two attendants, her sister, Mrs. Oakleigh Thorne of New York, and their former sister-in-law, Mrs. Movius Palmer. The attendants wore long sleeved, long skirted gowns of dusty pink, with tiny feathered skull caps of matching color. They carried pink roses.

Traditional White Gown

The bride's gown was of traditional white satin, with long train, long sleeves, and a bateau neckline.

Waiting at the altar were the bridegroom and his best man, his brother, Lt. Col. Robert M. Wood.

Seventeen close friends of the bridegroom, several from distant parts of the country, served as ushers. The Chicagoans among them were Lt. Col. Robert W. Wood II., [not related] also of Highland Park, who just returned with his wife and baby from Stockholm, Sweden; Lt. Andrew Loring Rowe, Maj. William B. Elliott; Lt. Comdr. Michael Cudahy, Lt. Comdr. Joseph E. Rich, John E. Baker Jr., and Alexander C. Bell.

After many toasts to their happiness, Col. Wood and his bride departed on a wedding trip. They will live in Chicago.

JAPAN'S PEARL HARBOR ORDER: FLEE IF SIGHTED!

'Climb Mt. Niitaka' Was Signal to Attack

mony in withholding accurate figures concerning the strength of the Atlantic fleet. While Chairman Barkley [D., Ky.] angrily denounced Brewster for this charge, Inglis heatedly declared that he resented "this impugning of my honesty and motives."

"I say to you," Brewster told Inglis, "and your fellow officers, that a freer and franker approach will do much to increase the confidence which we all hope to have in the navy's testimony. I regret profoundly the navy attitude of mind which does not seem to recognize the rights of this congress to full, fair, honest and frank testimony."

No Patrol on Dec. 6

In testimony two days ago, Inglis stated there were only six battleships in the Atlantic fleet while there were nine in the Pacific. Brewster noted that the Washington and North Carolina had been commissioned and should have been included in the Atlantic fleet figures. Inglis explained he was talking only about battleships actually in service.

Brewster also brought out that there were 69 navy patrol bombers at Pearl Harbor with a cruising range of 1,600 miles. None was sent out on aerial reconnaissance on Dec. 6, the day before the attack, when, Brewster said, they well might have sighted the enemy task force.

Inglis expressed doubt that the planes could have maintained a thoro patrol but he finally admitted that the planes, if sent out, would have made the secret approach of the Jap fleet "exceedingly difficult."

The attack on Pearl Harbor was originally proposed early in January, 1941, by Jap Adm. Isoroku Yamamoto, commander in chief of the combined fleet, the committee was told. He ordered Rear Adm. Takijiro Onishi, chief of staff of the 11th air fleet to study the operation.

The following time table illustrates the growth of the plan:

Late August, 1941: Adm. Yamamoto ordered all fleet commanders and key staff members to Tokyo for war games, preliminary to a final formulation of operation plans for a Pacific campaign which included a surprise attack on Pearl Harbor.

Sept. 2 to 13: A war plans conference at naval war college, Tokyo, drafted an outline of a basic operation order.

Attack Day Fixed

Nov. 5: Combined fleet top secret operation order No. 1 was promulgated to all fleet and task force commanders. This date marked the completion of plans for the Pearl Harbor attack.

Nov. 7: Operation order No. 2 was issued by Adm. Yamamoto, setting Y day [attack day] as Dec. 8 Jap time [Dec. 7, Hawain time]. This date then was only approximate.

Nov. 14: Pearl Harbor attacking force ordered to assemble in Hitokappu bay, Japan.

Nov. 25: Attacking order issued to fleet.

Nov. 26: Striking force left bay, proceeding eastward.

Dec. 2: An imperial naval order fixed Dec. 8 as X day, the same as the approximate date originally set.

Spies in Hawaii Help

During all this period, according to the evidence of decoded Jap messages put in the record on the first hearing day, the Japanese commanders were receiving a flood of information from their spies in Hawaii concerning the movements and the disposition of the American fleet.

On Dec. 1 a dispatch from Honolulu to Tokyo unote that the usual schedule for the eight American battleships was: leave on Tuesday and return on Friday, or leave on Friday and return on Saturday of the following week.

Jap Attack Probed

On Dec. 2 Tokyo sent its Honolulu agent the following message:

"In view of the present situation, the presence in port of warships, airplane carriers, and cruisers is of utmost importance. Hereafter, to the utmost of your ability, let me know day by day. Wire me in each case whether or not there are any observation balloons above Pearl Harbor or if there are any indication that they will be sent up. Also advise me whether or not the warships are provided with anti-mine nets."

On Dec. 5 the reply from Honolulu was received. It noted that there were eight battleships, three light cruisers, and 16 destroyers in port.

Decide on Sunday Attack

The Japs generally recognized, the committee was informed, that Dec. 8 [Jap time] was suitable from an operational standpoint. Dec. 10 also would have been suitable for a dawn attack because it would then be the dark of the moon. The account added:

"However, it was expected that the United States Pacific fleet, in accordance with its custom during maneuvers, would enter the harbor on Friday and leave on Monday. Therefore, Sunday [Hawaii time] was decided on. In order to assure the success of the attack and still avoid a night attack, the take-off time of the attacking planes was to be set as near to dawn as possible [approximately one hour after sunrise]."

On or about Nov. 14, the Pearl Harbor attacking force was ordered to assemble in Hitokappu bay, the account continued. About Nov. 21, the "situation seemed to be approaching a stage where commencement of hostilities was inevitable."

Order to Task Force Bared

Text of the order to the task force Nov. 25, 1941, which sent the fleet on its way to Pearl Harbor the next day, follows:

"[A] The task force, keeping its movements strictly secret and maintaining close guard against submarines and aircraft, shall advance into Hawaiian waters and, upon the very opening of hostilities, shall attack the main force of the United States fleet in Hawaii and deal it a mortal blow. The first air raid is planned for dawn of X-day [exact date to be given by later order].

"Upon completion of the air raid the task force, keeping close coördination and guarding against enemy counter-attack, shall speedily leave the enemy waters and then return to Japan.

Provide for Return

"[B] Should it appear certain that Japanese-American negotiations will reach an amicable settlement prior to the commencement of hostile action, all the forces of the combined fleet are to be ordered to reassemble and return to their bases.

"[C] The task force shall leave Hitokappu bay on the morning of 26 November and advance to 42 degrees N. and 170 degrees E. [standing-by position] on the afternoon of 4 December, Japan time, and speedily complete refueling."

[The actual time of departure was 9 a. m., 26 November, Japan time—1:30 p. m., 25 November, Hawaii time.]

"Held down by the low speed of the train [supply] vessels, the force cruised eastward at 13 knots. Lookouts were posted but no searches or combat air patrols were flown. It had been anticipated that North Pacific weather would cause difficulty in refueling at sea and those ships whose capacity was small were loaded with oil in drums for emergency use.

Reach Rendezvous

"The weather, however, proved uniformly calm and fueling from the tankers was carried out as planned. On or about Dec. 2, all ships were darkened and condition 2 [second degree of readiness, gun crews stationed] was set. On Dec. 4 [Jap time] the rendezvous point [42 degrees N., 170 degrees E.] was reached and the combat ships of the force fueled to capacity from the tankers, which were dropped that night.

"The task force then turned southeast, probably at increased speed. The carriers Hiryu and Soryu, whose fuel capacity was small, had been oiled daily while in company with the tankers and now had to be fueled by bucket brigade from the oil drums taken on board.

"The cruise up to this date had been uneventful; no ships or planes had been sighted and no false alarms had been sounded. On the night of Dec. 7 and 8 [Japan time] the run in was made at top speed, 26 knots."

Radio Gives Information

A Japanese officer aboard the carrier Agaki was given the special job of listening to Honolulu broadcasts and decoding them for information about fleet movements in and out of Pearl Harbor. A broadcast that "the German attache has lost one dog" would mean that a carrier had left the harbor. If the attache wanted a cook or house boy, that might mean a battleship or cruiser had entered.

False call signs, padding of radio circuits and similar deceptive tactics were used meanwhile to simulate the presence of a striking force, carriers, and carrier air groups in the Jap inland sea. Other Jap naval forces moving southward made no attempt to mask their movements.

On the night before the attack, when the fleet was about 1,000 miles north of Oahu, the commander of the Jap force received the Tokyo message: "Climb Mount Niitaka."

Scout Planes Unnoticed

Upon arrival at their destination 200 miles north of Oahu, the carriers of the striking force launched on schedule a total of 361 planes in three waves, commencing at 6 a.m. and ending at 7:15 a.m., Dec. 7 [Hawaii time], the story continued.

The planes rendezvoused to the south and then flew in for coördinated attacks. Two type Zero reconnaissance seaplanes had previously been launched at approximately 5 a.m. to survey Pearl Harbor and La Haina anchorage just before the attack. They reached their destination one hour before the arrival of the attack planes and were apparently unnoticed by the American forces.

Leaving a scene of bloody destruction behind them, the striking planes [all but 27] returned safely to their carrier decks between 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. The Jap fleet then retreated at high speed [26 or 27 knots] to the northwest and proceeded by circuitous route to Kure, arriving Dec. 23 [Japan time.]

Twenty Jap Subs on Patrol

Original plans had called for the retiring task force to strike at Midway Island is possible, but "probably because of the presence of a

JAPAN'S PEARL HARBOR ORDER: FLEE IF SIGHTED!

'Climb Mt. Niitaka' Was Signal to Attack

United States task force south of Midway" that stroke was not made.

On the night before the attack, the 20 large Jap submarines patrolled the waters in the vicinity of Pearl Harbor under orders not to attack until the planes had dropped their bombs.

The five midget submarines were launched from specially fitted fleet submarines between 50 and 100 miles off Pearl Harbor as a "special attacking force." Their duty was to prevent the escape of the fleet thru the harbor entrance during the aerial assault.

Available data, the navy reported, indicated that only one of these submarines entered the harbor. None of the five rejoined the Japanese force.

Planes from the large submarines were launched after the attack to survey the extent of the damage. The operation plan provided that if the American fleet was virtually destroyed one submarine division or less would be placed between Hawaii and North America to destroy sea traffic. In fact, at least one submarine was dispatched to the Oregon coast about Dec. 14.

33 Pct. Loss Expected

It had been assumed by the Japs that they would lose one-third of their striking force. Specifically they thought they would lose at least one Akagi class plane carrier and one Soryu class carrier. They did not estimate probable plane losses. They also expected to lose all of the midget submarines, whose "personnel were prepared for death," and that expectation was realized.

The official Jap estimate of damage inflicted at Pearl Harbor and the contrasting actual damage inflicted was as follows:

Naval vessels	Estimate [Jap]	Actual
Sunk	4 battleships 2 heavy cruisers 1 auxiliary vesse	4 battleships .... 1 mine layer
Heavily damaged	4 battleships 5 heavy cruisers	1 battleship 2 light cruisers 3 destroyers 1 auxiliary
Lightly damaged	1 battleship	3 battleships 1 light cruiser 1 airc. tender
Aircraft destroyed	450 [total]	188

The Japs carefully considered the obstacles, but finally decided that a torpedo attack from planes was the most effective method of putting the anchored American fleet out of action. Naval authorities at that time considered Pearl Harbor too narrow and too shallow for such an attack, but the Japs attached stabilizers to their torpedoes and launched them from an extremely low altitude.

Pick Safest Route

The northern route for the approach of the task force was chosen, according to the report, because it was far from the United States patrol screen of land based airplanes and there was little chance of meeting commercial vessels. The following significant passage appeared in the report:

"If the striking force had been detected prior to X-2 day, it was planned to have the force return without executing the air attack. In the event of being discovered on X-1 day, the question of whether to make an attack or to return would have been decided in accordance with the local conditions."

Adm. Inglis gave the committee additional information concerning the Jap war plans which he said had been received by the navy only last night.

Pilots Briefed on Oct. 5

"On Oct. 5," he testified, "according to information given by a Japanese officer pilot, a meeting of all carrier officer pilots was held at which they were told very secretly that the Japanese naval air force would hit the United States fleet base at Hawaii.

"At this meeting, Adm. Yamamoto was quoted as saying that Japan did not want to fight the United States but had to because American aid to China and our embargo on oil shipments was hampering the Japanese war in China.

Radar Chart Questioned

"Adm. Yamamoto also was reported to have told the pilots the United States fleet would take two or three years to recover from the intended attack and that in the meantime Japan could occupy Sumatra, Java, and other territories."

Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] questioned Col. Bernard Thielen of army intelligence concerning a disparity between the map presented to the committee showing the radar notations of the attacking Japanese planes and another map attached to the official army board report. The second map showed numerous notations of Jap planes which were omitted from the committee map.

Ferguson wanted to know if the additional notations had been purposely left off the committee map. Thielen said he would obtain an explanation from the army for presentation Monday.

Testimony will be resumed Monday.

ROBERTS BACKS HIS REPORT ON PEARL HARBOR

Says Security Prevented Full Revelation

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 17 [Special] —While women picketed the Federal Union, Inc., convention, former Supreme Court Justice Roberts tonight declared that his Pearl Harbor investigation did not reveal all because of military security.

If he had told everything he learned in his investigation, which took place soon after the Dec. 7, 1941, attack, it would have helped the Japanese, Roberts asserted.

Ten women picketed Hotel William Penn during an interview with Roberts and while he was addressing the convention of Federal Union, proponents of world government.

The women, members of the Defenders of George Washington's Principles, carried placards aimed at Roberts.

Find No New Facts

Roberts, in an interview, said that so far the congressional investigation of the Pearl Harbor disaster had not revealed anything he didn't know at the time he made his report to the late President Roosevelt.

He said his committee, appointed by the late President Roosevelt, learned the army and navy had broken Jap military codes, but didn't mention it in their report for the simple reason that it would have given information to the Japs.

He also prophesied that the congressional committee would do a "better job" than his committee because they have more witnesses and more authority.

The pickets carried these slogans:

"No international flag for Old Glory."

"Ex-Justice Roberts, tell the whole truth about world government."

Roberts declared he thought all of the world's nations ought to be united in one government.

Called Best Way to Peace

"We want to educate and persuade the people that this is the best way to peace and that they should press for it now," he said.

He declared a world government could outlaw war between nations as our own government has outlawed war between the states. Asked if Russia would participate, he said:

"That's a question that will arise when this country is ready. Certainly Russia has a democratic government, their constitution verges toward ours, and I am not at all sure the Russian people would not be ready for it by the time we are."

REPORT ACHESON PROTEGE SERVES ON PROBE STAFF

Gesell's Position Clears Mystery

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17—Gerhard R. Gesell, reportedly a protege of Undersecretary of State Acheson, is acting as assistant chief counsel of the Pearl Harbor investigating committee.

Supposedly serving without compensation, Gesell had a reported $35,000 a year income with the Washington law firm of Covington, Burling, and Rublee, with which Acheson was associated. Gesell served as chief counsel in various inquiries by the securities and exchange commission.

Try to Deaden Interest

A stocky, pugnacious type, Gesell is said to be maneuvering much of the strategy accompanying the presentation of evidence by Committee Counsel William D. Mitchell, 71, former attorney general. Republican members of the committee have charged that an attempt is being made to inundate the committee with a vast amount of dull evidence in order to deaden public interest.

The background of the committee legal staff was a mystery for weeks. Senators Ferguson [R., Mich.] and Brewster [R., Me.] both sought information but reported a strange delay.

OPA Official on Job

Two other assistants are:

John M. Hannaford III., Manitou Island, White Bear Lake, Minn. A graduate of Yale university and Yale law school, he is 33. He was a member of Dorsey, Coleman, Barker, Scott, and Barker, Minneapolis, Minn. He was with the legal staff of the office of price administration, most of the time in the Illinois state office, and since May, 1943, was with the lend-lease administration and the foreign administration. The latter agency "lent" him to the committee.

John E. Masten, of Canadaigua, N. Y. He is also 33; was graduated from Dartmouth and later Yale law school, in 1936. He was with the New York la woffice of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner, and Reed. He has been with the reconstruction finance corporation since 1942 and is also "on loan" to the committee from the RFC.

MIND EXPERTS STILL WATCH INDIANA GI DOOMED FOR KILLING 2

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 17 (AP)—Pvt. Robert A. Colby, Geetingsville, Ind., who was sentenced to death for killing his company commander and another officer last June, was reported today to be still under psychiatric observation. Colby, a member of the United States 7th army combat engineer corps, was condemned by court-martial for shooting Capt. Richard J. Brown, Buffalo, N. Y., and Lt. Donald H. Wade, Woodworth, Wis., after they reprimanded him. The death sentence was confirmed by Gen. Eisenhower on Aug. 29.

DETROIT NURSE WEDS IN KOREA

SEOUL, Korea, Nov. 17 [AP]—Korea's first post-war American wedding took place today when 2d Lt Virginia E. Reynolds, army nurse of Detroit, Mich. and Lt. James R. Burros, Oswego, S. C., exchanged vows. They met on Okinawa.

HANNEGAN CALLS INQUIRY A PLOT TO SMEAR F. D. R.

French Lick, Ind., Nov. 17 (AP)—Democratic Chairman Hannegan accused Republicans today of attempting to use the Pearl Harbor investigation to "smear Roosevelt." He called it a "tactic of desperation by a party without a program."

In an address before the Indiana Democratic Editorial association, Hannegan described attempts by Republicans on the Pearl Harbor committee to search the personal files of the late President Roosevelt as a "political fishing expedition," and added:

"I expect them in their bitterness and their complete lack of a program of their own, to carry on this desperate search for a political smudgeport and some way of making their accusations and innuendoes stick where they are trying to plaster them—on our country's great and honored dead."

BAR KRUPP SON AT WAR TRIAL IN FATHER'S PLACE

Nuernberg Court Denies Plea by U. S.

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NUERNBERG, Germany, Nov. 17—The international military tribunal today rejected an American proposal to add Alfried Krupp, president of the Krupp works, to the list of 21 high Nazis awaiting the major war crimes trial scheduled to start on Tuesday.

He would have taken the place of his 75 year old father, Gustav Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach, who had been named in the indictment but who was dropped from the panel because he is a helpless invalid.

Today's decision eliminated prospects of a postponement which would have been requested by the new defendant.

[Jackson said he believed the Russians would ask for a delay on the grounds that their chief prosecutor, R. A. Rudenko, was ill in Moscow and would be unable to arrive by Tuesday, the Associated Press said.]

The four nation court had deliberated the proposal since Monday. The chief United States prosecutor, Robert L. Jackson, had argued that "no greater disservice to the future peace of the world could be done than to excuse the entire Krupp family and armament enterprise from this trial."

The decision was also a defeat for the Russian and French prosecution stacs who had changed their position on the proposal after a message from Moscow was received earlier this week. The British prosecutors were alone in opposing the inclusion of Alfried in the trial for the announced reason that the British public would condemn the delay.

Bormann Trial in Absentia

Jackson's motion had charged that the Krupp family, munitions makers for 130 years, had supported Hitler's vicious policies, had actively incited war and had profited from nazi aggressions. Alfried, 38, who became head of the family company in 1943, is in British custody and might be tried later.

A brief session of the court today decided that Martin Bormann, secretary of the Nazi party, will be tried in absentia. The British intelligence service had reported that he was probably dead, but David Maxwell Fyfe, chief prosecutor for Great Britain, told the tribunal that the missing defendant may still be alive.

"We have evidence," said the prosecutor, "that Bormann was with Hitler in the chancellery area of Berlin on April 30. Part of that day he was with Hitler in an underground air raid shelter in the chancellery garden.

Doctors Study Hess

"On May 1 Bormann and others attempted to escape in a tank. On a bridge over the River Spree a Russian soldier stopped the tank with a hand grenade. We have interrogated three Germans captured in the tank. Two said that Bormann was killed. The third said that Bormann was wounded."

Tonight there was still a likelihood that Rudolf Hess will not be with Goering, Von Ribbentrop, Doenitz, and other political and military nazi big shots when the trial opens. Altho his attorney has not filed an insanity plea, psychiatrists of the four nations are studying the real or pretended amnesia of the former number three Nazi who parachuted into Scotland in May of 1941.

Picture found in personal effects of Eva Braun by United States intelligence officers showing Adolf Hitler, Miss Braun, whom he was reported to have married before ending life, and ending life, and two children. Recent reports have hinted couple had child.

Saxony's Coal Industry Put Under State Rule

COMPROMISE ENDS HUNGARY CABINET FIGHT

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Nov. 17 [Reuters]—A 10 day political crisis in which Hungarian Communists demanded the ministry of home affairs in spite of opposition from the other parties has been solved by a compromise.

In the new coalition government headed by Zoltan Tildy, premier, whose Small Holders party gained an overwhelming majority in the recent elections; Imre Nagy, a Communist, former minister of agriculture, holds the portfolio of home affairs, with two secretaries of state, one a Socialist and the other a Small Holders man, associated with him. The latter will control the police. Creation of a new post, chief of national police, to be held by a Socialist, is planned.

The new government comprises nine Small Holders, four Communists, four Socialists, and one member of the National Peasant party. Ferenc Nagy, president of the Small Holders party, has been appointed president of the assembly, which will be opened next week.

Speeding Motorist Shot as He Perils Policeman

George Wakeman, 22, of 5357 Chicago av., a discharged soldier, was shot in the left leg early yesterday by Policeman Edward Tighe, who fired six shots at an automobile in which Wakeman and two other men sped past him in front of 5529 Lake st. Tighe said he fired after the driver apparently attempted to run him down in the street. Tighe and his partner, John McCarthy, had been summoned to a tavern where it was reported that Wakeman and three companions had been involved in a quarrel.

The Rocking Chair's a Homey American Institution

It was some inventive Yankee who first thought of adapting rockers, similar to those on a cradle, to the easy chair where he liked to relax. Tradition names Benjamin Franklin as its inventor, probably chiefly because he's known to have had a remarkable rocker with a large fan placed over it by which he fanned himself and kept off flies while reading, with merely a motion of his foot. Most graceful and comfortable of all was the Boston rocker. Probably it first made an appearance about 1825, and not necessarily in Boston. Throughout Connecticut and both east and west Massachusetts, they were widely sold by itinerant peddlers, especially from 1840 to 1865. Then, as now, Boston rockers were generally painted black or some other dark shade, and stenciled brightly with fruits, flowers and gold scrolls.

Rocker with maple finish on hardwood. Comfortably shaped seat with rounded front. Ideal for a Christmas gift... $19.75

No wonder a Boston rocker is the favorite piece of furniture in many homes. There's something so invitingly homelike and cheerful about it. And there's wonderful comfort in the way it's designed . . . generously wide-seated, shaped and sloped just right for comfortable ease as well as graceful charm. The Boston rocker is a piece with traditional associations which is well adapted to use in today's homes. And the John M. Smyth Store is proud to present an interesting group of authentic Boston rockers . . . in time for Christmas.

KRAMER, GRESE, 9 AIDS TO HANG FOR WAR CRIMES

19 Others of Belsen Gang Draw Prison Terms

LUENEBURG, Germany, Nov. 17 (AP)—Joseph Kramer and Irma Grese, the monarchs of Belsen, and nine of their staff were sentenced today to be hanged for murders and atrocities at the Belsen and Oswiecim [Auschwitz] concentration camps. More than 46,000 persons are reported to have died at Belsen.

Three women in all were ordered to the gallows. The trio heard the verdicts quietly, but later the blond, pistol toting Grese, 22, broke into sobs and another woman wept quietly.

Dr. Fritz Klein, SS [elite guard] doctor, also was among the 11 sentenced to death.

The high British military court—which yesterday convicted 30 of the Nazi torture specialists on war crimes charges—sentenced one man to life imprisonment, and five other men and 13 women to prison terms of from 1 to 15 years, totaling 179 years. Fourteen others were acquitted.

Defense Prepares Appeals

Tonight defense counsel was preparing appeal petitions. The notices must be served within 48 hours. All the death sentences are expected to be appealed to Field Marshal Montgomery.

The courtroom was packed with German civilians and British soldiers witnessing the climax to the nine week trial.

The women sentenced to death in addition to Gr[illegible] were Elizabeth Volkenrath, 26 year old former hair dresser who was chief of SS women, and Juana Borman, 42, a religious fanatic who gave up mission work t join the SS.

The other men sentenced to die were Peter Weingartner, 32, former member of the Yugoslav army; Franz Hoesler, 34; Karl Francich, 33; Wilhelm Dorr; Ansgar Pichen, and Franz Starfle, all SS guards.

Gets Life Term

Eric Zoddel, 33, German camp functionary, received the life term.

The men were sentenced first.

Kramer, the brute faced commandant at Belsen, showed no trace of emotion as he learned his fate from Maj. Gen. H. P. M. Berney Ficklin, tribunal president.

Most of the men retained their composure, but Otto Kulessa, a boxer who became a functionary among the prisoners, collapsed upon being sentenced to 15 years.

After sentences were passed, the men were herded out of the room by military police and the women were brought in.

Irma Grese, "queen" of the Belsen gang, look[illegible] straight at the bench. Elizabeth Volkenrath studied the ceiling. Juana Borman stared at the floor.

Once outside the room Grese, who had swaggered at the camp with a pistol strapped to her waist and a whip in her hand, broke into sobs.

Woman Spy in Outburst

The only outburst during the sentencing came from Helena Kopper, 35 year old mother of two sons who had worked as a camp spy, sentenced to 15 years imprisonment.

"Why don't you let me hang?" she shouted in Polish.

Then she threw herself on the floor. Four military police carried her, twisting and squirming in their grasp, from the court.

German civilians and British soldiers had flanked the roadway to the court house earlier to watch the prisoners as they were brought from the jail in two British trucks, led and followed by armored cars with Tommies manning turret machine guns.

Sentenced to 15 years imprisonment were Kopper, Herta Ehlert, 44, SS guard; Kulessa, 53, SS guard; Heinrich Schreir, 22; Vladislaw Ostrowski, 30.

Sentenced to 1[illegible] years were Hilde Lobauer, 27; Ilse Forster, 22; Herta Bothe, 25; Irene Harschke, 24; Gertrude Sauer, 39; Johanna Roth, 32; Anna Hempel, [illegible]5; Stanislawa Staroska, 28; Antoni Surdsiej, 27.

Gertrude Fiest, 27, and Medislaw Burgraf, 26, were sentenced to five years, Frieda Walter, 24, to three years, and Hilde Lisiewicz, 23, to one year.

WACs CAUSE GI CLUB TO BAR GERMAN GIRLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Nov. 17—The military government opened tonight the de luxe "Club 43" for enlisted men, across the Kronprinzen Allee from the United States group control council headquarters. A long soda fountain counter will provide chocolate malts, ice cream, and cakes, and the snack bar will offer hot dogs, hamburgers, and pie. The bar will handle English gin, German congnac, Scotch whisky, and French wines and champagne, at one mark [10 cents] per drink. An army band will provide music.

The only catch is—the GIs cannot invite the frauleins, which puts a crimp on the dancing, as mighty few Wacs and Red Cross girls are available, especially for enlisted men.

"The trouble is," said the major in charge, "that the WACs refuse to compete against the German girls and if we allow the frauleins in the WACs and Red Cross girls will not attend. It's funny, these WACs are more bloodthirsty against the krauts than any one else, more so than t[illegible] GIs and officers who lost relatives and buddies killed during the war. But women are like that!"

BOY'S DEATH HELD ACCIDENT

A verdict of accidental death was returned at an inquest yesterday into the death of Edmund Wakeham, 13, of 551 E. 148th st., Harvey, a pinboy at the Riverdale Bowling alleys, whose body was found Friday on the Illinois Central railroad tracks at 147th st., in Harvey.

TRUMAN PLANS U. S. SPENDING OF 97 BILLIONS

Total May Increase by 4 or 5 Billion

BY ROBERT YOUNG
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17—Adding up the Truman administration's domestic and foreign spending programs and commitments gives a total of 97 billion 195 million dollars.

This is a conservative estimate, because it includes only average or minimum cost figures. In addition, only current expenditures as anticipated in this year's federal budget, appropriations already made by congress, major programs recommended by the administration, and legislation under active consideration and likely to be approved were tabulated.

Another 4 or 5 billion dollars could be added to this total if maximum estimated costs of administration spending programs and commitments were used, and if some relatively less important but still costly measures introduced in congress since President Truman took office were included.

66 Billion Budgeted

The 97 billion 195 million dollars of spending is made up of the following:

Current budgeted and relatively immediate spending — 66 billion 355 million dollars. This includes 1946 fiscal year expenditures for the army, navy, and occupation forces, veterans programs, public debt interest, tax refunds, and federal salaries, the Truman-proposed 20 per cent federal salary increase, and the compulsory military training program.

Foreign loans and commitments—16 billion 125 million dollars. This covers appropriated, authorized, or requested United States contributions to the Bretton Woods world monetary agreement and the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration, the lending authority of the export-import bank, loans already advanced to foreign nations, and the imminent loan to Great Britain.

Social relief and public works programs—14 billion 715 million dollars. This includes the administration's full employment and unemployment compensation programs, public housing aid, support for farm commodity prices, public works construction, reclamation projects, domestic and inter-American highway construction, federal airport aid, and hospital grants.

Added on F. D. R. Projects

Many of the most costly Truman spending programs have been superimposed upon billion dollar projects continuing from the Roosevelt administration.

The national debt should be noted to complete the outline of the staggering sums which the administration proposes to spend currently and in the post-war years. It stands at 263 billion dollars and the budget bureau expects it to rise to 273 billions by June 30.

No one in the government, including President Truman, is able to compute the eventual cost of the administration's spending plans. Many of the programs, particularly some economic and social measures, are vague and complicated and provide for outlays of federal funds over a period of years.

National budgets or 22 to 25 billion dollars in the coming post-war years have been envisioned by some administration leaders and fiscal policy makers, including Sen. George [D., Ga], chairman of the senate finance committee. Treasury Secretary Vinson has said that a balanced federal budget by 1948 is possible.

CATHOLICS RIP RUSSIANS; ASK A SURE PEACE

Bishops Deliver Plea and a Protest

to shape gradually the peace which they are imposing on the nations. From the conferences of these victorious powers there is emerging slowly their pattern for the peace. It is disappointing in the extreme.

History's "Greatest Crisis"

"Assurances are given us in the announced peace principles of our country, but so far the results do not square with these principles. We are perhaps in the greatest crisis of human history. Our country has the power, the right, and the responsibility to demand a genuine peace, based on justice which will answer the cry in the hearts of men across the world."

The statement continued that during the war there may have been strategic reasons for postponing final decisions on many questions, but the time has now come to face the facts.

"There are profound differences of thought and policy between Russia and the western democracies," it said. "Russia has acted unilaterally on many important settlements. It has sought to establish spheres of influence in eastern and southeastern Europe, not on the basis of sound regional agreements in which sovereignties and rights are respected but by the imposition of its sovereignty and by ruthlessly setting up helpless puppet states. Its Asiatic policy, so important for the peace of the world, is an enigma.

"The totalitarian dictators promised benefits to the masses thru an omnipotent police-state which extends its authority to all human relations and recognizes no innate freedoms. Their theories, moreover, look to the realization of world well being as ultimately to be secured by the inclusion of all countries in their system.

"Sometimes Russia uses our vocabulary and talks of democracy and rights but it attaches distorted meanings to the words. We think in terms of our historic culture. We see God-given inviolable human rights in every person and we know democracy as the free collaboration under law of the citizens in a free country."

Recognizing that there is a clash of ideologies between Russia and Britain and the United States, the bishops called for a frank recognition of the differences and then the formation of a plan for peace.

Admit Being Shocked

In discussing individual nations of Europe the bishops said they are shocked by the news that is leaking out of Slovakia, Croatia, Slovenia, and other nations of southeastern Europe under Russian occupation.

"Religious persecution which is both brutal and cunning rages in many lands," they said. "No reason of policy justifies our silence. What is happening behind the black-out of eastern and southeastern Europe is a stark contradiction of the high ideals which inspired our fighting to save the world from totalitarian aggression.

HOPE GROWING FOR SOLUTION OF PALESTINE CRISIS

Expect Results from U. S.-British Board

LONDON, Nov. 17 [Reuters]—There is growing optimism in British government circles that Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's statement on Palestine may open the way to a peaceful solution without the need for an armed showdown. Hope also is being placed on the emergency meeting of the British, American, and Palestinian members of the Jewish agency which is to take place at the end of the month in Jerusalem.

This meeting, it is understood, will take the decisive step on how official Zionism replies to the Bevin proposals. Until then no final political decision is to be taken.

[Bevin proposed a joint British and American investigation of the Palestine situation.]

Revive Partition Idea

While the composition of the commission has not yet been decided upon, there is already talk in unofficial political quarters that the only alternative to a fight to the finish is the partition of Palestine more or less on the lines suggested by the Peel commission in its report of July, 1937.

This proposal would allow for the creation of a Jewish and an Arab state in Palestine with full international sovereignty.

United States Delegation Arrives

LONDON, Nov. 17 (AP)—A seven-man delegation arrived in England today to discuss with British officials the Palestine problem and the repatriation of Jews from German concentration camps.

They are Sen. Gillette [D., Ia.], president of the American League for a Free Palestine; Rep. Somers [D., N. SPAIN'S HUNGER STIRS RACKET; BREAD-RUNNING

Smugglers Find Profit in French Product

BY DAVID DARRAH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

IRUN, Spain, Nov. 17—Northern Spain is in a desperate economic plight, with no merchandise of any kind legitimately passing the frontier between here and France. Despite the rigors of four years of occupation, more food seems to be available on the French side of the frontier than here.

Available supplies here are so high priced the average Spanish citizen cannot afford to buy them.

The international bridge between Irun and Hendaye is tightly sealed. Only a few persons living on the border go across daily and permits are hard to get. Other travelers are mostly diplomats. Two or three trains cross from France daily, but departures are uncertain and travelers know only a few minutes before hand, because of the troubled conditions, whether a train will leave.

Children Appear Hungry

Irun still wears the scars of civil war fighting. Ruined houses have not yet been rebuilt. Children are ragged and appear hungry. It is bitter cold and there is no fuel.

While there is no regular trade between France and Spain across this frontier, smuggling rackets go on briskly.

One profitable racket is in currency. Quantities of bank notes are smuggled across despite strict controls.

Cocaine was most profitable contraband in the days before the war. Smugglers took it into France across mountain paths.

Now, curiously, the big contraband racket is in bread. Spain has been short of wheat and bread for years. In restaurants where they serve thick steaks at black market rates only tiny pieces of bread go with them.

Police Battle Racket

Since the abolition of bread rationing in France, Spaniards in Irun and San Sebastian and other frontier regions are eating French bread smuggled across the Bidassoa river and thru the passes. Police along the frontier are keeping close watch to keep the French from peddling the bread to Spaniards at black market prices. With bread now sold in France without restrictions, smugglers rush it into Spain straight from the bakeries.

Both the Spanish and the French keep the frontier hermetically sealed as far as newspapers are concerned. Police confiscate all newspapers and magazines going each way. No Spanish papers appear in Hendaye on the French side, and no French papers may be seen in Irun. The two frontier towns are three miles apart, but vast distances separate them politically.

In Irun one sees more sad faces and fewer pictures of Premier Franco than were to be seen early in 1944.

SEIZED NEAR STOLEN SAFE

James Gatalano, 21, of 3011 Lexington st., was arrested yesterday in an alley at the rear of 1310 S. Claremont av. by Detectives Edward Quinn and John Enright, who said Gatalano and two other men, who escaped, were tampering with a 400 pound safe containing $150 which had been stolen from a restaurant owned by George Paps at 5204 N. Clark st.

BLAMES JAPAN'S NAVAL MEN FOR MANILA SCOURGE

Seamen Ruled City, Says Yamashita Aide

BY ROBERT CROMIE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P.I. Nov. 17—The former Japanese general who commanded Manila's defenses during the late stages of the war today upset prosecution attempts to link Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita with atrocities in the Philippines capital.

Lt. Gen. Shizuwo Yokoyama testified that naval forces under Rear Adm. Iwabuchi, now dead, waged most of the battle in the streets despite his order that they move to the outskirts.

The prosecution called Yokoyama after informing the commission trying Yamashita on war criminal charges that it wished to establish links of command between Yamashita, in Baguio, as over-all commander and Yokoyama as chief of the Manila defenses.

Denies General Ordered Killings

Yokoyama, now held in an American prison camp, testified:

That Yamashita had never given him orders to kill Filipino citizens, but had instructed him to "be fair in all my dealings with them."

That he never received any order for the destruction or burning of Manila other than definitely military demolitions.

That he, himself, had never issued any orders to kill Filipinos.

That in anuary he had been instructed to prepare a defense line outside the city of Manila and that Yamashita had desired that there be no fighting in the city itself. In support of this he said that it was his understanding that Yamashita desired the residents of Manila to remain calm and go about their daily business.

Orders Navy Out of City

That last April he received a message from Yamashita saying, in response to a requeset from Tokyo, that he was to investigate a complaint of Spain regarding mistreatment of Spanish civilians in Manila.

Yokohama said that he had ordered the navy to evacuate Manila Feb. 13 but even earlier had told them, without giving an order, that it was his "desire" that the naval troops be withdrawn.

He testified that Yamashita received orders from Tokyo to take over command of the naval forces in Manila but that the group commanders retained certain authority also—a distinction which was never made clear, due to constant translation difficulties.

Yokoyama said that Yamashita put him in command of the naval forces Jan. 10 [the Americans invaded Luzon Jan. 9] but that he did not take over actual control until about Feb. 3, altho previously he had ordered them to halt any American advance toward Manila from prepared positions outside of town. His testimony contradicted that given yesterday by Vice. Adm. Denshichi Okoochi, who said the army—not the navy—was answerable for all armed forces ashore after Jan. 6.

The witness also upset the prosecution's contention that Yamashita was responsible for atrocities in prisoner of war camps and civilian internee prisons when he said that prior to Nov. 17, 1944, Count Terauchi commanded the entire southern regions, including the Philippines.

Yokoyama said that he knew nothing of the reason why Filipinos were held against their will during the fighting in Manila, especially in Intramuros, adding: "That is something I never heard or guessed before."

On cross-examination by Capt. Adolf Reel, Boston, Mass., Yokoyama stated Yamashita had not wished Manila to be defended.

Tells of Prison Fare

A previous witness, Chief Pharmacist's Mate Clarence Harwell, Detroit, Mich., a Japanese prisoner from January, 1942, until last February, told of the shortage of food at the New Bilibid prison, which grew progressively worse from last July on. He told of men eating pigeons, cats, and even rats caught inside the prison, while the Japs seemingly had food to spare. He told also of the Japs donating their garbage to the prisoners and laughing as they struggled for it.

A deposition from another American imprisoned at New Bilibid told of one Jap officer ordering a Jap guard to bring more garbage "so we can watch the American dogs fight for it."

The prosecution hopes to wind up its case Monday unless translation difficulties are too great.

GOVERNOR OF IDAHO BECOMES STATE'S 2D DEMOCRAT IN SENATE

Sen. Gossett

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 17 (AP)—Gov. Charles G. Gossett, Democrat, resigned today and was appointed junior United States senator, succeeding John Thomas, Republican, who died in Washington a week ago.

Gossett's resignation elevated Lt. Gov. Arnold Williams, Rexburg Democrat, to the governorship. Williams then appointed Gossett, giving Idaho two Democratic senators for the first time since 1903. Idaho's other senator is Glen Taylor of Pocatello.

Gossett, 57, Nampa farmer and stock grower, was elected governor in 1944. He was born at Hillsboro, O., and came to Idaho in 1920. His appointment increased the Democrats' senate seats to 56, with 38 Republicans and one Progressive.

OFFICIALS FLEE MANCHURIA AS CHINA REDS NEAR

Chiang's Staff Leaves in Wake of Russians

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 17 (AP)—Chinese Nationalists, fearing a Communist coup, were reported quitting Manchuria's capital of Changchun today even as their own troops fought into the province for the first time.

A field dispatch said Nationalist troops—the Communists asserted four United States-equipped divisions were in the vanguard—were pressing beyond the great wall into southern Manchuria but still were 440 miles from Changchun.

Between them and the capital stood communist forces stoutly dug in. The Chungking press carried reports that well armed Communist bands had been seen near Changchun and appeared ready to take over as soon as the Russians withdraw.

Tientsin Situation Tense

The situation also remained tense around Tientsin, where United States marines and Chinese Communists traded shots yesterday after the latter fired on a train bearing Maj. Gen. Dewitt Peck, commander of the 1st marine division, north of Chinwangtao, the port east of Tientsin.

Peck, arriving in Tientsin, said he was fired upon Wednesday and Thursday and the bullets were "so close we had to duck." He said quiet prevailed in the trouble zone today.

The World Daily News, a Chungking newspaper, declared the impasse in Manchuria threatened "our national existence" and would affect future relations between China and Russia.

The Chinese press said the crisis over Manchuria had occupied military and civilian leaders at a conference here.

Chiang's Son Flees

The press, commenting on the inability of the Nationalists to land at Communist-held Manchurian ports, said the Nationalist officials had decided to quit Changchun and some already were in Peping. Among the arrivals was reported to be Chiang Chung-kuo, son of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

One newspaper said the situation already had reached the "critical stage" because the Communists were advancing steadily thru Manchuria—with its important heavy industries—behind the withdrawing Russians.

American authorities have announced that they will not fly Chinese troops into Manchuria. Even if Russia granted Chungking permission to fly in troops, it has only a few planes available.

The reported successes of Chinese Nationalist troops at the southern gateway to Manchuria did little to dispel the gloom here.

Outflank Great Wall City

Gen. Tu Li-ming, Nationalist commander for Manchuria, said in Chinwangtao that the fortress city of Shanhaikwan fell to his men as the result of a swift outflanking drive on the west.

He reported his columns crossed the Great Wall at Chiumen and cut in behind the Communist forces in Shanhaikwan, compelling them to retreat thru a corridor purposely left open.

China Offers Rewards for Finding Dead Yanks

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 17 (AP)—Rewards will be given to Chinese furnishing information on the whereabouts, cause of death or burial place of any missing American military personnel in China. An order from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek directed provincial and district officials to assist American authorities in the search.

Accuses Zipper Man

[Associated Press Wirephoto]

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 17 (AP)—Actress Carole Landis walked into a room at Hollywood police station today and, Detective Sgt. C. C. Forbes said, leveled a finger at a man jailed for "attempted rape" on her complaint of a zipper-pulling incident, exclaiming "that's him."

The suspect, booked as Charles L. Gramlich, 31, denied molesting the film star. He identified himself as a former Marietta, O., attorney.

Forbes reported he also was investigating recent reports of attempts to annoy Actresses Greer Garson and Claudette Colbert "by a man of similar description."

The sergeant said the suspect was apprehended by officers at Miss Landis' studio last Wednesday—shortly after she reported an uninvited visitor had entered her dressing room and attempted to unzipper her costume—but was released when she was unavailable for identification.

FUGITIVE IN KILLING HELD

Wendell Stanford Coffman, 25, of 65 E. Harrison st., a paroled convict, arrested at State and Oak sts. Friday, was identified yesterday as a fugitive from a California murder charge. He is accused of killing Carl Ritzman during a holdup at Gardenia, Cal., a suburb of Los Angeles, Oct. 23.

MARINES EAGER TO GET OUT OF NORTH CHINA WAR

Navy Personnel Also Aim to Leave Quickly

BY JOSEPH HEARST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

TSINGTAO, China, Nov. 17 — United States marines who have been dodging the rifle fire of Chinese Communists for three months since the Japs surrendered are asking how much longer they must stay out here playing a part in China's undeclared civil war.

The question does not come only from the men in the ranks. At Tsingtao, Taku, Chinwangtao and Tientsin officers too want to know what our Chinese policy is and when they can go home. These men who fought the Japs from Guadalcanal to Okinawa ask when they will be released from such tasks as holding ports for the Chinese Nationalists, guarding railways and protecting coal, but the question remains unanswered.

Equally anxious about getting out of this troublesome area are naval personnel, especially those of the air branch who not only have been fired on ineffectually by Chinese Communists, but by soviet Russia's planes as well.

The navy has not mentioned it but it is common knowledge among marine and naval personnel that American patrol duties in north China, which include flights in the vicinity of the Russian controled ports of Port Arthur and Dairen, Manchuria, have become hazarduos.

Russia protested when we sent carrier based planes over Dairen during the days when American internees were being evacuated from the Mukden prison camp, and such flights were abandoned. Recently, however, long range patrol boats have been flying close to Port Arthur and a few days ago, it was reported unofficially, a Russian pursuit plane chased an American plane 40 miles. It made two passes at the comparatively slow seaplane, plainly marked with the American insignia, and on the third run fired a burst that passed a few feet ahead of the nose of the plane.

Then the Russian plane flew back toward Port Arthur and the American plane returned to its base.

CHINA CIVIL WAR AS STRANGE AS FILM OR FICTION

Factions Maintain Chungking Hdq.

BY DOON CAMPBELL

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 17 [Reuters]—China's civil war for more than a dozen American, British, French, Chinese, and Indian correspondents here is being fought out in an atmosphere smelling of speakeasies, dens, alleys, and dirty, plaster walled army operations rooms. It's the strangest, most unreal war ever waged outside film or fiction.

Generals from both camps lend cars to each other and exchange social pleasantries over embassy cocktails. There is an old school tie gentility about the encounters after the day's battle of words. The Communists are operating an army group headquarters in the heart of the Nationalists' capital. Circumstances could not have been stranger if Field Marshal von Runstedt had administrative and intelligence officers snooping about Gen. Eisenhower's compound before V-E day.

Communists Not Restrained

Communist officials in Chungking are not restrained or disciplined. They can go where they like, do what they like, say what they like. But up in the northern provinces more than a million Chinese Communists and Nationalists are squabbling over the legacy of the Japanese surrender.

In Chungking there is no front, no defined line beyond which everything is Communist and behind which everything is Kuomintang. It's a sort of neutral refuge far from the war, where both sides map out tactics and strategy.

There are no official briefing officers, no official bulletins. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek says his armies are not attacking, so there is nothing to put into the bulletins. But he lets his government controled Central News agency issue columns about Communist assaults and atrocities committed against Nationalist garrisons.

Reds Grind Out Stories

Gen. Chou En-lai, chief Communist in Chungking, says Communist armies are not attacking. He must not be quoted. But he encourages his subordinates to feed bales of mimeographed tales about unprovoked Kuomintang onslaughts into the foreign press hotel.

It is not unusual to spend a whole day interviewing military experts, war zone commanders, government and Communist spokesmen to get six lines of news establishing one fact. Even then the news is suspect because the battle is a thousand miles away.

Kuomintang troops in black helmets and light khaki uniforms make notes of every visitor to "No. 50"—50 Tseng Chiangai — Communist clearing house in Chungking. Chickens, dogs, beggars, and flies compete for breathing space between charcoal burning pots and hawkers' stalls that lead up to the doorway.

Inside "No. 50" there is a peekhole where instead of saying "Joe sent me," correspondents ask, "Is Kung Peng in?" Kung Peng is the "Communist official" referred to in dispatches. She is the soft spoken daughter of a wealthy Shanghai family and is known from the Yellow sea to Tibet.

High on a cliff face, overlooking the Chialing river, in a little room furnished with wicker chairs and cuspidors, Kung gives a daily, informal press conference. There is another bigger room with secret Communist operational maps.

Three miles away at the south end of the street, down an alley, is the office of Gen. Kuo, the government spokesman. When the tea tumblers and rice bowls are removed, Gen. Kuo will unfold reams of rice paper giving detailed information and dispositions from the different war zones. The government may not recognize there's a war on in China, but it does make a point of studying the pages of intelligence reports received daily from the fronts.

PACIFIC TROOPS TO GET 70% OF AIR LINER SPACE

ODT to Order Set Aside from West Coast

Seventy per cent of the space on commercial air line flights originating at west coast port cities will be taken over next Sunday and thereafter by the military services to provide transport for returning Pacific veterans.

An order directing all commercial air lines to set aside such space will be signed in Chicago this week by J. Monroe Johnson, director of the office of defense transportation, it was learned yesterday.

The emergency action by ODT was made necessary by a strike that has been in progress since Sept. 25 at the plant of the Simmons company at Kenosha, Wis., which has a contract to supply berths and stanchions for troop sleepers built at the Michigan City plant of Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company.

Only 50 of 1,200 Ready

Only 50 of the 1,200 sleepers required to transport the returning veterans have been put into service thus far. Six hundred cars on which construction work has been completed are standing idle waiting for equipment from the strikebound Simmons plant. All efforts to end the strike called by the Federal Union of Simmons Employes [AFL] have been unsuccessful. The union is demanding a 25 per cent wage increase.

Officials of western railroads said yesterday the strike has made it impossible for the carriers to carry out their plans for transporting troops from the west coast. The condition became so desperate that before the emergency action was decided upon by ODT the railroads were attempting to get the army to install army cots in the unequipped troop sleepers. This plan may still be carried out, railroad spokesmen said.

To Carry 30,000 a Month

Air line officials said that they will provide transport for about 900 men daily, or nearly 30,000 a month, under the ODT order. The order is expected to remain in effect for an indefinite period. The war time priorities system for plane travel was terminated only a month ago.

The present order does not revive that system, but directs that the military services be given 70 per cent of the available space. The remaining 30 per cent will be sold to civilians on a first come, first served basis. Without this set aside order the air lines have been unable to meet public demand for reservations.

It was explained that certain flights will be taken over entirely by military personnel. The order does not mean that 70 per cent of the space on each plane will be reserved, but that overall ratio must be maintained by each commercial air line.

United, American, TWA, and Northwest and the other major lines are affected. The port cities at which troops are arriving daily are Seattle, San Francisco, and Los Angeles.

Seventy-five per cent of all sleeper equipment on the railroads is now specifically allocated for military use. Military personnel also uses a substantial part of the remaining facilities nominally available for civilian use.

U.S. TO REOPEN TRAIN SERVICE WITH BERLIN

Plans an 18 Hour Run from Frankfurt

BY HENRY WALES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Germany, Nov. 17—Regular passenger railway service between Frankfurt and Berlin will be reëstablished on Tuesday, when the United States army begins operating trains twice a week.

Establishment of rail service became necessary during the last month, when weather conditions prevented flying to Berlin for as much as a week at a time. The grounding of planes also held up mail service.

Since Oct. 15 the army has operated trains twice weekly from Frankfurt to Helmstedt on the border of the Russian zone, where passengers are transferred to jeeps and cars for the 85 mile trip to Berlin. This method also resulted in numerous delays caused by Russian sentries examining travel orders. Frequently, Russians unable to read credentials written in English, turned passengers back.

Up to now the Russians had forbade American passenger trains to operate over the Helmstedt-Magdeburg-Berlin line because it is single tracked—the Red army having torn up and shipped the second set of rails back to the soviet union.

Altho the signal system is not yet reorganized for single track operations, German railroad men have informed the American army that they can operate trains on a seven hour schedule between Helmstedt and Berlin. Frate trains, carrying army supplies, will negotiate the trip in 12 to 15 hours.

The run from Frankfurt to Helmstedt requires 11 hours. Before the war the de luxe Nord express ran from Paris to Berlin in 16 hours.

The army will send mail via the new train service as soon as postal cars can be obtained from the German railways.

The trains will carry two sleepers, two coaches, a diner, and a baggage car.

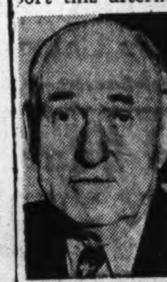
CHRISTEN FIRST LONDON ROUTE AIR LINER TODAY

Mrs. Kelly to Name Craft Departing Tomorrow



James McVittie

Chicago will become a world airport this afternoon when Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, wife of the mayor, cracks a bottle of champagne across the nose of a C-54 Skymaster and christens it "Chicago." Within range of the spattering bubbles will be representatives of business and civic interests hailing the occasion as the dawn of a new age in the city's growth.

Flagship of American Airlines, the Chicago will fly from Chicago airport tomorrow on the first trip of regular scheduled service to London. Among the passengers will be Mayor Kelly, bearing greetings to Ireland and England; his son, Joseph, 19, and James McVittie, Chicago business man, who has flown first flights since the Graf Zeppelin first crossed the ocean.

Four Flights Over City

Numerous citizens will participate in the ceremonies this afternoon. A group of specially invited guests will be given rides over the city in the new flagship. There will be four flights of half an hour each. Others will be shown thru the plane as purchasers of $25 Victory bonds sold thru arrangement with Marshall Field & Co.

Ceremonies will take place at the 54th st. gate on Cicero av. at 3 p. m. Mayor Kelly will be introduced by Lewis King, vice president of American Airlines, who will direct the program. C. R. Smith, chairman of the board of American, also will speak. Mrs. Kelly, whose christening experience includes sponsorship of the cruiser Chicago, will commission the plane.

Departure tomorrow morning is set for 9:45 a. m. Take-off will be from in front of the national guard hangar at 5400 W. 63d st., which has been adapted for the time being for use as an international station.

Stop in Newfoundland

From Chicago, the route to London lies over Newfoundland. A refueling stop is scheduled at Gander, where a field was laid out in a timbered flat for the use of bombers being ferried to England during the war. Gander is 1,700 miles from Chicago and flight time is estimated at 7 hours and 45 minutes.

The Chicago is a new version for commercial use of one of the sturdy transport planes that flew over the Himalaya mountains from India to China during the war. It is fitted with reclining chairs for 20 passengers. The crew consists of a captain, a first officer, navigator, flight engineer, radio operator, purser, and stewardess. Miss Lucille Schroeder, of Chicago, a registered nurse and a graduate of American hospital, will be the stewardess. She has been a flight stewardess seven years.

BOLSTERS PLEA TO DEPRESS I. C. ROAD IN 71ST ST.

Ald. Bohling [7th] added new arguments yesterday to his petition before the Illinois commerce commission for an order to compel the Illinois Central railroad to depress its tracks along 71st st. between Dorchester and Exchange avs. and along Exchange av. between 71st and 87th sts.

In an amendment to the petition which he filed last month, Bohling yesterday pointed out that 71st st. and Exchange av. in the vicinity of the tracks are business districts with a heavy flow of traffic.

The South Shore and South Chicago areas involved have 17 schools, and many of the children must walk across the Illinois Central grade crossings four times a day, Bohling said. The guard gates sometimes fail to operate properly, his amendment charged. Assistant Corporation Counsel James J. Danaher also signed the amended petition, which was filed by Saul A. Epton, an assistant attorney general acting as attorney for Bohling.

4 FIREMEN SENT TO HOSPITAL BY FUMES IN BLAZE

Four firemen of engine company 77 at 1226 S. Komensky av. became ill yesterday after extinguishing a small fire in a flat building at 4321 Flournoy st., which involved a quantity of percussion caps.

Thomas Maguire, 48, of 1650 S. Karlov av., and Martin Havecan, 48, of 5510 W. Jackson blvd., were held in St. Anthony's hospital for observation overnight. Lt. George Kaplanek, 40, of 1250 N. Pine av., and George Mackowiak, 35, of 5203 S. Troy st., were returned to their quarters after receiving treatment at the hospital.

The fire was in the flat of Hyman Ostrowsky, 44, a fireworks jobber, who told police he was taking the percussion caps to South Carolina, but put them in the house while his car was being repaired. Chief R. J. Howe of the 2d battalion estimated damage at $200.

REPORTS HUSBAND, $2,000 MISSING

Mrs. Rose Finkelberg, 4234 N. Campbell av., notified police yesterday that her husband, Louis, has been missing since Aug. 26 when he vanished from their home with $2,000, a diamond ring, and his coast guard discharge papers.

AMERICAN AIRLINES SYSTEM

ANNOUNCES

FIRST AIR SERVICE

CHICAGO to LONDON

Monday, November 19, at 9:45 a.m., American Airlines System inaugurates new schedules offering commercial airline service for passengers, mail and express, direct from Chicago to London. For the first time, it is now possible for travelers to board a transportation vehicle in Chicago, and travel in the same vehicle all the way to Europe! American takes the direct route—from Chicago to Gander (Newfoundland), Shannon (Eire) and London.

For the immediate future, transatlantic Flagships will leave Chicago each Monday, with return flights leaving London at 6:00 p. m. each Tuesday to arrive in Chicago Wednesday evening. Additional overseas flights on American Airlines System will be scheduled as the receipt of more aircraft makes them possible.

All of our flights will be operated with four-engine, DC-4 transports, famous for their efficiency and dependability during the war. DC-4's were flown around the world by the Air Transport Command, serving most theatres of war; today, this same type of plane is bringing home an average of 50,000 troops per month from overseas. American Airlines System pilots and crews have made thousands of flights back and forth across the Atlantic since 1942 for commercial and military service.

Stewardess and purser service and meals without extra charge will be provided. Priorities for passengers are no longer required.

THE NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL ROUTE OF THE FLAGSHIPS

BULGARIA VOTES TODAY DESPITE PROTEST BY U. S.

Note Says Single Slate Bars Democracy

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Nov. 17 (AP)—Bulgarians will ballot tomorrow for a single slate of Fatherland Front candidates in their first national assembly elections since the war, despite a note from the United States government disapproving the elections and a new appeal from the opposition for postponement.

Ignoring the note which was based upon findings by Mark Ethridge, Louisville, Ky., publisher, and a letter in which opposition leaders warned of "heavy consequences" if the elections were held, the government asked all supporters of the Fatherland Front to come out and vote for its national assembly slate.

Postponed Once

"All rumors for postponement of the elections are coming from suspicious sources," a government statement said. "The elections will be held and the will of the people will be expressed in a full way Nov. 18."

The elections in soviet occupied Bulgaria, originally scheduled Aug. 26, were postponed once after the United States and Britain had protested that all democratic elements would not be able to participate. The opposition letter to Premier Georgiev asking for a further postponement predicted "heavy consequences for the Bulgarian people—at home and abroad—if the elections are held."

"We, led by the supreme interest of the people, are addressing a last warning to you that the elections must be postponed in order to give the Bulgarian people the possibility in real free elections to express their will," the letter said. "If you will not do that the historical responsibility before the people and the state rests on you."

Threats Cited

Maynard Barnes, United States political representative in Bulgaria, delivered the United States note yesterday. There was no information that Britain had presented a similar note.

The American message said that while "an opportunity has been given for freer political expression" since last August, important democratic elements are excluded in the coming election by the single slate, and "moreover, there are indications that the free expression of popular will is being further restricted by threats of coercion and later reprisals."

"There is no reason to believe the result of an election conducted under such conditions will reflect the Bulgarian people's choice of a representative democratic government," it concluded.

End of Monarchy: Tito

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Nov. 16 [Delayed] (AP)—Marshal Tito told a press conference today that Sunday's Yugoslav election "means an end has been made of the monarchy."

The elections amounted to a resolute rejection of King Peter and any "return to the old state of affairs," he declared. "The people have said their last word. I think it would be best for the king to renounce his rights to the throne. It has been established that the monarchy may only damage Yugoslavia."

The election resulted in a heavy vote for the candidates of Tito's national front, the only candidates presented to the electorate.

Portugal Votes Today

LISBON, Portugal, Nov. 17 (AP)—Portugal's voters go to the polls tomorrow with no alternative but to indorse the strong-arm regime of Premier de Oliveira Salazar.

In an election proclaimed as free and obviously a bid for the return of Portugal to the good graces of the united nations, not a single candidate opposes the 19 year old dictatorship.

MANY WELCOME CHANCE TO SEND GIFTS TO YANKS

Patients Will Be Listed in 21 Hospitals

BY HARRY McCLAIN

Great personal satisfaction over being enabled to supply Christmas cheer to wounded and sick service men in army and navy hospitals has been expressed by many among the thousands of Tribune readers who have declared their intention to send gifts again this year.

These readers already have requested that names of hospitalized service men be sent to them as soon as available so they may shop for their gifts early and mail before the last-minute holiday rush.

To obtain the name of a service man to whom a gift may be sent it is necessary only to clip the coupon appearing in an adjoining column and mail with a stamped, addressed envelope to the Friend of the Yanks, Chicago Tribune, 435 Michigan av.

10 States to Be Included

The Friend of the Yanks will obtain the names of every army, navy, and marine corps patient in 21 hospitals located in 10 middle western and central states. Two of the army hospitals are in Chicago and the navy hospital is at Great Lakes. Others are in Galesburg, Ill., Battle Creek, Mich., Clinton, Ia., Lincoln, Neb., Sioux Falls, S. D., Fort Riley and Salina, Kas., Springfield, Fort Leonard Wood, and Camp Crowder, Mo., Louisville, Ky., Camp Atterbury, Ind., Cleveland and Cambridge, O.

Requests for service men's names have been received by the Friend of the Yanks from 29 states. So far as possible patients' names will be sent to readers closest to the hospital in which they are being treated.

Checks Not Accepted

A number of persons have sent generous checks to the Friend of the Yanks with requests that the money be used for the Christmas gift fund. These checks have been returned with a request that the readers send gifts directly to the service men at their hospital address.

Names of the patients will be obtained by the Friend of the Yanks in the first few days of December and passed on to readers immediately upon receipt. Requests for names will be filled in the order received.

Vaughan Hospital Aids Will Be Honored Today

Approximately 1,500 persons who have taken part in the equipping, operation, and maintenance of Vaughan General hospital at Hines will be guests of Brig. Gen. Percy J. Carroll, commanding general of the hospital, at a reception at the post gymnasium today at 3:30 p. m. Seven hundred volunteer Red Cross workers, Gray Ladies, Nurses' Aids, and members of the canteen and motor corps will be honored.

3-GUN OUTLAW ELUDES POSSE IN OKLAHOMA HUNT

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 17 (AP)—Matt Kimes, 39, last of the bandit chieftains who terrorized the southwest a score of years ago, was sought tonight in this area's biggest recent manhunt.

The FBI charged that Kimes used a leave from the state penitentiary where he was serving two life terms for murder to engineer the $17,000 robbery of the First State Bank of Morton, Tex., last Sept. 5.

All were cautioned by D. A. Bryce, head of the FBI here and nationally known quick draw artist, to use care if they met up with the fagitive.

Bryce said Kimes was sporting two six shooters and a 30-30 caliber rifle at last reports.

As word went out Kimes was wanted, veteran peace officers, many with scores to settle with the one time leader of an outlaw gang specializing in bank robberies, oiled their guns and took up the hunt.

PORTLAND MAN MADE HEAD OF MUNICIPAL BODY

Mayor Earl Riley, of Portland, Ore., was elected president, and Mayor Woodall Rodgers, of Dallas, Tex., was elected vice-president of the American Municipal association yesterday at the closing session of its convention in the Congress hotel.

The 300 delegates approved resolutions requesting the government to initiate a system within the allied nations organizations for the international control, inspection, and development of atomic energy, and for the expenditure of as much money on social scientific research as was spent on the atomic bomb.

The city officials also urged that federal grants for airports should be made directly to cities, instead of being channeled thru the states. They called upon the government to declare a definite policy concerning proposed federal expenditures on public works.

SPUR RESEARCH ON MECHANICAL LIMBS FOR VETS

A mechanical wrist that will rotate and a metal knee that will carry weight even when bent are among developments which are sought in engineering and medical research to improve artificial limb equipment for disabled veterans, Dr. Paul E. Klopsteg, chairman of the National Research council's committee on prosthetic devices, said yesterday at Northwestern university.

Dr. Klopsteg, director of research at the technogolical institute at Northwestern, said contracts totaling $500,000 have been awarded by his committee for the government, and estimated that an additional $600,000 a year should be spent on research for the next three or four years.

The committee was organized last March at the request of the surgeon general of the army. Inventions which result will be available to all manufacturers of artificial limbs supplied to veterans by the government.

No more outings for Anne . . .

she's a "FURNACE WIDOW"

Meet Anne, the furnace widow. While others shop, she shovels. While others attend parties, she tends fires. And the sad part of it is that her sacrifice can't even be justified on the grounds of economy. For now that Fairbanks-Morse stokers are back in production, automatic coal heating actually costs less than hand firing.

That's right! Fairbanks-Morse stokers make it cheaper to enjoy the freedom of mechanical firing and automatic temperature control than to act as your own janitor.

(1) You save first costs because it takes only a few hours to install a Fairbanks-Morse stoker in connection with your heating plant.

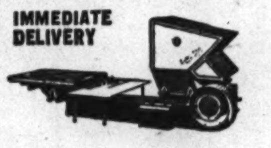
(2) You save heating costs because you switch from premium fuels to the BTU rich, economical sizes of coal.

(3) You save fuel waste because you avoid the expensive discomfort of stop-and-go firing.

Fairbanks-Morse is turning out stokers as fast as present conditions permit. Place your order now for delivery at earliest possible date. To help you, the dealers handling Fairbanks-Morse stokers in this area are listed below. Check the nearest one and get in touch with him today. Fairbanks, Morse & Co., Fairbanks-Morse Bldg., Chicago 5, Ill.

The ideal stoker for small homes. 25 lbs. per hr. capacity. Ask for the Model B25.

To eliminate all coal handling, choose the model B. F. Two capacities: 25 lb. and 50 lb. per hr.



IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

Big buildings, apartment or commercial, should use the model N4. 500 and 675 lbs. per hr. capacity.

THE FATALITY OF TOO MUCH TALK

The Indonesian appeal to Russia to intervene to protect native liberty may seem ironic, but so is the whole procedure in Asia. It's a wonder the soviet union did not respond and protest to the British and the Dutch that their conduct in blowing up the populace by land, sea, and air was not consistent with the well known war aims of the fighters for freedom. There has been much objection to Russia's treatment of peoples falling under its domination. The opportunity to try the shoe on some one else might have been welcomed by Comrade Molotov in the apparent retirement of Comrade Stalin.

When Mr. Attlee, the British prime minister, made his speech of elevating sentiments to congress the contradictions and incongruities seemed to tower behind him grinning and mocking. From a less respectful audience some sharp jibes could have been expected. And yet Mr. Attlee must be assumed to be an honest and responsible man who when he talks nonsense is not conscious of it and is sincere when he seems to prove that he could not be.

The subjects of the colonial world have taken the declarations of the subscribers to the Atlantic Charter and its subsequent elaboration at full value. The subscribers now want to settle for about ten cents on the dollar. Mr. Roosevelt's enjoyment in phrase making was not properly understood the world around. He inherited and improved Mr. Wilson's gift for pious thundering. Mr. Churchill's endeavors to enter some exceptions and reservations were honest, but they did little to moderate the verbosity of virtue which was fairly shot from the cannon's mouth. Peoples who have been ruled for generations, if not centuries, by the descendants of the private enterprisers and gentlemen adventurers, who used stout ships and large guns to win trade, trade ports, and territory, listened to the thundering of words and thought their opportunity had come. The owners' association made so many pretenses of reform in thinking and changed habits that native revolutionaries thought they were at last justified in looking forward to some of the political profits inherent in the life of freedom.

The unrest might have followed the war, even if it hadn't been so gravely agitated by the mourners' bench promises of the white proprietors, urged on by their great American friend. The only country which didn't completely lose face in the Pacific war between the Japanese and the whites was the United States. And the United States had already made good on its promises to the only people under its rule, the Filipinos. The darker colored peoples observed that the winning white nation was willing to carry out its pledge of complete independence and they probably saw no reason, in view of the pledged faith of other colony holding nations, why they should not have the same privileges.

Such a war as the one recently fought and the one which preceded it naturally produce a great deal of righteous thought as war medicine and an exalted state of mind among the noncombatants. There never, however, has been so much reckless extravagance in words as was used to obscure the real purposes of the belligerents against Germany, Japan, and Italy. There was apparently no regard whatever for the consequences of such unlimited profession of good will and for the establishment of a brotherhood of men, all free, all equal, and all equally deserving of the good things of life. That was what was said every time the embattled rulers talked about their intentions.

As has been said, Mr. Churchill tried to discount some of this verbiage, but, nevertheless, it all got into the record and most of the others now want to forget it. As a result, what is called peace seems everywhere to be nothing but a continuation of the ruthless war, waged equally against submissive enemies and rebellious natives.

DISTRIBUTING LESS AND LESS TO MORE AND MORE

Mr. Truman sent a message to the foreign trade convention in which he said that "it is technically possible to produce enough material goods so that all men everywhere may be adequately fed, decently housed, and comfortably clothed," and that the only problem now is in the distribution of goods.

Just the other day Mr. Truman's civilian production administration announced that the automobile industry, bedeviled by strikes, wage negotiations, and inadequate supplies of essential materials, had turned out only 19,136 new passenger cars in the four months of July thru October, instead of the 72,740 cars forecast by production schedules. Production in this leading industry was therefore about 26 per cent of expectations.

On the same day that Mr. Truman was talking about the difficulties of distribution, production in the automobile industry received another major setback when General Motors corporation's Buick and Fisher Body plants in Flint, Mich., were shut down for lack of chassis frames. The shortage was attributed by an official of the Cleveland plant, where they are made, to a slowdown which a wage increase last month had failed to halt.

These facts are cited as evidence that Mr. Truman has achieved a personal reconversion much faster than has industry. He is worrying about distribution before he gets the production to distribute. To get production, the sage of Independence, Mo., would have to quit promising the moon to the unions, inject a little backbone into his department of labor, induce his henchmen in the CIO to quit sabotaging the nation's transition to a peace time economy, and liquidate some of the war agencies whose clutch on materials and prices is making it impossible for business to function.

When Mr. Truman was back of the counter in his haberdashery days he would have started to wonder what was the matter if he couldn't find goods for his shelves. Being in the White House seems to have made a difference.

HE MADE JOBS

A world-wide observance planned for 1947 of the centenary of Thomas Edison's birth has a few applications which may have escaped the attention of the organizing committee, which is headed by Charles F. Kettering, president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Edison will be honored as the great inventor he was. He should be honored also as an American who, perhaps above all others, put men to work.

Workers in a dozen basic industries can thank Edison for the opportunities he gave them to work, to earn, and to share in a high standard of living. Edison produced more than a thousand inventions. The incandescent bulb is the most familiar. But his work in communications, on business machines, motion pictures, the phonograph, improved dynamos and motors, the telephone transmitter, microphone, and on storage batteries, as well as the experimentation leading to the "Edison effect," which foreshadowed the radio tube, today give jobs to countless men and women.

After going to work at 12 as a railway newsboy, Edison was rewarded with lessons in telegraphy for having saved the life of a stationmaster's child. This was sufficient stimulus to awaken the spirit of scientific investigation in him, with results which have profoundly influenced modern civilization. Edison's inventions, of course, would have been fruitless if other men had not been willing to risk capital to perfect them and to make them available to the public, but the money was forthcoming.

We wonder where Edison and his backers would fit into the Truman-Wallace-CIO age of prosperity by slogan: "60 million jobs," "52 hours of take-home pay for 40 hours of work," "26 weeks of unemployment compensation at $25 a week," and "full employment by federal outlay." In these days, it seems, we need no Edisons and no risk capital. We just dump everything in the lap of Washington. Government makes the jobs, we simply forget the deficit, and those who formerly provided venture capital are given the privilege of paying out all of the nation's liquid corporate assets until they are finally gone. It was evil of them to have had spare cash to risk, anyway, the dirty capitalists!

ARMY CRIMES

The papers the other day published a dispatch from Berlin quoting the American provost marshal, Lt. Col. Gerald F. Beane, on the nature and extent of criminality in the American army of occupation. Col. Beane is, in effect, the chief of police of our army; his task is to deal with crimes committed by our soldiers.

Larceny and robbery, Col. Beane said, are the crimes most frequently committed by our soldiers. Rape presents no problem at all because "a bit of food, a bar of chocolate, or a bar of soap seems to make rape unnecessary."

As to the crimes against property, the explanation is fairly obvious. No effective steps were taken to discourage looting by the invading armies during the war. Officers and men alike committed this crime and for much the most part went unpunished. It was tolerated under some such euphemism as souvenir collecting. The habit of stealing, once formed, is difficult to break. The fault, of course, lies with the high command which permitted the abuse to develop. Col. Beane's pronouncement suggests that the army is tardily seeking to correct its error.

There is some comfort, perhaps, to be found in the information that American soldiers are not raping German women, but the reason assigned for this happy state of affairs is insulting to our men and wholly and utterly discreditable to our government. He says, in effect, that our boys aren't raping because there is no need to rape; the frauleins are so desperately hungry and so greatly in need of soap that many of them willingly barter their virtue for commodities our soldiers have in abundance.

We don't believe that the American soldiers in Europe would engage in wholesale rape under any circumstances, but we do believe, because we know it to be true, that German women and children are starving. We know, moreover, that this is no accident, but rather the result of a premeditated plan to which that great humanitarian, Mr. Roosevelt, gave his full assent. His successor, another church member, has not altered the original policy. The American government cannot avoid its full share of blame for the physical and moral degradation that are resulting. Any one who wishes to quote scripture to Mr. Truman will not lack for texts.

There is no proper place for an American army of occupation in Germany. Our tradition of malice toward none and charity for all, the tradition revealed at Appomattox and in the return of the Boxer indemnity, is the only one calculated to make for a lasting peace, but it cannot be applied in Germany because there we are in a minority. The believers in a rapacious peace are in the majority. In the circumstances the only decent course is to get our soldiers out before the moral and physical contamination spreads among them further than it has already.

HOW JAPAN WAGED WAR

[Following is an address delivered last night by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune, and broadcast on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N, WGNB, and the Mutual Broadcasting system.]

BY COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK

Let us now appraise the Japanese as warriors, note their achievements and their failures.

The Japanese navy was trained by the British navy and adopted all of its precepts, including attacks without a declaration of war. Baron Nelson of the Nile was elevated to the rank of Viscount Nelson of Copenhagen after such a surprise attack on the Danish fleet at Copenhagen in 1801. No turpitude was attached to the Japanese attack on the Russian fleet at Port Arthur in 1904. No turpitude was attached to the British fleet for its surprise attacks upon the fleets of its ally, France, in 1940.

The Japanese therefore were entirely unprepared for the bitter anger that was aroused in this country by their attack at Pearl Harbor.

The attack itself was delivered with great skill and determination, and employed torpedoes of greater power and under better control than any we had. They also got into Pearl Harbor two small submarines of a type that our navy did not know anything about.

The Japanese army was trained by the Germans in the belief in a bold and rapid offensive. After crippling the Russian fleet at Port Arthur in 1904, the Japanese had landed in force in Korea; had blockaded Port Arthur; and, leaving that fortress with a crippled but undestroyed fleet in its rear, had pushed vigorously thru Liaoyang and Mukden to the walls of Harbin and victory.

Leaving the American fleet on the bottom of Pearl Harbor, the Japanese rushed south. They sank the battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse the second day after Pearl Harbor, and three other ships, the Dorsetshire and the Cornwall, cruisers, and the Hermes, a carrier, somewhere near Ceylon, a few days later.

They took Hong Kong on Christmas day. By a series of amphibious landings, prepared by bombings, a maneuver originated by them, they drove British, colonial, and Indian troops pellmell into Singapore, and accepted their unconditional surrender on Feb. 15.

Of all of our pre-Pearl Harbor mistakes, the only excusable one was in expecting Singapore to make an adequate defense. It had been represented as impregnable. It was located on an island as large as Bataan and garrisoned by an army of 60,000 men. Its cowardly surrender released perhaps as many Japanese to join in the attack on Bataan and pursue the conquest of the southern Pacific.

After many checks by American and Filipino troops, the latter, largely untrained and all poorly armed, they received the surrender of Bataan on April 9 and Corregidor four weeks later.

Undeterred by this resistance, they overwhelmed the combined fleets under the Dutch Adm. Doorman and marched without check from island to island.

They appeared to be irresistible until they met Gen. MacArthur and Adm. Fletcher at Port Moresby, Lae, and Salamaua, and Adm. Halsey and Gen. Vandegrift at Guadalcanal.

The Japanese, however, had made several irredeemable mistakes. They made the mistake of attacking us at all. They made a second mistake in not hitting us hard enough. With most of the Pearl Harbor fleet on the bottom and its anti-aircraft guns largely destroyed and what little aviation there was on Pearl Harbor blasted to pieces, the Japanese could easily have completed the destruction of the fleet and docks and all repair facilities, delaying our recovery by that much.

A thoro reconnaissance would have found the Enterprise and Lexington, which they could have attacked with a superiority of six to two or if they found them separately—for they were separate—a superiority of six to one.

They could have destroyed the locks at Panama. They could have bombed our west coast ship yards. Their failure to do any or all of these things indicates an inability to depart from an established plan, even tho conditions upon which that plan was based had entirely changed.

Another mistake—apparently a small one but one which became fatal—lay in not taking Midway Island as Guam and Wake Islands had been taken. It would seem that they did not wish to anger us more in hope of a negotiated peace because our raids on Tokyo and other bases did not disturb them.

They forgot that their successful tactics in taking islands had furnished us a plan for retaking them. They shared the common error that ships could not compete with land batteries and failed to foresee the variety of ships and weapons we would bring against them.

Another technical surprise, as great to them as the successful use of torpedoes in Pearl Harbor had been to our navy, was our use of road-making machinery in constructing air fields. By the unforeseen rapidity of their construction they made possible a totally new form of tactics which the Japanese could not meet. They produced a new kind of blitzkrieg, entirely original in this war.

Another surprise for the Japanese was the PT fleet. These boats, 80 feet long, traveling at 50 miles an hour, carrying four torpedoes and machine guns of various sizes, were everywhere effective in the war.

At Guadalcanal they were always the night scouts and they also sometimes alone fought Japanese fleets. At Guadalcanal they sank one battleship, two destroyers, and other craft.

They located and attacked the Japanese fleet in Surigao strait, scoring two torpedo hits and losing one of their number.

During the war they sank more than half a million tons of enemy shipping of all kinds with the loss of 69 PT boats.

The Japanese naval indoctrination was that submarines should operate with a surface fleet. Acting on this theory, they successfully torpedoed and sank the aircraft carriers Yorktown and Wasp. They evidently thought that, with our battleship fleet on the bottom of Pearl Harbor, our submarines would be ineffective. They were soon undeceived by submarine attacks on their supply lines. With a loss of 59 American submarines, they accounted for nearly 1,200 Japanese ships of all types.

You will remember that they sank or damaged four heavy cruisers in the Strait of Mindoro. At other times they sank two battleships and several aircraft carriers. They were also of enormous help as scouts. It was submarines that gave our fleet notice of the ship movements in the Philippines in time for our navy to make preparations for the battle that destroyed the Japanese fleet.

AFTER 7,000 YEARS

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch]

Archaeologists' findings in Iraq, indicating that civilization began in 5000 B. C., were yesterday's news even when they happened. Today's news is all about the birth of uncivilization. Wuxtry. Nobody knows precisely when it began, but somewhere between the start of the first World war and the end of the second it has become an actuality.

Thanks to uncivilization, it is now possible to make everybody pay for anybody's folly. It is possible for stupidity and selfishness, hitherto rather negative qualities, to level cities, countries, populations, civilizations.

The dawn of uncivilization broke as a sullen red glowering on the horizon. No ashes or pottery such as fixed the date of civilization's start at 5000 B. C. need be pried into for clews. Any one need only pry into his own recollections of the last 25 years, even of the last five.

Nearly 7,000 years after civilization began, the best of us fear we cannot avoid being worse and more destructive than the worst and most destructive were in the days when our race were savages. Let the archaeologists examine their ashes and their odds and ends of pottery and unriddle that riddle for us.

"THE BEST IS YET TO BE"

LIFE can be sweet and it is the hope of most of us that we will remain on this mortal sphere long enough to enjoy our share of happiness. Unfortunately, there is so much to do and so little time that our ambitions are never quite realized. Many of us wonder if there is some way in which those extra decades can be added to complete our aspirations.

We might first ask ourselves, "How long should we live?" Currently, our expected span is between 62 and 63 years. This figure takes into consideration our military losses. The Bible, on the other hand, relates three score and ten as the standard. By comparative studies on animals we should by rights exceed the century mark. It is conceivable that this goal may be reached in the future by forestalling the aging process. Our present record was made possible by removing the hazards of childhood, including infectious diseases.

If we canvassed our oldsters the secret of their antiquity might be obtained. But this is not entirely satisfactory for many have broken all the laws of health and still survive. One thanks drinking for his longevity; another, teetotalism. Some were heavy cigar smokers or chewed on a plug since they were knee high to a grasshopper but their counterparts never touched tobacco. Each has his own story of success. The majority probably avoided excesses, ate sensibly, received adequate rest, and indulged in moderate exercise.

The principal element is heredity. If a person is from good "stock" and has a long line of ancestors who lived on and on, the chances are that he will follow suit. Barring accidents and unusual illnesses, our prospects are thus determined to a certain extent at conception.

This does not denote that regardless of personal habits, nothing can happen to shorten our days. Even the best motor cannot stand abuse in spite of the fact that repair is possible. The body has great recuperative powers and safety factors but, in the long run, small defects may offset the balance in trying situations.

In contrast, moderation is better than being an extremist on the safe side. It is questionable whether those who are ultra-careful have relished the additional years. The knowledge that people are being killed by automobiles should not keep us indoors. We must take some risks in life if we expect to reap its full benefits.

An analysis of the mortality rates of prominent men shows that many surpass the usual span. Most of these were hardworking individuals. It is true that had they not reached a ripe old age, eminence might not have been theirs. Nevertheless, toil in itself, except perhaps in certain hazardous occupations, does not lead to an early grave. Some actually thrive on it.

The average age of death of 248 cabinet members of the Presidents was 71.39; of 402 inventors, 70.96; of 249 college presidents, 70.11; of 413 state governors, 67.02; of 457 music composers, 66.59. On the other hand, in 213 hereditary European sovereigns, the rate was 49.14. These figures are interesting and open to considerable speculation. The man who first said "Work will never hurt you" was perhaps right.

OVERACTIVE GLANDS

T. Y. writes: What causes an excess of mucus thruout the system?

REPLY

Since this material is secreted by the mucous glands, an overabundance in the nose, mouth, and intestinal tract probably indicates irritation or infection.

BONE DISORDER

R. T. writes: Can an adult develop osteomyelitis?

REPLY

No age group is exempt, but children are more likely to become victims because they are so susceptible to injuries.

HEARTLESS

W. E. writes: What is meant by the term, "the heart is negative"?

REPLY

This implies that no disease can be found.

RED COLORING MATTER

O. P. writes: My hemoglobin is consistently 105 to 110. Will you explain the situation?

REPLY

This reading can be considered a high normal and should in no way cause symptoms.

BABY CRIES

Mrs. M. writes: My 7 weeks old baby is constantly crying. Will this stretch her mouth?

REPLY

There is no chance that this will occur, for big mouths are inherited, not acquired. Undoubtedly, however, this habit will stretch the patience of the family and neighbors. The cause should be investigated. Perhaps the formula needs changing.

CONCEALED CAUSE

F. G. writes: What is the unknown fever?

REPLY

None in particular, but a sickness cannot be labeled until the cause is discovered. There are some vague fevers that cannot be traced to a specific source.

BABY NIPPER

Mrs. T. writes: Will you please explain why my infant son likes to bite me?

REPLY

Maybe he is hungry. This habit of infancy is not uncommon and usually corrects itself. If not, it should be curbed by training.

AMERICANS KEEP OUT

MANILA, P. I., Oct. 22—The war is over, peace treaties are about to be signed, and our boys are going home. What are we going to do with these returning soldiers? What we need, is a new frontier, where those who have the pioneering spirit can carve out their own futures.

Fortunately such a new frontier does exist. It is west of the 180 meridian, where there are empty, undeveloped lands, such as Australia, Burma, New Guinea, Mindanao [P. I.], Timor, and Borneo. There also are backward countries, which need our modern inventions. Among these are China, Siam, Indo-China with its vast resources, and the Dutch East Indies. They could use the knowledge and experience of our boys to good advantage in the development of their vast areas.

In all these countries, however, as far as Americans are concerned, there is a "Keep Out" sign and a dog in the manger policy.

In 1940, my associates and I explored low grade gold placer deposits in central Borneo. After considerable expenditure, we decided to go ahead with several of the propositions. We were immediately confronted with the fact that there was no equal opportunity for Americans in the Dutch East Indies. The laws definitely stated that we would have to form a Dutch company; that 60 per cent of the directors would have to be Dutch; 60 per cent Dutch management, and the mineral properties we were contemplating acquiring would have to be purchased in the name of a Dutch citizen. We could put in all the capital we desired, but we had to adhere to the above laws, which applied, not only to Americans, but to Philippine citizens as well, in fact to every one, but Dutch nationals.

The same is true of Burma and the Malay states, which are under the control of Great Britain. I sent an exploration party into Burma and they found rich placer ground, but the laws were exactly the same as the Dutch laws—60 per cent of the directors, 60 per cent of the management, and the title, all had to be British. Again, an American citizen was denied equal opportunity.

While we Americans could not legally acquire and develop these Burmese placer grounds, 10,000 Chinese, ignoring all laws, swarmed over the territorial border, washed the gold out by hand, making enormous profits, and returned to China.

What is true of Burma, the Straits Settlements, and the Dutch East Indies, also is true of Siam, French Indo-China, Australia, and the mandated area of New Guinea. These countries know nothing of equal opportunity. They are like Japan, which forbade foreigners acquiring land in Japan, but almost created an international crisis when California objected to the purchase of large tracts of agricultural land by Japanese settlers.

Another case is Australia, with a population less than that of New York City. What Australia badly needs is people—people to develop her resources and industries, people to protect her when she is menaced by a relentless enemy. Yet in 1928-'31, when I was developing the Mount Isa Mines in northwest Queensland, for British capital, and was introducing what was, for Australia, a new system of mining, I was refused permission to bring in several hundred experienced American foremen and shift bosses, and was only allowed entry permits for 50, on the basis of instructors. These were not foreigners, or orientals, but white men, English speaking people, and yet Australia denied them access to an empty country, even tho they were coming for a legitimate purpose that would ultimately benefit Australia.

America has never refused opportunity to friendly aliens who sought the chance denied them in their own countries, and many of them have become valued and honored citizens of their adopted country.

Englishmen, Chinese, and nationals of other countries, including Japanese, also have come to the Philippines and acquired property, and been given an equal opportunity with Americans and Filipinos to make a success, but there is no reciprocity.

This was a war of liberation, not of conquest. As a democratic people, we believe in the broad principles of equality, and certainly among these should be prominently placed the principle that those who shed their blood to drive the invader from the orient and to restore occupied countries to their rightful owners, should be permitted equal opportunity to settle and build homes in those liberated countries as a partial reward for their sacrifices.

TIED UP FOR EIGHT WEEKS

GUIUAN, Samar, P. I., Nov. 1—Our vessel is one of approximately 18 merchant vessels in this port, fully loaded with construction equipment, that have been lying here week after week with absolutely no effort being made to unload us.

Altho our ship is a Liberty ship—the S. S. John McLean—it nevertheless has accommodations for 250 troops and at this time could play a more important role helping to bring home troops from this theater, than in its current role of a floating warehouse.

When one stops to realize that it costs over a thousand dollars a day to operate a vessel of this type, and that this figure can be multiplied eighteen fold for this port, and on the word of the local WSA director a similar situation exists in Manila and elsewhere, it can be seen that a sizable amount of the taxpayers' money is being needlessly squandered, not to mention any of the troops ashore who are chafing at the bit to get some after long overseas service in this theater.

We have lain idle in this port for eight weeks now without a move being made to unload us. At $1,000 a day, that has cost the public a tidy sum for us alone.

LOVEJOY'S PRESS

Alton, Ill., Nov. 7—In your issue of Nov. 7 you carried a brief account of the slaying of Elijah P. Lovejoy at Alton and the destruction of his press by the mob which killed him and made him the first martyr to freedom of speech and liberty of the press.

The press the mob wrecked the night they killed Lovejoy was thrown into the Mississippi river at the site of the warehouse where the press had been stored. About 30 years ago excavation was being made in what had been the river bed and the broken frame of the little hand press was found and identified by a trademark on the frame used by the Cincinnati press builder from whom it was bought. The frame was accepted by the State of Illinois as a state monument and was displayed in the open near the scene of the tragedy. It was subsequently given to the Alton Evening Telegraph, and for the last eight years has been displayed in the Alton Telegraph office as a sacred relic. The Telegraph's bound files, which are practically complete for 110 years, carried a brief story in the issue of Nov. 8, 1837, telling of the killing of Lovejoy.

PLEASED WITH TRIBUNE SERVICE

ALASKA, Oct. 24—For the last two years I have been in Canada and now am at Fort Richardson, Alaska. I have received, read, and donated The Tribune regularly to the reading rooms and service clubs for our boys in the army. Each copy is avidly read and reread a hundred or more times. It's the most popular stateside paper received here.

Some time back a slight change in A. P. O. caused loss of six weeks' editions. I explained this to The Tribune and every copy was again mailed to me. When I walked into the service club here with the bundle of replaced editions I never got to the table to lay them down.

News from back home is second only to letters. I take great pleasure in thanking The Tribune for its thoughtful, personal attention given me in my absence from the United States.

COMPARATIVE HARDSHIPS

Chicago, Nov. 8—According to The Tribune, "The latest government report on the cost of living showed an increase of 28 per cent between January, 1941, and April, 1945."

All these strikes have me wondering how come I have to manage on an allotment of $100 a month while the strikers can't on $50 to $100 a week. I wish some one would explain. I've had to pay the same prices as they did.

CORN IS NEW OWNER'S

Hinsdale, Ill., Nov. 14—I bought a small house on an acre of land in Illinois August of this year. The deal was closed and I moved in Oct. 1. One-third of the acre is planted in corn. My neighbor, who is anxious to buy the corn, claims that the people who planted and sold me the property still have the right to pick or sell the corn to whomever they want and that I have no right to it. There was no agreement of any kind made when I bought.

Your neighbor is mistaken. "Unless they are reserved or excepted, crops attached to the land at the time of a sale or conveyance of the land so far partake of the nature of realty that they pass to the purchaser by the sale or conveyance as appurtenant to the land." 66 C. J. 1038.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT

WHY WE INVADED

Chicago, Nov. 8—Mrs. Helen M. Danielson quotes from the report of the United States strategic bombing survey to the effect that bombing alone would have ended the war with Germany. Therefore, she asks, "WHY the necessity of the invasion and conquest of the European continent and subsequent needless, wanton casualties when bombing alone could so easily have brought about the German surrender?"

It has been reported that the German war industry was less than halved as a result of allied bombings. And, the German army was still intact and could be defeated only on the ground by use of ground forces. These two facts by themselves could easily have prolonged the European war for at least another year.

Consider also these facts: German military science was on the verge of developing completely revolutionary new weapons, for instance, trans-Atlantic V-2 rocket bombs and, by all reports, only about six months distant from the discovery and development of atomic power for use as a weapon of war.

Our air forces were incapable of dealing effectively with such situations. They could not even totally bomb out and destroy the coastal launching sites for the German "V" weapons.

It is safe to assume then that these and hundreds of contributing factors made the invasion and ground fighting an imperative necessity.

Robert A. Bobbitt

WAR WAGES AND WAR COSTS

Wilmette, Ill., Oct. 31—In a war production is the all important factor, with price last. Therefore, production at any cost was the keynote. The result was that costs were from one-third to three times what we would be willing to or could pay for similar products with our personal funds. We, the government, allowed all labor costs, all material costs, overhead, and a reasonable profit when checking to determine the price to be paid the producer. Under this method of arriving at selling prices unskilled and only partly trained workers could be, and were, paid two to three times as much as we are willing to contribute when buying their products for our personal peace time use. An example: We as a nation at war paid from $1.50 to $2 a pound for tanks and trucks. In peace times, we as individuals buy tractors, trucks, and autos for 25 cents to 35 cents a pound. And this includes middlemen's handling costs and profit margins, which are not an item of cost in war contracts. Raise these prices and we will stop the kind of volume buying which made us the leading producers of the world.

H. W. writes: "I have been honorably discharged from service and am getting compensation for 60 per cent disability. I was self-employed prior to entering service and expect to return to some line of business that will fit in with my disability. While shopping for this business opportunity can I draw the $20 weekly unemployment compensation in addition to my disability compensation?"

No. To be eligible for the $20 weekly unemployment compensation a veteran must be registered for a job with the United States employment service, must be able to work, must be unable to obtain suitable employment or must attend training classes as directed by USES. In your case you are not looking for a job, but are looking for opportunity for self-employment. After you have become self-employed you may become entitled to benefits up to $100 a month if the net return of your business does not equal this sum. This monthly benefit, good for 12 months, is paid by the veterans' administration on the basis of the net return from the business for the preceding month. If the return from the business was $50 you would be entitled to $50 from the government. If self-employed in business your disability compensation would not be counted in reckoning your monthly net income. Self-employed veterans who seek benefits pending firm establishment of their businesses must submit their books to the veterans' administration for inspection.

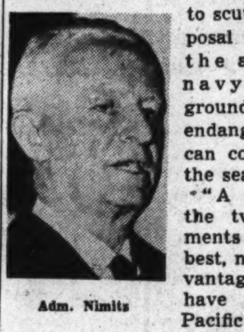
NIMITZ URGES CONGRESS: DROP MERGER PLAN

Pacific Admiral Admits He Has Changed Mind

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP)—Adm. Nimitz urged congress today to scuttle its proposal to merge the army and navy on the ground it would endanger American command of the seas.



Adm. Nimitz

"A merger of the two departments means, at best, no more advantages than we have now," the Pacific fleet commander told the senate military affairs committee. "At worst, it means that the navy, and the command of the seas so vital for our country, will suffer."

Backs Forrestal Plan

Rather than a merger, he indorsed Navy Secretary Forrestal's proposal for creation of a national security council composed of the secretaries of state, war, and navy.

"As a means of getting the services together," he said, "this would seem to be more workable and in its way, more far reaching—since the state department would be included—than an uncertain merging of the two existing military departments or the addition of a third."

The frosty haired sea fighter faced the committee members squarely.

Offers a Yardstick

"I have come to the conclusion," he said, "that the yardstick by which we should measure any proposal to merge the armed services is: How does it affect our sea power?

"Our country is dependent on seapower for its external influence. If we control the sea-lanes, we have influence. If not, we are limited to the boundaries of our country."

Nimitz admitted freely that his current stand on unification is at odds with his testimony before a joint chief of staff committee in late 1944. At that time, he came out flatly for a single department of national defense.

His Viewpoint Today

He told the senators today:

"I now believe that the theoretical advantages of such a merger are unattainable, whereas the disadvantages are so serious that it is not acceptable."

The admiral said he had no apologies for reversing himself—he had found it necessary to change his mind about several operations in the Pacific war and he hoped he retained the ability to readjust himself to new conditions.

Sen. Hill [D., Ala.] asked if he had any objection to having the previous testimony published in the committee record.

"No objection whatever," Nimitz said, and it was ordered printed.

Subject of Inconsistency

Acting Chairman Edwin C. Johnson assured the witness it wasn't necessary to make any explanations to congressmen about consistency—"we are kindred souls in that matter."

Hill inquired whether, in the event congress decided upon unification, Nimitz and the navy would "support it and try to make it work."

"Absolutely," the admiral answered.

All the fanfare of a top drawer congressional hearing confronted Nimitz as he strode into the hearing room flanked by three admirals. Spectators craned for a glimpse of him. A battery of movie cameras whirred and "still" photographers crouched for angle shots. None of it seemed to bother Nimitz.

He stood erect in front of three microphones for nearly two hours, reading his lengthy prepared statement, then answering senators' questions.

HUSBAND FAILS TO APPEAR; DROP ADULTERY CASE

An adultery charge against Mrs. Dorothy Sandberg, 38, of 1216 26th st., Wilmette, was dismissed yesterday by Justice of the Peace Alonzo Coburn in Wilmette police court. Her husband, Harold L., director of the American Medical association's cooperative medical advertising bureau, did not appear to prosecute.

Mrs. Dorothy Sandberg

Mrs. Sandberg's attorney, Richard Devine, told Justice Coburn that she took refuge with a neighbor after Sandberg beat her Nov. 7. She returned to her home last Wednesday, after Sandberg had reported her missing, and was arrested, Devine said.

Judge Frank M. Padden of Superior court on Friday enjoined Sandberg against molesting his wife who has a divorce suit pending.

BOY ON BIKE HURT BY AUTO

GI, HOME, FINDS WIFE AND SON DEAD IN STORM

Parshall, N. D., Nov. 17 (AP)—Corp. William S. Myers returned home yesterday from overseas and learned that his wife and son had died a week before in a North Dakota snow storm.

The frozen bodies of Mrs. Myers, 24, and their son, Everett, 3, were found yesterday in the Missouri river foothills country of the Elbowoods Indian reservation.

The bodies were a mile from where Mrs. Myers apparently had abandoned her automobile and tried to walk to shelter.

GIs ON FURLOUGH SHOP FOR FOLKS; LOOK FOR WIVES

Skating and Yachting Also Get a Play

BY ANNE BRUYERE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Nov. 17—Wife hunting, Christmas shopping, ice skating, and yachting are among the things that Chicagolanders enjoy doing most on the current whirl of furloughs in Scotland, England, North Wales, Switzerland, and the French Riviera.

"We had a swell time skiing in our shirt sleeves," said Maurice Sheehan, Rockford, Ill., at 62 pointer, who returned to Paris today after a 10 day trip to Davos, Switzerland, high in the Alps overlooking Austria and Italy. "The sun was shining, food was plentiful, and the Swiss were wonderful to us. We even slept on feather mattresses a yard high."

Most GIs are eager to visit Switzerland because Uncle Sam puts up $45 for expenses and Yanks are allowed to spend $35. The exchange of 25 Swiss francs to a dollar is favorable as there is no inflation there.

Switzerland Is Favorite

"Everybody buys gold watches," Sheehan revealed. "I got a 17 jewel beauty for $15. I saw pure silk, full fashioned hose for five Swiss francs, smart leather, hand-turned shoes for 10 francs, a damask tablecloth for 22 francs, an eight day clock for 15 francs, a self-winding watch for 25 francs, a box of pure linen embroidered handkerchiefs for five francs, and monogrammed bath towels for two francs."

All the GIs agreed that their furlough in Switzerland was used to buy Christmas presents for the folks back home.

"We like Switzerland best," Sheehan added, "because our money lasted longer and everybody urged us to eat fresh fruit, cheese, butter, ice cream sundaes with nuts, and other things we haven't tasted since we left home."

Other Chicagoland visitors in Switzerland were American Red Cross girls, Dorothy Deakun, 777 May av., Calumet City, Ill., and Jane Holster Martin, 572 Second av., Aurora, Ill.

Old College Friends

"I was surprised to see many friends from the University of Illinois on the trip," one of the girls said. "Among them were Donald Koelin, Lansing, Ill., who is stationed in Germany; Lou Kowalsky, 2635 Rice st., Chicago, who works at Metz, and Walter Pajak, 154th st., Calumet City, Ill., who came from Marseille.

"We were enchanted with lovely dolls, music boxes, and exquisite woodcraft priced at one Swiss franc. We got a two pound box of chocolates for three francs and a bottle of Scotch for three francs. Night clubs were equally inexpensive. The music was lovely and the people were charming. What I enjoyed most was seeing American officers and enlisted men being buddies."

Sgt. Earl Thompson, 5930 Emerald av., Chicago, went on a furlough to Llandudno, North Wales. He thought the lassies there picturesque but without the class of good fun of American girls, so he said he will wait until he gets home to choose a bride. T/4 Laurence J. Mitchell, of 9017 Muskegon av., Chicago, who is of Irish descent went to Dublin where he met Ita Stanley, 19. He said they intend to be married soon.

Praise for Belgium

Pvt. Robert Payette, 4942 Fulton st., Chicago, and Corp. John King, 262 E. Highland av., Elgin, Ill., like the English accent and reserve best of anything in Europe. John, a 71 pointer, was on his way home by air yesterday. Besides England, he visited the Scottish highlands.

Playing baccarat and the yacht races at Monte Carlo most fascinated Staff Sgt. Justin J. Boyd, 12608 Elm st., Blue Island, Ill., who said the weather was fine and the bouillabaisse delicious.

Pvt. C. E. Sutton, Springfield, Ill., liked Belgium most.

"The people there are really grateful for what the Yanks have done for the world and show it in a big way," he said. "They insisted on having GIs over to dinner every evening and gave us the best wines and food they had. We greatly enjoyed the Belgian hop which kept us swinging and jumping all the time, even more so than in boogey woogey, the Samba or the Conga."

WOMAN, 86, HURT IN FALL, DIES

Mrs. Abbie Crozier, 86, of 4616 N. Wolcott av., who suffered a fractured hip Nov. 9 when she fell while getting out of bed, died in Ravenswood hospital yesterday.

The South Welcomes Them.

THE postwar readjustment period will bring new blood to the South. Many young men from other sections who received their training in southern camps will return and make their permanent homes in the South.

They have discovered the South. They were charmed by the South's congenial climate and the quiet, easy manners of its people. They saw with their own eyes fertile lands that will produce a variety of year-round crops. They saw in the pasture lands, which provide green grazing two-thirds of the year, wonderful dairying possibilities.

They were impressed by the fact that egg production and poultry raising are at the peak in midwinter when these products of the farm are at the lowest ebb in the colder climates.

UP AND DOWN THE COAST LINE

golden harvest from the egg and poultry industry, is 3,000 miles from the big markets of the east, while the average distance from the South to these markets is less than a thousand miles. Quick transportation will put fresh vegetables on eastern dinner tables 24 hours after the vegetables are gathered.

Every acre of fertile land in the South is an inexhaustible diamond mine, but the diamonds are in the form of rich sub-soils which will produce a variety of crops twelve months in the year.

Today the South is the brightest and most promising section of the nation. In an economic sense, the South has turned its face away from the past and is viewing the future with hope and confidence.

The South will welcome these young men who have the vision to recognize and appreciate its possibilities. * * *

VENEZUELA LAND OF OIL, RICHES AND HIGH TARIFF

Cost of Living Twice That of Chicago

BY STANLEY JOHNSTON

[Chicago Tribune correspondent who has just returned from a tour of Central and South America.]

Venezuela is one the most expensive places in the world in which to live. It is also one of the oddest.

Swift development of the country's vast oil resources by American and British companies enriched the nation. In the cities the standard of living went up. So did the cost, which is now two and a half times higher than in Chicago.

One reason is a tariff which is imposed on the food Venezuela eats, the clothes it wears, the furnishings it puts into its homes, and the automobiles it drives.

The import duties, which are among the highest in the world, originally were designed to encourage industry and help finance the government. However, the shortage of skilled labor hindered the rapid development of industry other than oil. Agriculture has long been the principal occupation of a fifth of the total population of 4,000,000. Agricultural development has been slow largely because of the sparse rural population and the high wages offered particularly by the oil producers.

Bread 47 Cents a Loaf

Today a loaf of bread costs 47 cents. A pound of cheap meat with bone included is quoted at 65 cents a pound. Without the bone it costs 93 cents a pound. Tomatoes are 60 cents a pound and milk is 24 cents a quart. A small can of asparagus can be purchased for $1.55. Sausage is 93 cents a pound and eggs sell for 8 cents each.

The equivalent of a $1.50 dinner in a Chicago restaurant is priced at $5. A suit of clothes, worth $30 in the United States, costs $70. For $2,000 one can buy an automobile which sells for $900 in the United States. An apartment worth $60 in Chicago rents for $100 in Caracas, Venezuela's capital. Hotels charge $12 a day for a room.

Highest Latin America Income

To meet this high cost of living United States government employes receive an allowance of 60 per cent of their salaries. Some commercial firms pay as high as 100 per cent.

Venezuela's annual national income is the highest of any Latin American country. It averages $200 per person. [Per capita income in the United States for 1944 was $1,117]. Most of the money is concentrated in the cities. Thus the sole buyers of imported luxuries are the inhabitants of the four largest cities, Caracas [pop. 266,706], Maracaibo [pop. 135,582], Valencia [54,037] and Maracay [30,051.]

There are only 22,000 telephones in Venezuela, 150,000 radios, 38,420 motor vehicles, 5,243 schools, 30 daily newspapers, 25 broadcasting stations, and 229 motion picture theaters. These advantages are enjoyed chiefly in urban centers. In the wild hinterlands the people—Indians, Negroes, and those of mixed European and Indian blood—still live primitively.

Venezuela, economists point out, got rich too quickly and was unable to keep pace with changed conditions. Government critics contend that past administrations spent the money unwisely. They say that instead of concentrating on the building of roads, schools, and hospitals in the rural areas, the government embarked on a program to beautify the cities.

Spends Millions for Beauty

Tho some schools were erected and medical facilities for dwellers in agricultural areas were improved, most of the money went into the building of "avenidas," glossy apartments for governmental employes and other white collar workers and fancy government structures.

The government of former President Isaias Medina alone spent 100 million dollars for city beautification.

Government employes have multiplied six times in the last eight years.

U.S. Envoy to Come Home from Belgium and Resign

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Nov. 17 (AP)—United States Ambassador Charles Sawyer said tonight he would leave for home next week, but was not certain whether he would seek nomination as United States senator from Ohio. As his last official act as ambassador to Belgium, Sawyer accepted a doctor's degree from Brussels university on behalf of the late President Roosevelt. He plans to resign the ambassadorship.

BRITAIN'S LABOR REGIME SPORTS 7 SCHOOL TIES

'Old Guard' Clings to 13 High Posts

BY JAMES SLOAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 9 [By air mail]—A British wag, commenting on the hold the "old school tie" had on the many Conservative governments that ruled Britain until unseated by the Laborites in the elections last July, remarked that "the Old Guard may dye, but it never surrenders."

Election of a Labor regime, which appealed to class-conscious voters by condemning the products of England's ultra-exclusive "public" school system as "the unsmacked cubs of the privileged class," was expected to change all that.

Formation of the new government, however, has only emphasized the Old Guard's tenacity and widespread influence on Britain's public life. Men from the hallowed halls, trodden normally by only the sons of the rich, hold at least 13 high government positions.

Seven "public" school ties in all are sported by them, leading one political observer to remark:

"The party which inflames and sustains class hatred is controled in no small degree by men expensively educated who share, with evident enjoyment, the privileges of wealth."

The public school influence starts right at the top, with Prime Minister Clement Attlee, graduate of a sort of byproduct of famous Eton, which often is contemptuously labeled "the nursery of toryism." Tho Attlee didn't attend Eton, he went to Haileybury, one of the most exclusive public schools and one which in his day was almost more Etonian than Eton itself, tho a bit cheaper.

At Attlee's right hand stands an old Etonian, Hugh Dalton, chancellor of the exchequer, whose father, Canon Dalton, was an Eton tutor to King George V.

4 More in High Posts

Four other Etonians hold high places in the Attlee regime. They are:

F. W. Pethick-Lawrence, who put "Baron" in front of his name when appointed secretary of state for India.

Francis John Clarence Westenra Plantagenet Hastings, 15th earl of Huntingdon, who is parliamentary secretary to the ministry of agriculture.

Wing Comdr. Evelyn John St. Loe Strachey, undersecretary for air.

William Francis Hare, whose title, earl of Listowel, decorates the postmaster generalship. Proving the Laborites do not always turn to the proletariat for their leaders, the philosopher-earl has written such tomes as "A Critical History of Modern Aesthetics."

The only other public school aside from Eton to gain multiple representation in the Labor government is Marlborough. It has turned out Lord Chancellor Jowitt, whom the Laborites moved into a barony as soon as they had the chance to increase their strength in the house of lords, and John Parker, undersecretary for the dominions office.

Cripps from Military School

Stafford Cripps, president of the board of trade, a cabinet post, received his early education at Winchester, a military school. Wellington, even more an army school, produced John Dugdale, financial secretary to the admiralty.

G. R. Strauss, parliamentary secretary of the ministry of war transport, hails from Rugby; Atty. Gen. Hartley Shawcross from Dulwich, and Philip Noel-Baker, minister of state, from Bootham.

Harry Louis Nathan, a baron since 1940 and now undersecretary for war, studied at St. Paul's, which also turned out Field Marshal Montgomery.

VETERANS CRACK PICKET LINE AT CEMETERY GATE

Striking Grave Diggers Halt 5 Processions

A group of recently discharged soldiers drove a funeral procession into St. Casimir's Lithuanian Roman Catholic cemetery, 111th st. and Pulaski rd., yesterday after hired chauffeurs refused to cross a picket line of striking grave diggers.

The cortege was that of Jerome Urbas, 60, of 4530 S. Mozart st., a packing company employe, who died Tuesday. The hearse and two automobiles containing relatives and pallbearers were driven from Immaculate Conception church by teamsters' union members.

Mourners Bewildered

The three hired cars, and eight or 10 private machines, were stopped at the cemetery gate by two pickets wearing sandwich board signs and two officers of local 106, Cemetery Workers and Greens Attendants union [AFL], which called 16 cemetery employes on strike a week ago for union recognition and more pay.

The union drivers got out, inspected the pickets' credentials, and announced they would not cross the picket line. Some of the mourners pleaded with them, without success, while others waited in bewilderment. The pallbearers, all ex-service men, conferred.

Three Take Wheels

"Unions and strikes are all right in their places," one of them was heard to say, "but we're GIs and we don't recognize unions in a thing like this." Another interjected, "We ran into plenty of dead overseas and we always saw to it that they rested in peace. We'll see to the same thing here if we must."

Three of the group volunteered to take the places of the hired chauffeurs. They were Al Barcas and Michael Lucas, both of 3138 Lowe av., and Larry Clark of 3224 Union av. They took the wheels and started thru the gate.

Pickets Move Aside

"We'll run you down if you don't get out of the way," one of them shouted to the strikers. The pickets moved to one side and stood silently while the funeral cars were driven into the grounds.

Beside the cemetery's receiving vault, 250 yards from the gate, the last words were spoken and Mr. Urbas' casket was carried inside to await burial. When the procession emerged from the cemetery, the union drivers took over again.

Other pallbearers were Mr. Urbas' nephew, John, 25, of 4046 Montgomery av., recently discharged from the army, and Pvt. Charles Chickanauskas, still in the army, who wore his uniform.

Four Funerals Halted

Four other funeral parties were halted by the grave diggers in the next hour. These were for Mrs. Martha Gudas, 1816 Ruble st.; William Klimas, Los Angeles, Cal.; Alex Jonusas, 4258 S. Western av., and Mrs. Casimira Namajka, 4635 S. Paulina st.

In each instance, the union drivers balked at crossing the picket line, but unloaded floral tributes. Pallbearers had to place each casket on a little wagon and haul it to the receiving vault, while mourners carried the flowers. A priest and altar boys walked at the head of each group.

Sixteen caskets awaiting interment are in the vault, which has space for four more.

6 PACKER FIRMS BOOST WAGES OF 15,000 WORKERS

Some 15,000 employes of six packing companies will receive a wage increase of 15 cents an hour as a result of an agreement between the United Packinghouse Workers of America [CIO] and the six employers, Lewis J. Clark, UPWA international president, announced yesterday. An additional 2½ cents an hour allowance was granted in compensation for time spent changing clothes. Also 50 to 75 cents a week will be paid to workers for purchase of working clothing.

Clark said companies covered by the agreement were Hormel, Cudahy Brothers [of Cudahy, Wis.], Kingan, Hygrade, Tobin and Rath.

PHONE TRAFFIC UNION VOTES FOR STRIKE: 6,293-996

A complete count of the ballots cast by members of the Illinois Telephone Traffic union last week showed a vote of 6,293 to 996 in favor of a strike in case further negotiations fail. The balloting was under supervision of the national labor relations board. The United States conciliation service appointed a three man panel to attempt to mediate between the telephone company and the union.

The union is asking a $6 weekly wage increase. The telephone panel of the war labor board recommended a $4 increase. The recommendation was accepted by the company but rejected by the union.

COMING SOON: A SYNTHETIC TIRE THAT OUTWEARS PREWAR TIRES!

This isn't a guess. It's been proved! More than 2000 tests and nearly 17,000,000 miles of the toughest kind of actual road service show that this new B. F. Goodrich Silvertown will outwear prewar natural rubber tires.

New, better rubber

B. F. Goodrich has developed a rubber that's far better than ordinary synthetics ... so much better that for months it was a strictly guarded military secret. The new Silvertown made with this rubber wears better and runs cooler. It has greater resistance to cracking—and actually stands bruising and damage from accidents better.

Tire body 35% stronger

An entirely new, stronger cord is used; and more of these cords are used in the top ply. An extra shock-absorbing breaker strip was included. The result: a body 35% stronger for additional resistance to bruises, extra blowout protection ... another reason why new B. F. Goodrich Silvertowns outwear prewar tires.

Flatter tread covers more ground

The new Silvertown has a wider, flatter tread. We call it the "road level" tread. It puts more rubber on the road; permits all the tread to share the wear. Result: a further increase in mileage, less scuffing, better distribution of weight, better traction, more safety on the turns.

3 years' EXTRA experience!

18 months before Pearl Harbor, B. F. Goodrich offered tires containing synthetic rubber to American motorists. That was 3 years ahead of any other tire manufacturer... 3 years in which B. F. Goodrich was piling up the extra know-how that is reflected in the coming B. F. Goodrich Silvertown. Soon these new tires will begin to be produced in large volume for shipment to our dealers, but supplies may be limited for quite a while. So take good care of the tires you have. And in the meantime, if you have any kind of tire problems, see your nearest B. F. Goodrich dealer. The B. F. Goodrich Co., Akron, Ohio.

Hear the hilarious new B. F. Goodrich radio quiz, "DETECT AND COLLECT," on Thursday, 9:30 P. M. Eastern time. American Broadcasting Company Network.

'GIUSEPPI SENT ME' GETS YOU IN EVEN IN ROME

Gambling Goes on in Speakeasy Style

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ROME, Nov. 9 [By Airmail]—A gambling fever has hold of the Romans, particularly those whose pockets are loaded with black market gains. With the lira so unstable, the profiteers feel they might as well get a thrill at the card table, or the roulette wheel, or the races rather than bank all their printed currency.

Italians and Americans who visited here before the war say gambling always was prevalent in this country, but has never flourished as it does now. The races are legal—the government and the track taking a combined cut of about 40 per cent out of the money wagered—but the card and wheel sessions are strictly "on the sneak" in private clubs and unlicensed establishments.

"Giuseppi Sent Me"

Our party of soldiers and correspondents was taken one night to view the clandestine games. The approach was in the manner of the old speakeasies in America, with a dash of Italian cloak and gun intrigue. The way led thru dimly lit streets and alleys, with stops to exchange furtive signals with armed guards and to grease a few palms.

Sure enough, the entrance into the gambling rooms proper was preceded by a whispered conference at a peephole, where our guide gave the Roman equivalent of "Joe sent me"—Giuseppi mandato mi."

We were allowed in, then, to a brightly lighted salon, peopled by well fed Roman men and women, who obviously had diverted some of the illicitly obtained food and clothing for their own use before disposing of the rest in the black market. Obsequious waiters buzzed about, proferring free cognac and hors d'oeuvres.

A baccarat game for high stakes was in progress. The Americans didn't play; poker and blackjack are more in their style. But they worked on the cognac and appetizers while they watched the game. There was a lot of money circulating. Ten thousand dollars [not lire] in one coup wasn't unusual. The big winner, of course, was the house, which abstracted twenty per cent of the amount bet.

Chisel on the Odds

Near-by was a roulette game and again the house couldn't lose. In the usual roulette game, a win at any number pays off at 35 to 1. But in this "square" game, a bet was allowed only on a combination of three numbers. The proper odds on a set of three is 12 to 1; the payoff here was 7 to 1. As a bonus, the customer collecting was given a ticket for the Italian national lottery.

The only catches in that are that a goodly number of the lottery tickets in circulation are counterfeit, and it hasn't yet been announced when or where the drawing will be.

As we sought the fresh air, an American colonel in the party remarked: "Rather than play in those games with the odds stacked against me, I'd rather spend my money to pay my taxes at home. It's better to go broke legitimately."

THOMAS ASSAILS GM; THREAT OF STRIKE GROWS

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 17 (AP)—Fears that a major strike would hit the auto industry increased tonight as R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, charged a "managerial clique" at General Motors corporation "is in effect forcing a costly and terrible strike upon us."

Thomas' statements, published in a signed editorial in the United Automobile Worker, official publication of the UAW, came as 200 UAW delegates representing unionized General Motors employes thruout the country gathered here to discuss possible strike action.

"G-M has never indicated in word or deed its willingness to give an inch on wages," Thomas wrote. General Motors company spokesmen declined any comment on Thomas' charges.

The union is demanding a general 30 per cent wage increase from General Motors and other auto manufacturers.

Coast Guard Relaxes Rules on Enlistments

Coast guard candidates 17 thru 25 are being accepted for two and three year enlistments in a relaxation of conditions, the recruiting office in the customs house, 610 S. Canal st., said yesterday. Previously enlistments were limited to youths of 17 and were solely for three year terms.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Nov. 18—Panama Canal Treaty

FORTY-TWO years ago today the United States and the new republic of Panama concluded a treaty granting to the former perpetual use and control of a strip of land running from the Caribbean sea to the Pacific ocean.

The treaty followed a troubled period during which the United States had sought to make an arrangement with Colombia that would permit the building of a canal across the isthmus of Panama, which was a part of Colombia.

A treaty had been drawn up, but the Colombian senate refused to ratify it. Thereupon Panama revolted. The United States recognized her independence almost immediately, and American marines prevented Colombia from sending troops across the isthmus to try to crush the revolutionists.

The treaty of Nov. 18, 1903, with Panama cleared away one of the major obstacles which had prevented the construction by the United States of a traffic artery across the rugged and disease ridden isthmus. Engineering and medical genius solved the other principal problems and in 1914 the first ocean vessel passed thru the 40 mile long canal.

The canal, which cost $366,650,000, so shortened the distances between Atlantic and Pacific ports that a ship bound, say, from Liverpool, England, to San Francisco, Cal., actually steams 5,666 fewer nautical miles than she would be compelled to if she used the route around South America.

The United States in 1921 agreed to a payment of $25,000,000 to Colombia, which had repeatedly protested American actions in connection with the Panama revolution.

STRIKE OF 38,000 MIDWEST TRUCK DRIVERS NIPPED

A strike by an estimated 38,000 truck drivers, which was to have started at midnight Friday, was averted when members of the Central States Employers' association and the Central States Drivers' council reached an agreement half an hour before the walkout was scheduled.

This was announced in Chicago yesterday by James Hoffa, of Deroit, Mich., chairman of the negotiating committee of the council, which represents 300 American Federation of Labor teamster union locals in 12 central states.

The council and the association, in a joint statement, said that the agreement was made effective yesterday. Terms of the settlement were not divulged pending ratification by the council's member unions.

Slain Man Identified; Friend Tells of Shots

The body of a man who was found shot thru the chest Friday in the 3200 block in Princeton av. was identified yesterday as that of Juan Castaneda, 33, of 2154 Archer av., a coach cleaner for the Santa Fe railroad. Jose Quintero, who roomed with Castaneda, said his friend was shot as they left a tavern at Alexander st. and Wentworth av., but Quintero said he did not know where the shots came from. Police said Castaneda apparently was taken in an automobile to Princeton av. after the shooting.

PLANS PREPARED TO RECONDITION JOLIET PRISON

BY ORVILLE DWYER

First of a series of plans and specifications for rehabilitation of the old Joliet prison, on which a million and a half dollars is expected ultimately to be spent, are ready to be delivered by State Architect Eric Hammond's office to a committee of the Illinois post-war planning commission.

If the commission approves the plans, particularly as to windows, air, light, and sunshine, reconditioning of the east and west cell blocks will be started on orders of Gov. Green.

Oscar Nelson, secretary of the commission, and Anderson Pace, chairman both of the commission and of the committee on the prison, believe this may be early next spring. The estimated cost of reconditioning the two cell blocks is $669,500.

The project is part of a long range post-war construction program for which the legislature has appropriated 129 million dollars.

"The committee inspected the old prison thoroly a few weeks ago," Nelson said. "Now it all depends on the plans and specifications submitted by Hammond. If the windows are the way we want them, good and wide so plenty of sunlight can get in on both sides of the cell blocks, we'll undoubtedly approve the plans and recommend to the governor that construction be started."

In addition to rehabilitating the cell blocks, ultimate plans call for the expenditure of a total of $1,475,990, including additions to sanitary and storm sewers and a sewage treatment plant for $133,900; reconditioning of the main kitchen, cold storage building and dining room for $77,250; a new 400-cell house for $463,500; 300,000 gallon water tank for $51,500; reconditioning of the administration building for $51,500; a two way radio system and telephone improvements at $13,390.

Ignorance and lack of interest are the greatest causes of juvenile delinquency. Just published: "Heaven to Hell in Twenty-Four Hours."

Juvenile delinquency is every parent's trouble. Children cannot be taught the facts of life unless you read "Heaven to Hell in Twenty-Four Hours." The need to read the book was never greater, a book so powerful that it will shock you. It bares the truth.

By reading the book, it will enable you to have a heart-to-heart talk with your sons and daughters. If, in all your life you have never taken the time nor patience to read a book, then to read this book is the least you can do. All Americans over fifteen years of age are urged to read this book.

Any boy or girl who reads "Heaven to Hell in Twenty-Four Hours", and takes the wrong road to life, does it because they want to.

A. OF C. URGES BUILDING CODE BE REWRITTEN

Report Confirms Defects Shown by Tribune

BY LEWIS HUNT

Complete revision of Chicago's building regulations to remove unreasonable restrictions and to permit the use of new types of construction was recommended by the Chicago Association of Commerce to Mayor Kelly yesterday in a report on a year's study of the existing code.

The report also recommended a reorganization of authority to administer the code. In addition to the present building department, it proposed a board of building standards and a board of appeals, to be entrusted with keeping the code abreast of technical progress.

The mayor was asked to appoint a board of building regulation of "seven outstanding citizens noted for their interest in the general welfare and future development of Chicago" to carry out the recommendations. The board would have a paid director and a staff of workers.

Stress Timeliness of Plea

The timely importance of rewriting the code, which has been only slightly changed since its adoption in January, 1939, was emphasized in both the preface and the body of the report. In the foreword, Leverett S. Lyon, executive director of the association, said the study was undertaken in the belief that Chicago should prepare for "an unusually high level of activity in building."

Howard P. Vermilya, director of housing research for the nonprofit John B. Pierce Foundation of New York, who made the study, said that tho "much time and expense" would be required to make the recommended revisions, "the situation in Chicago is such as to warrant the expenditure of time, money, and energy in the interest of Chicago's present and future growth."

Flaws in the code listed by Vermilya were those exposed by THE TRIBUNE last month in a survey of the code conducted by interviewing the various interests in the building industry.

Defects in Code Cited

They included:

1. The code was obsolete when it was adopted. It should be rewritten, said Vermilya, so it will "have within it the regenerative power to keep itself alive."

2. It is unreasonably restrictive. "By specifying that which is permitted, the Chicago code prevents, without special legislative or possibly judicial action, the use of other materials and methods of construction which are not specifically permitted by the building code," Vermilya reported. "The restrictive phraseology used in the Chicago code not only prevents the use of new construction techniques and new building materials, but also prohibits the use of many acceptable or equivalent materials which are now available."

Fire Limits Unreasonable

3. Fire limits fixed by the building code are unreasonable, Vermilya reported that the limits, within which masonry exterior walls are required even for single dwellings, cover all but about 30 square miles, or 15 per cent of the city's area. Most of the area available for new housing and zoned for single dwellings lies within fire limits, he said. "As now established, the Chicago fire limits make little sense from the standpoint of the basic underlying reasons . . . ," he added.

4. A study of the code reveals related restrictions on building, principally uneconomic working rules set up by labor unions. In a supplementary chapter, Vermilya said that while the code was not responsible for restrictive practices in the building industry, the proposed board of building regulation should be empowered to investigate them. He mentioned specifically the ban imposed in Chicago by the building laborers' unions against the use of ready mixed concrete.

Revision Method Too Slow

5. Present procedure for amendment, which requires the committee on tests and standards to submit its findings to the city council, is slow and lacks means of informing the public. "For example," Vermilya said, "in the 1943 report of the building commissioner, favorable action is reported on the part of the committee on an application for an increase in stress of structural steel. However, this recommendation was not passed upon by the council until Dec. 6, 1944." Vermilya recommended a publication to carry reports of all actions of the building commissioner and the two proposed new boards.

6. The present voluminous code is poorly arranged and difficult to understand. Some chapters, Vermilya said, "are written as technical specifications, while others are descriptive, being written in lengthy, involved language. Certain sections of the code are disproportionate in length to the importance of the subject matter. For example, the entire carpentry requirements in connection with ordinary construction are inadequately covered in one-half a page. At the same time, metal fire escapes comprise three detailed pages of specifications."

Rigid Code Increases Costs

Chicago's rigid code contributes to high building costs, Vermilya found. "It does this," he said, "in many instances and in two principal ways:

"1. By specifying higher requirements than necessary for safety and health, thereby requiring the use of more materials or more expensive materials.

"2. By establishing requirements which restrict the use of adequate alternative materials and construction, thereby creating monopolistic conditions with attendant increases in cost."

Asks Single Administrative Agency

Revision of the code, the report stated, should include:

"Basic regulation pertaining to safety and health in a manner which will secure simplification, flexibility and coördination of building requirements.

"Consolidation of the administration of building regulation in one agency so as to make possible greater efficiency, lower operating costs and unified administrative responsibility.

"Delegation, with proper safeguards, to the administrative agency of power adequately to interpret building legislation so as to obtain greater flexibility to meet changing conditions."

Severe Restrictions on Homes

One specific field of Vermilya's study was comparison of Chicago's code with those of other cities.

"In general," he reported, "it may be said that the Chicago code conforms with other codes with which it was compared for large buildings. However, it is apparently more restrictive in relation to smaller buildings, particularly dwellings, than are the other codes. In view of the present housing shortage, consideration should be given to modification of the Chicago code to remove any handicaps to dwelling construction in the form of requirements which increase their cost unduly."

It would seem desirable, he said, to adopt permanently the war housing regulations which the council approved for duration of the war.

Doings on the Tribune Farm

BY GAIL COMPTON

Nov. 17, 1945

THE farm men have returned to their regular winter jobs as contractors. Farming is finished, except for getting in the corn, so the men spend their time making fences, repairing buildings, and doing other bits of work usually associated with the construction industry.

The widely publicized electronic rat trap is in use at the farm. Perhaps "in use" isn't correct, for as yet the trap has failed to snare a single marauder, despite its highly praised abilities.

What a Rat Trap!

The trap is supposed to make a rat feel like climbing into its tunnel entrance, where a bright light flashes on; thereupon, the rat seeks safety in another dark runway. An electric eye in the runway causes a piece of metal to drop on the rat's back; this metal serves as a conductor for electricity that kills the rodent.

The trap has been tried in the corn crib, at the silo, and in the horse barn—and the casualty list still stands at zero. The trap to be effective must be placed in a rat runway and the runway covered to force the rat into the tunnel. This, the men have found, is difficult to do because the runways are in inaccessible places.

Self-Feeder to Be Tested

Awaiting trial is a big self-feeder to be used in the cattle yard. The feeder will hold 50 or more bushels of corn, permitting the cattle to eat all they want at any time in the day. The manager will experiment with using chopped hay in the feeder, as well as shelled corn, ground corn, and cob meal. The self-feeder eliminates to a great extent the tedious chore of feeding the steers morning and night.

Competition among the trees as to which shall be the last to lose its leaves has narrowed down to a dead heat between the sycamores and the horse chestnuts. These varieties have outlasted many others that usually are famed for clutching their foliage until the last.

1ST ENTRIES ARRIVE IN TRIBUNE'S PRIZE HOME COMPETITION

First entries in THE TRIBUNE'S $24,000 Chicagoland Prize Homes Competition already are beginning to arrive at Tribune Tower, Boyd Hill, professional adviser, said yesterday.

"Judging from the entries I have examined, THE TRIBUNE'S project is accomplishing its purpose," Hill said. "That is to stimulate the development of home designs so attractive, practical, and economical that thousands of families can have the kind of homes they want at prices they can afford.

"It is easy to see that entrants recognize the problems of economical housing today and are doing their best to help THE TRIBUNE find solutions."

Hill said that builders of the Chicagoland area have shown great interest in designs which the competition will produce. Letters from building contractors show they are waiting for indications of the construction trends they expect the project to establish in the Chicago area.

The competition closes Dec. 10. During the winter, color reproductions of the winning entries will be published by THE TRIBUNE.

Later, if conditions permit, actual houses will be constructed from winning designs.

TRAPS ATTACKER WITH INVITATION TO APARTMENT

Ralph Stanover

Ralph Stanover, 27, of 2840 Normal av., was arrested yesterday because Mrs. Helen Hasselbrink, 38, of 2651 Burling st., mother of three children, kept her head when he attempted to drag her into an alley near Burling st. and Wrightwood av. near her home.

"My husband's in the army overseas," Mrs. Hasselbrink pleaded with him, "Come up to my apartment. Everything will be all right. There's no use of us fighting on the street."

Wakens Husband by Scream

As Stanover and Mrs. Hasselbrink entered the apartment, she walked into the bedroom and screamed. Her husband, Arthur, who was sleeping at 4 a. m., leaped out of bed in alarm and saw Stanover standing in confusion in the parlor.

Stanover bolted out of the room when Hasselbrink started to telephone police. The aroused husband pulled a pair of trousers over his pajamas, put on his shoes, and overtook Stanover a block and a half down the street.

Signs of Fall in Dark

When he was brought back to the apartment by Hasselbrink, Stanover, a truck driver, had some bruises on his face, such as he might have received in a fall in the dark. Hasselbrink kept a grip on Stanover, while Mrs. Hasselbrink called police.

"She showed more presence of mind than any woman I've known under similar circumstances," Acting Capt. Harry Penzin of the Sheffield av. police station said. Mrs. Hasselbrink said she would sign a complaint against Stanover.

COURT UPHOLDS RELIGIOUS STUDY TIME FOR PUPILS

The 16 year old practice of the board of education of excusing public school pupils for one hour of religious instruction each week was upheld as constitutional yesterday by Judge Ulysses S. Schwartz in Superior court. He dismissed a suit by Ira Latimer, director of the Chicago Civil Liberties committee, for a [illegible] order to compel the school board to discontinue the practice.

Landon L. Chapman, attorney for the Civil Liberties committee, said he would appeal to the Illinois Supreme court. He charged that the religious instruction is "illegal and unconstitutional" because it uses "social pressure on children to adopt religion."

Judge Schwartz held that the Bill of Rights "grew out of a deeply religious feeling" and that the religious program in schools is not in violation of the spirit of the Constitution.

BERMUDA — BERMUDA — BERMUDA — BERMUDA

The Bermuda you remember...

The leisurely clip-clop of horses' hoofs still echoes along the winding limestone roads. The vest-pocket railway still shuttles importantly between Somerset and St. George's.

War has not touched Bermuda with a jealous finger. All the remembered loveliness is still the same. And now that restrictions are lifted, once again Bermuda welcomes the traveler.

Passport and immigration permits are no longer necessary. Transportation to the Islands is available though still somewhat limited. Seven weekly flights by huge 4-engine planes are in operation, and surface ships sail from New York on regular schedules.

Though there are facilities for accommodating a few visitors now—immediately—we cannot yet receive as many as we wish at this time. Our hotels and guest houses must be made ready to offer that familiar—and superb—Bermuda hospitality.

So if you do plan to come to Bermuda soon—take these few simple precautions to assure a fully enjoyable visit. Have your travel agent make hotel reservations for you in advance, and have confirmation of those reservations at hand. Be certain to have him engage a round-trip passage for you before you leave for the Islands

In this way, we know you will carry back with you to a busy work-world the happiest of memories.

For information, write The Bermuda Trade Development Board, Hamilton, Bermuda; or 620 Fifth Avenue, New York 20, New York.

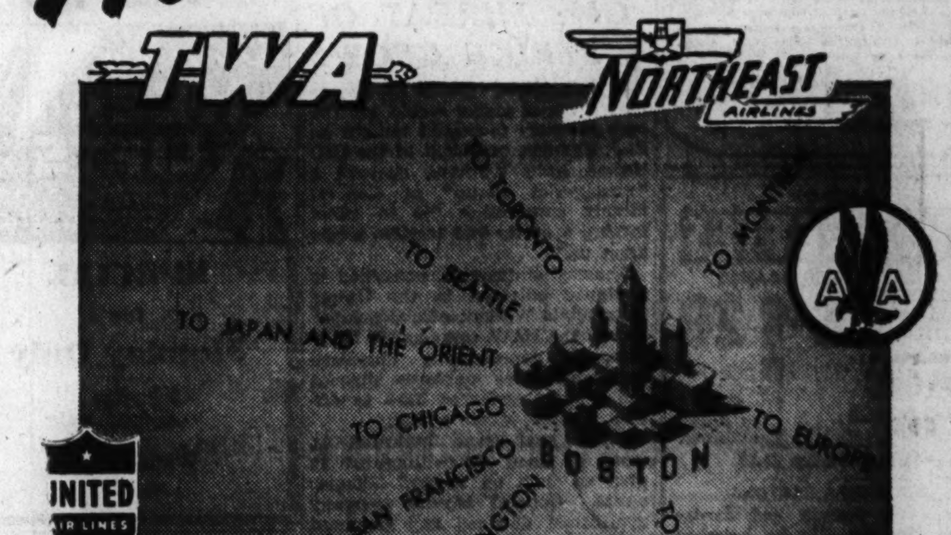
IN MASSACHUSETTS



MASSACHUSETTS has been well christened the "Hub of the Air Universe." Boston's great Logan International Airport, now being further enlarged, is the focal point for National and International aviation. $15,000,000 has been appropriated for the expansion of this great field and already five leading air lines are using its facilities. Construction soon to be completed will enable it to handle a flight a minute and to serve the largest planes foreseeable in the future. No other major city in the country has its principal airport so near the business and financial area or serviced by railroads, ships, and trucks.

With 56 airports approved for commercial operation, Massachusetts has feeder facilities to make Logan Airport a great terminus for shipping, international in scope!

A fervent appeal to Earl [Ding Ding] Wehle, 38, of 8027 Carpenter st., to appear and tell what he knows about the disappearance of his employer, Edgar Heywood, 53, was voiced last night by police, Wehle's family, and Heywood's estranged wife.

Heywood, owner of the electrical shop at 1052 W. 79th st., disappeared under mysterious circumstances last July 2 at Cedar Lake, Ind., where he operated a resort speedboat service.

Takes Over Store and Car

Wehle, who had been employed both as a speedboat driver and in the Chicago shop, took over the store after Heywood's disappearance and told Heywood's friends, his neighbors, and Heywood's wife, Sarah, that he had purchased the shop, the boats, and Heywood's automobile for $3,500.

Wehle then disappeared on Sept. 11 when two detectives demanded to see a bill of sale.

"I'm sure my man is in his grave," Mrs. Heywood told THE TRIBUNE last night in a rich Irish brogue. She lives at 1742 W. 66th st. with two daughters. "We'd been separated for 15 years, but he was a good man. I wish the police and the sheriff at Cedar Lake could find Wehle and make him tell what he knows."

Checks Stop Coming

Mrs. Heywood said her first hint of Heywood's disappearance came when weekly checks, which he sent her in varying amounts according to shop receipts, stopped completely early in September. At that time, she accosted Wehle at the store, but received no satisfaction when she asked to see the bill of sale.

The electrical shop had been a clean, neat place, doing a good business, Mrs. Heywood said, but Wehle told her he intended to make electric signs his main business. The shop, which is locked and dusty, is now disordered and the windows are dirty. Mrs. Heywood said she hoped a sale of its stock would bring money enough to pay a past due rent bill.

Family Talks Readily

Wehle's family, who live at the Carpenter st. address, talked readily to a TRIBUNE reporter in their apartment. Wehle's daughter, Connie, 14, by a divorced wife, lives there with his mother and two sisters.

"We wish Earl would come back and tell what he knows," one of his sisters said. "He's such a wonderful person. You can ask any one around here. He was always so jolly and so well liked. If he'd only come back—."

Capt. Barth Moran of the Gresham police and his detectives, William Sullivan and Selby Richardson, confessed themselves at a dead end in the investigation in Chicago and joined the plea for Wehle to "come home."

Heywood's glasses have been found near his rented cottage at Cedar Lake, and a blood stained mattress and his blood stained jacket were found in the cottage.

The federal bureau of investigation said it was interested in the case on a technicality—the possibility that Heywood's automobile, which disappeared with Wehle, was taken illegally across a state line.

THEATER OF THE AIR PRESENTS STORY OF 'THE VAGABOND KING'

Men of Burgundy storming the gates of Paris! A puppet king, too weak to resist! An intrepid poet and soldier of fortune who saves France with his daring courage, while red blood and red wine flow thru the streets of Paris! Romance and intrigue and adventure — that was the story of "The Vagabond King" told in music last night over the Chicago Theater of the Air in the Masonic temple.

A favorite of the American public since Rudolph Friml first set the story of France's Francois Villon to music in 1925, the operetta was enthusiastically received by an audience of more than 4,000 persons. Marion Claire, W-G-N's prima donna, sang the role of Lady Katherine de Vaucelles, the high born court beauty, who fell in love with the rogue, Villon. The role of the dynamic Francois, "The Vagabond King," was sung by Bruce Foote, baritone. In the supporting contralto role of the fiery, Hugette, the beggar maid, was Ruth Slater.

The colorful Friml score was played by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber.

BELIEVE PLANK CAUSED WRECK ON N. Y. CENTRAL

Lydick, Ind., Nov. 17 (AP)—New York Central railroad officials today sought to determine the cause of the derailment that hurtled several frate cars into the path of the advance Commodore Vanderbilt passenger train three miles west of here yesterday. The passenger train crashed into the derailed frate cars and at least 22 persons were injured.

A railroad spokesman said the derailment apparently resulted when the water scoop of the frate engine, in improper position, picked up a plank from the right of way and dropped it on the rails.

F. P. Davidson, Elkhart, Ind., the engineer, was one of two persons injured critically. The other was Boyd Stiver, Millersburg, Ind., a passenger. Both are in Memorial hospital at South Bend.

Partial two way service was restored over the rebuilt westbound tracks today, and workers expected to clear the eastbound tracks by tomorrow.

HIBBARD PLANS NEW PROJECT ON EVANSTON SITE

3 Million Plant Depends on Zoning Change

BY AL CHASE
[Real Estate Editor]

C. J. Whipple

One of Chicagoland's largest business decentralization projects in several years is planned by Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., hardware wholesaler. Plans are being drawn for a big one and two story office building and warehouse in Evanston. With 750,000 square feet of floor space and an investment of about 3 million dollars in land and building, it will be that suburb's largest business building. Its construction depends on the rezoning for commercial use of a 33 acre tract of land at the southwestern tip of Evanston and on sale of the company's Chicago structure.

The 1,000 by 700 foot building would be used instead of the 13 story structure at 211 E. North Water st. in Chicago, formerly occupied by Hibbard and under lease to the army, said C. J. Whipple, president. Two nationally known Chicago companies are negotiating for purchase as soon as the army vacates next summer.

Zoning Board to Act

The Evanston building site is bounded by Howard st. on the south [the Chicago-Evanston limits], by McDaniel av. on the west [the Evanston-Skokie limits], by the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad on the north, and by Hartrey av. on the east. The Evanston zoning commission will hold a public hearing Dec. 4 to consider rezoning this tract.

Plans by Engineering Systems, Inc., of Chicago, provide for 100,000 square feet of windows. The two story office section would contain a 750 seat auditorium with stage for business uses, a cafeteria, a large merchandise display room, and the company's general offices. Air conditioning, fluorescent lighting, and acoustically treated ceilings will be included.

Switch tracks will be run from the North Western railroad into the plant so that frate cars may be loaded and unloaded under cover.

Less Height, More Space

Architects said about 12 per cent of the total space in the Chicago building is used for interior walls, columns, stairs, and elevators. In the new building this space loss would be only 1⅓ per cent, because there are no elevators, no stairs, and no partition walls in the warehouse section. Parking space would be provided for the 1,000 employes.

The site was purchased from the Lake View Trust and Savings bank, trustee for the Budlong trust, subject to rezoning, thru Howard L. Storch of Ross, Browne & Fleming, who was broker for all parties. Edward T. Howe was attorney for the seller.

REALTY BOARD TO HOLD ANNUAL TURKEY DINNER

The Chicago Real Estate board will hold its annual past president's turkey dinner Tuesday in the board dining room at 105 W. Madison st. Holman D. Pettibone, president of the Chicago Title and Trust company, will be toastmaster. Twenty former executives, whose terms extend back to 1910, are expected to attend. Floyd G. Dana, president, will extend greetings from the members.

BUYS DOWNTOWN BUILDING

The Lee-Robert company, mail order firm, yesterday bought from Edwin L. Brand Jr. and others the five story building at 316-18 S. Wabash av., thru Warren A. Cahn, broker, for $75,000. Lee W. Gluckman, president, said that when present leases expire the building will be remodeled and his company will occupy it.

Warehouse and Offices Designed

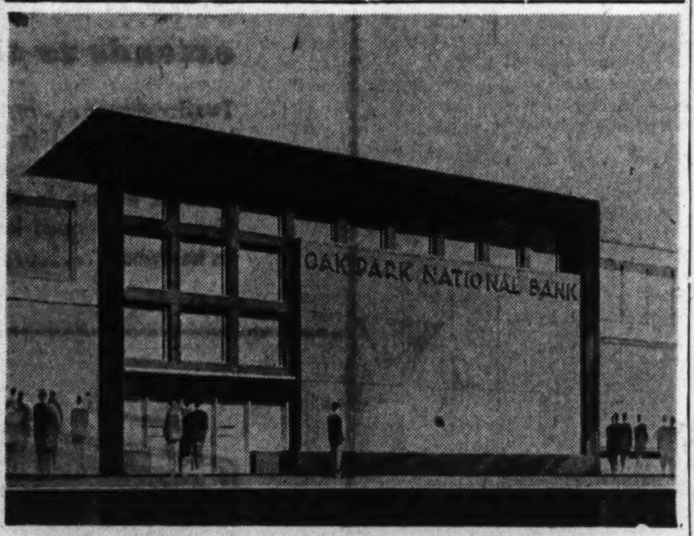
Suburban Bank Building



Shaw, Naess & Murphy designed this new home of the Oak Park National bank to be built at 9 Madison st., Oak Park, by Krahl Construction company. The front elevation will be of dark polished granite with the bank's name in aluminum letters.

Palatine Home

Hilding N. Johnson, sales manager of Arthur T. McIntosh & Co. hands to Charles G. Ettinger the deed of the house the veteran bought in Palanois Park, Palatine, for $6,500. Mrs. Ettinger stands on the porch of their new home.

VET GETS HOME WITHOUT USING HIS OWN MONEY

Fifteen veterans' families are living in brick homes built in Palanois Park, Palatine, by Arthur T. McIntosh & Co., Hilding N. Johnson, sales manager, said yesterday.

A typical residence deal was closed by Charles G. Ettinger, army veteran, and his wife. They bought a 4½ room house for $6,500 without using any of their own cash. They obtained a $1,100 20 year GI 5 per cent loan, insured by the veterans' administration, thru the Percy Wilson Mortgage and Finance corporation. The monthly payments are $6.67. The balance was obtained thru a $5,400 FHA insured 25 year, 5 per cent loan, also thru the Wilson corporation. Monthly payments, including principal and interest, taxes, and insurance are $37.81.

McIntosh is building 100 homes in Palanois Park and will start 100 more in the spring, Johnson said.

REALTY MISCELLANY

The Chicago Metropolitan Home Builders' association will have a membership dinner at the Stevens hotel Tuesday. Problems in the building field, including scarcity of materials, will be discussed.

OAK PARK BANK CONTRACTS FOR $250,000 BUILDING

The Oak Park National bank has contracted for a $250,000 bank building to be erected at 9 Madison st., Oak Park, John J. O'Laughlin, chairman, said yesterday. Present bank quarters are next door.

Designed by Shaw, Naess & Murphy, Chicago architectural firm, it will be the first suburban bank building to be erected since the war, it was said. Low wood counters will take place of the conventional banking cages. Air conditioning and recessed fluorescent lighting will be included.

Plans call for completion of the building by Krahl Construction company late next spring.

BUILDS ON S. ASHLAND

Ray F. Schuster, Federal truck distributor, is constructing a sales and service building at the northwest corner of Archer and Ashland avs. from plans by William Sevic.

De Luxe Loop Store Planned by Woolworth

Acquisition of 90 feet of State st. frontage by the F. W. Woolworth company yesterday disclosed plans for a "super five-and-ten" store which may cost as much as 2 million dollars. Tentative plans call for an expenditure of about $1,500,000 but elaboration of the building program may bring the total cost to the two million mark, it was said.

The site is at 211-23 S. State, adjoining the 20 story Republic building on the south. Part of the site, at 219-23, is occupied by a Woolworth store. This five story building, with 47½ feet of frontage, was under lease from Dora K. Frank, Harold E. Foreman, and Jesse L. Strauss, trustees. A new 52 year lease has been negotiated thru Albert H. Wetten & Co.

The 42½ feet of frontage at 211-17 was obtained thru purchase of two leaseholds which have 52 years to run, and an eight story building, partly occupied by A. G. Spalding & Brothers, athletic goods store.

Early next year the site will be cleared and work begun on the new store. It will compare with the company's de luxe stores in New York and will surpass any other variety stores in the middle west, it was said.

Ednyfed H. Williams was attorney for Woolworth in both transactions. He said the proposed building probably would be three stories. It will have about 13,000 square feet of space on each floor.

BUILDING SOARS IN CHICAGO AND SUBURBAN AREA

Building construction last month in the Chicago metropolitan area totaled nearly 21 million dollars, a large increase over October last year and September of this year. The $20,820,312 total for the city, suburbs, and county unincorporated areas was the largest of any month since November, 1942, the year of big war plant construction. It compared with $11,794,646 in September and $8,662,814 in October, 1944.

October home building, the monthly survey of Bell Savings and Loan association said, also made a big advance. Permits were issued for 988 homes, costing $6,474,248, compared with 776 and $4,458,789 in September, and with 561 and $2,538,489 a year ago.

Palatine Leads Suburbs

Palatine led all suburbs in residential building with permits for 50 homes, costing $351,000. Evergreen Park was second with 41 and $254,000, and Skokie third with 35, costing $310,000.

Gary, Ind., which often during the war led the list in home building, last month was fourth with 31 homes, costing $165,000. Elgin followed with 18 for $103,000 and Westchester with 17 for $112,000.

Sixteen permits were issued in La Grange Park, for homes costing $140,000 and 15 in Elmwood Park, costing $114,000. Berwyn had 13, for $114,000 and Cicero the same number, but costing $73,000. Evanston had 12 homes, costing $81,000.

Two Big Industrial Projects

Other suburbs reporting 10 or more homes last month were: Hammond, Ind., 12, for $80,000; Park Ridge, 11, for $116,000; Lombard, 11, for $92,000; and Broadview, 10, for $65,000.

The two largest suburban industrial projects were at Argo and East Chicago. At Argo, the Corn Products Refining company reported a $500,000 expenditure and Standard Oil is spending $498,000 at East Chicago.

BY EDWARD BURNS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 17—The University of Iowa's Hawkeyes, shunned by all but 13,800 Dad's day loyalists, and denied a Big Nine victory in their last 17 games, found this a happy world after all this afternoon as they whipped Minnesota's Gophers, 20 to 19, in a mighty fine game of football, earlier reputations of the teams notwithstanding.

The Hawkeyes spotted the reputedly revitalized Gophers a 13 to 0 lead in the first period, subsequently in the first half trailed by 19 to 6, then outplayed the Gophers the rest of the way. The victory surge came with four and one-half minutes of the game remaining when Nelson Smith took a screen pass from Jerry Niles and ran 50 yards for the tying touchdown. Then Niles kicked the point that brought long delayed triumph to the Hawkeyes, previously depressed by the most futile record in University of Iowa history.

Gopher Bid for Clincher Fails

The triumphal touchdown and kick developed soon after the Gophers had failed in what had appeared a big bid for a comfort touchdown. Iowa had been stopped after a Niles-to-Smith pass had carried to the Minnesota 7 yard line. The pass, like the later pass success by the same lads, had started from scrimmage on the Minnesota 49 yard line. The Gophers held on the 4 yard line, and shortly afterward Bob Fitch kicked to the Iowa 46. Iowa couldn't gain much and Dan Sheehan kicked out of bounds on the Minnesota 20.

The Gophers then advanced to the Iowa 23, but the Hawkeyes got the ball after Merlin Kispert, back to pass, had been thrown on fourth down and 11 to go for a 12 yard loss. It was Iowa's ball on its 40 yard line. John Hunter then made 9 yards. Then came the victory pass to Smith from Niles. Smith got the ball on the 50 yard line and ran thru the Gopher team for the tying touchdown. Niles booted the payoff kick from placement.

Try for Field Goal Misses

Fighting the clock, the Gophers marched to the Iowa 10 yard line. There was a 5 yard Minnesota penalty for delaying the game, then Kispert failed in a try for a field goal from the 22 yard line, with 20 seconds to go. The game ended shortly thereafter.

True to announcement, the Gophers started a team including many second stringers, but before the first period had proceeded far the regulars, including all of last Monday's "strikers," except one, who didn't make the trip, were in there and in and out during the remainder of the contest.

All of the points, except the seven for Iowa, late in the fourth period, were scored in the first half, as follows:

Minnesota scored in the fifth minute of play, on seven plays after get-

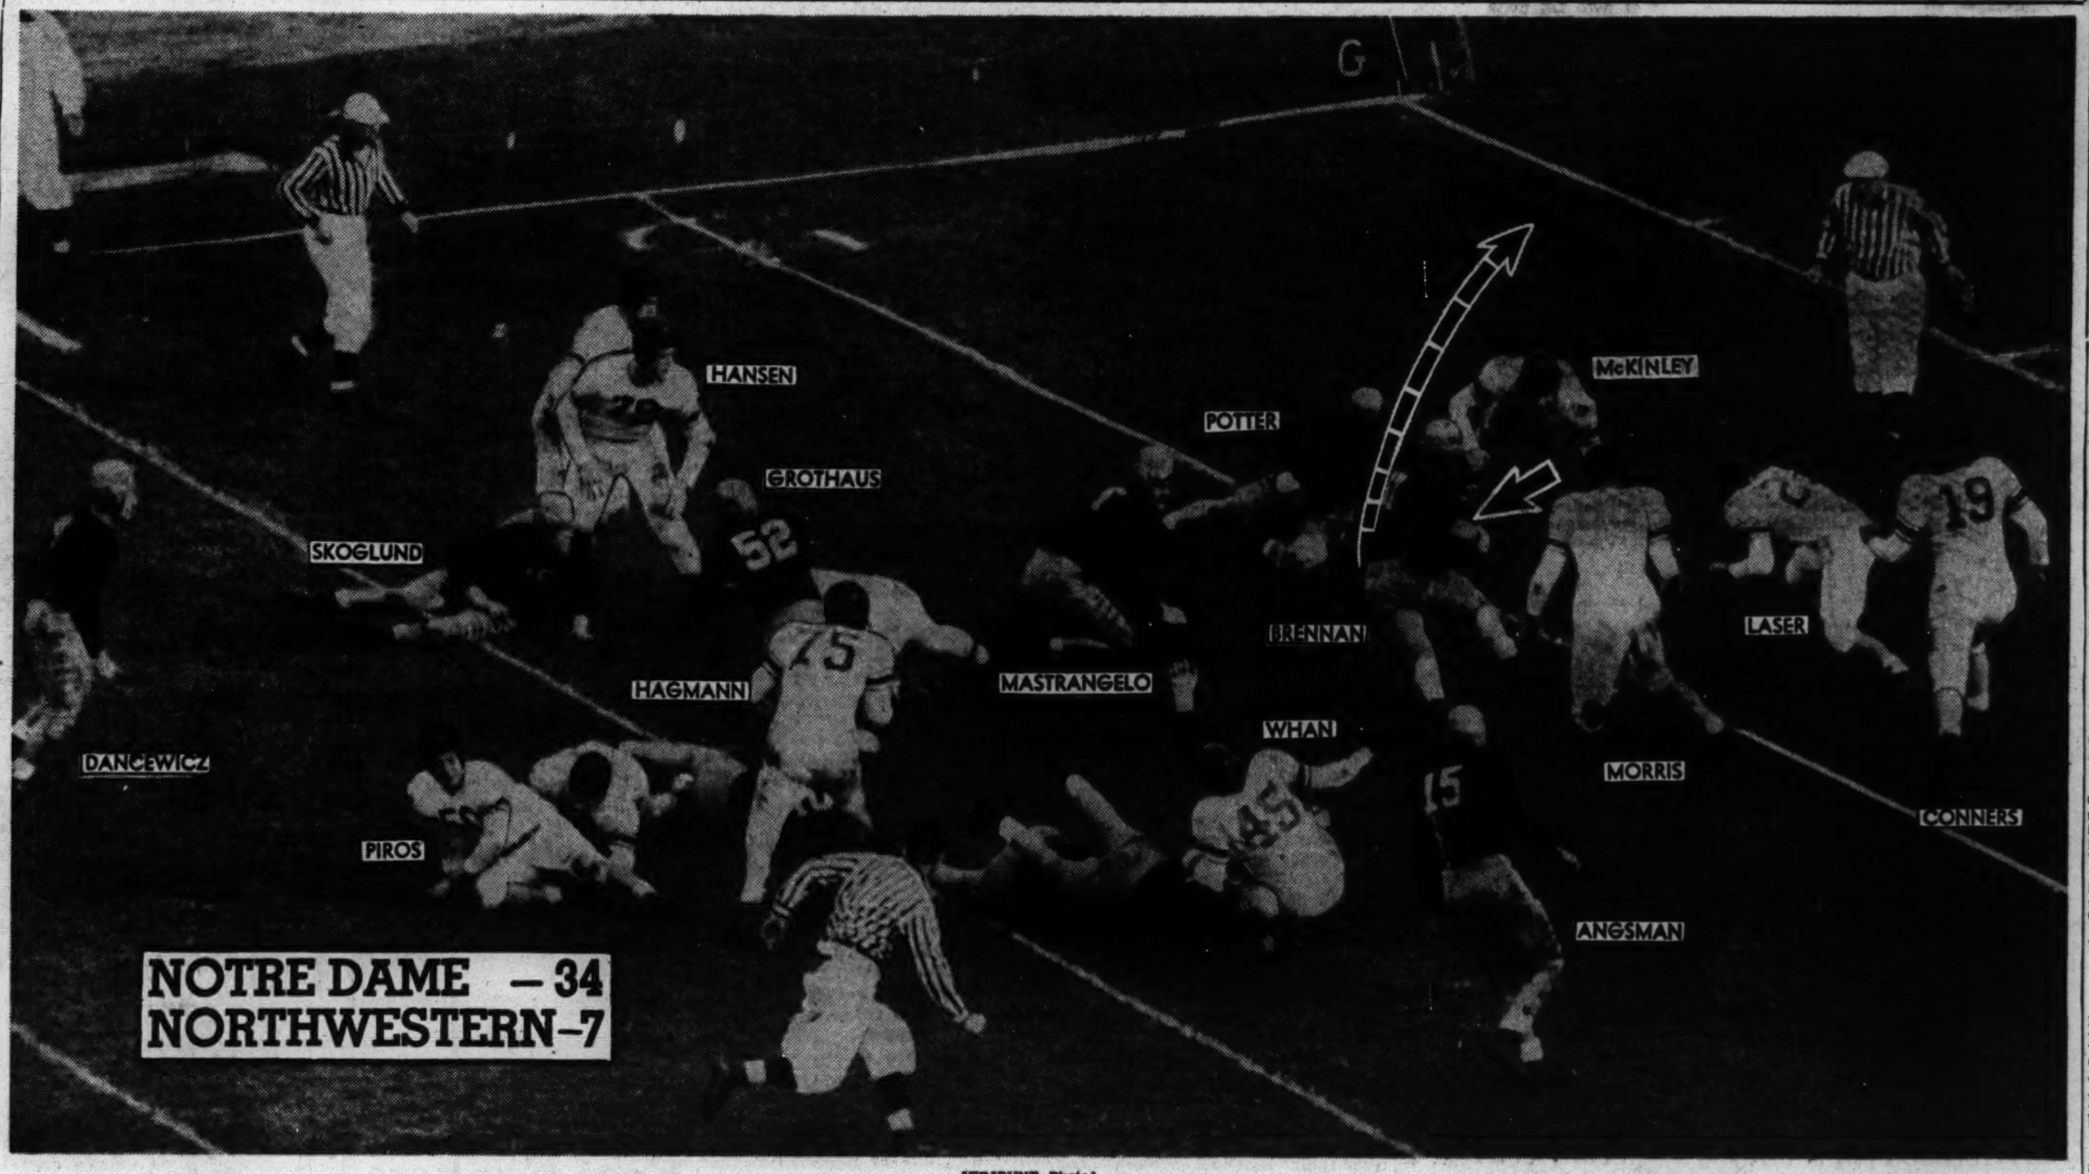
AN IRISHMAN SETS UP FIRST NOTRE DAME TOUCHDOWN



[TRIBUNE Photo]

Terry Brennan, Notre Dame back, breaks thru Northwestern line for 9 yards, carrying ball to 1 yard line in first quarter of game in Dyche stadium yesterday. U. secondary finally traps him just short of destination.

Navy Eleven Wins, 36 to 7, Over Badgers

BY CHARLES BARTLETT
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 17—Navy's bright gridiron midshipmen, preparing for their crucial, titanic and cosmic Dec. 1 struggle with Army's atomic cadets, today spent a highly disturbing afternoon in the Municipal stadium before they could whip Wisconsin's Badgers, 36 to 7. While the soldiers were tramping over Penn, 61 to 0, the Sailors found themselves restrained to a paltry 20 to 7 advantage at half time.

The 35,616 citizens who witnessed this contest, highly interesting for all the difference in points, fretted considerably during the opening half and there were not a few spells in the final 30 minutes wherein the brave young Badgers failed to harry their stronger and more experienced foes. Then the Navy went full steam ahead in the final quarter, scoring 16 points, of which two were registered on a safety and another seven off of a 70 yard run by Jim Pettit, substitute left half back.

Badger Fumbles Prove Costly

The statistics are the best evidence of the courageous if unsuccessful fight the Badgers made. Wisconsin collected 12 first downs, all of them from scrimmage, to 13 for the Middies, five of which were derived thru the air. The Badgers nearly matched their rivals in rushing yardage, 233 to 290, but fumbled three times, the Navy gents recovering the whole three mishaps. The Middies completed nine of 16 passes, while the visitors connected only once, and that accounted for their second period touchdown.

The Wisconsin backs at times were disconcertingly rough in their treatment of the Navy variety forward wall, puncturing it with guard trapping plays which produced several first downs in a single thrust. This was true of the smashes by Jerry Thompson and Don Kindt.

BUCKEYES GET 20 IN 4TH PERIOD; ROUT ILLINI, 27-2, BEFORE 70,287

BY ARCH WARD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Columbus, O., Nov. 17—Dick Fisher's running and kicking and Ollie Cline's plunging and fancy stepping were more than Illinois could cope with and the Buckeyes won the 34th game of the series today, 27 to 2.

Held to a net gain of only 10 yards in the first half, Illinois roared back with an offensive spurt in the third period that gave 70,287 spectators alternate attacks of chills and fever.

The outcome was in doubt until early in the fourth quarter, when Fisher ran back Bill Butkovich's punt to Illinois' 3 yard line. A minute or two previous Fisher had put the Illini in trouble with a long punt that sailed out of bounds only four yards from the goal.

Third Time Is Pay-Off

The middle of the Illinois line held Cline in two thrusts at the goal, but on his third attempt he crashed over for the touchdown that gave Ohio State a 14 to 2 lead. Cline later dashed 36 yards for another touchdown to guarantee victory.

The Buckeyes paraded 67 yards for their first touchdown. It started soon after the game began when Hal Daugherty returned Butkovich's punt to his 33. Illinois' left guard was mousetrapped on the first play and Cline broke away for a 26 yard gain. Daugherty, Fisher and Cline collaborated for another first down on Illinois' 29.

Half Ends on a Thrill

Cline got thru his left guard for 5, Daugherty went wide for 3, and Cline gained a first down on the 18. Bill Kolens, Illini left tackle, stopped Cline at the scrimmage line and Fisher's lateral to Cline made exactly nothing. Daugherty gained 8 around his left end and on fourth down darted thru his right tackle for a touchdown. Three Illini had a chance to down him, but he slipped off each would-be tackler. Max Schnittker came off the bench to score the extra point.

That was the only score in the first half, altho Ohio State dominated the play until the last few seconds of the second period. Illinois made only two first downs, one of which required the aid of a 5 yard penalty.

Illini Go to Work

The half had a sensational finish. Daugherty threw a forward pass from his 33 and Stan Stasica intercepted the ball on Illinois' 48 and raced back to Ohio State's 5, where he was hauled down by Jack Redd, Ohio's substitute right guard. The gun sounded before Illinois could get another play started.

Fired by Stasica's brilliant run, the Illini looked like a different team when they returned after the intermission. They kicked off and held the Buckeyes for downs, forcing Fisher to punt. The ball rolled dead on Illinois' 43.

Stasica whipped a forward pass to Ray Ciszek, who caught it on Ohio's 30 and ran to the 10 before he was overtaken. Gene Kwasniewski, who not long ago was a bombardier with an air crew in Europe,

Indiana Makes Pitt Eleven 19-0 Victim

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 17—The Big Nine's title bound Hoosiers of Indiana university added the Pittsburgh Panthers to their long list of victims, 19 to 0, this afternoon on a dangerously slick field in Pitt stadium.

A meager turnout of 5,000 fans lost their identity under umbrellas in the vast enclosure which seats over 65,000. Lost, too, was the identity of most of the players during the dismal afternoon. The Panthers took the field with red jerseys and white pants and the Hoosiers with white jerseys and red pants. By the time the first quarter was only half over, the mud made them all look alike.

Pihos, Taliaferro Star

There was a redeeming distinction, however, provided by the Indiana back field which plunged and passed so adroitly they were not to be mistaken for a Panther pack which threatened only once to score—early in the fourth period after Indiana had the game safely tucked away with a touchdown in the first period and two in the third.

Credit for Indiana's eighth victory in nine games and Pitts' fourth straight shutout is difficult to award, but Full Back Pete Pihos, who always came up with enough for a first down when needed, and George Taliaferro, the sensational left half from Gary, Ind., had matters under control at all times. Both put their versatility on display and brought End Bob Ravensberg's pass catching ability to the crowd's attention on several occasions.

Pihos Scores Twice

Pihos scored two of the touchdowns on line plunges, one of which was set up by a blocked kick on Pitt's 4 yard line. It was so difficult to see the numbers of the players that disagreement resulted. Center John Cannady and Tackle John Goldsberry both were in on the play, but it was Ted Kluszewski who recovered the ball and Pihos who lugged it over.

Ravensberg scored the other

BOILERMAKERS' TITLE CHANCES ERASED BY WOLVERINES' PASSES

BY IRVING VAUGHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 17—Michigan's Wolverines continued with their part in the Big Nine title race this afternoon when they eliminated another contender, Purdue's Boilermakers, by 27 to 13, before 50,100. The Boilermakers tumbled to their second conference defeat after convincing their foes that there wasn't much difference between them except for one, possibly two, things—one a weakness for rules transgression when it hurt, and the other a lack of defense against touchdown passes.

The Wolverines launched a long distance scoring pass before the game was five minutes on its way, and later on passed across the Purdue goal for two more touchdowns. The Boilermakers never came closer than six points, a state of affairs reached when they drove to their first score in the second period, which ended with a 20 to 7 Michigan margin. The remaining point harvesting was the result of a busy fourth quarter.

Cody, Canfield Roll Up Yardage

In the battle for yards among the backs, at least a couple of the Purdue lads were able to profit by the numerous times in which they were in charge of the ball. The almost nonstoppable Ed Cody padded his record with 105 yards in 23 rushes, and the busy Bill Canfield, 52 yards in 11 plays. Pacing the victors was Pete Elliott with 44 yards in 13 plays, but the lad from Bloomington had a little more fun by exhibiting his pitching arm. Four of five passes he turned loose were caught and three of the successful ones were the touchdown aerials. He also scored once on his own feet.

The statistics tell a fairly good story of what Purdue might have done if it hadn't attracted the attention of the officials at critical times. They outdid the Wolverines in first downs. They outrushed 'em on the ground, and they completed more forward passes than Michigan. The latter won by themselves on actual yardage for infractions, much of this representing assessment for unnecessary roughness.

Michigan Takes to Air

Before the Wolverines' unlooked-for pitch that launched the scoring, the Boilermakers, after taking the initial kick-off, had discovered their foes were on the stubborn side. A punt was necessary and it was partially blocked, putting the Wolverines on the offensive on their own 40 yard line. Bob Nussbaumer knocked off 6 yards on a tour around his right end and then lost 4 of it on a lateral. Jack Weisenburger plunged thru for a first down on Purdue's 48 yard line.

The Wolverines continued with their ground game and it failed 'em, thus the sudden switch to the air. In two plays Nussbaumer and Weisenburger were able to show nothing better than a 1 yard loss, whereupon Elliott drifted back with the ball in his hand and Nussbaumer, apparently unobserved, slipped behind the Purdue defenders. While the Boilermakers were skipping

St. Mary's Is Upset, 13 to 7, by U. C. L. A.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 17 (AP)—Marching 84 yards to score in the final minutes of play, the University of California at Los Angeles today scored an upset victory over St. Mary's college, 13 to 7, toppling the Gaels from the ranks of the nation's undefeated teams.

Before 87,000, the Bruins scored on Ernie Case's 15 yard pass to Skip Rowland, who ran five yards for the winning touchdown.

Score on Case to Solid Pass

The first U. C. L. A. touchdown also came on a pass by Case. Ken Solid took a 17 yard pitch on the Gael 22 and ran over untouched midway in the third quarter.

The Bruins, trailing by 7 to 0 at the half, completely squelched the vaunted Gael razzle dazzle with charging line play in the final periods. With one spectacular exception, the Bruins gave Hawaiian Herman Wedemeyer little chance to get set for his bullet passes.

St. Mary's touchdown came early in the first quarter after Ed Schultz recovered Jack Boyd's fumble of a Wedemeyer punt on the Bruin 13. Wedemeyer circled end for 11 and lunged over tackle from the 2 to put the Gaels in front.

Gaels 5 Yards from Goal

St. Mary's barely missed another score in the opening period after driving to the U. C. L. A. 5 on Wedemeyer's 45 yard pass to Schultz, followed by Dennis O'Connor's run with Schultz' fumble. The play was good for 65 yards in all. But the Bruins stiffened and took over the ball and the Gaels never were close thereafter. U. C. L. A. amassed 14 first downs to seven for St. Mary's. The game, the last on the Gaels' regular schedule, kept them from becoming St. Mary's first unbeaten, untied team.

BY WILFRID SMITH

Notre Dame twice successfully defended its goal line yesterday in Dyche stadium before starting production, but the Irish, once under way, scored in all periods to beat Northwestern convincingly, 34 to 7, before a capacity crowd of 49,500.

The annual battle between these ancient football rivals was far more thrilling than the score would seem to indicate, for the offensive strength of the two teams statistically was almost even. But the key to Notre Dame's success was confidence, for the Irish refused to crack under steady first period assaults by the Wildcats and then went about the business of winning with the same skill that had characterized their defense.

Thus Notre Dame proved the master and did it the hard way. The Wildcats, for example, had 34 rushing plays in the first 10 minutes, while Notre Dame only handled the ball three times and one of these was a punt by Frank Dancewicz. But Northwestern failed on drives which linked together 11 and 12 plays, respectively, and Notre Dame then made its initial touchdown before the period ended.

Angsman Scores First Touchdown

Elmer Angsman was the star of Notre Dame's first attack for his 50 yard run was the principal factor. He then was rewarded by the assignment to plunge the last two yards. Jim McGurk, relief full back for Frank Ruggerio, was the carrier of record for touchdown No. 2 early in the second period.

In the third quarter Floyd Simmons, a newcomer to the Irish squad from St. Mary's Pre-flight, crossed Northwestern's goal line to climax a 44 yard attack.

With these three earned touchdowns as ample insurance for Notre Dame's 20th victory in 25 games, the Irish were ready to take advantage of the Wildcats desperation. The fourth touchdown was by Bill Gompers' interception of Jim Farrar's pass. At this point in the last period, Notre Dame led, 27 to 0, since Stan Krivik missed his fourth drop kick in the try for the extra point. Farrar then forward passed the Wildcats to their consolation score, which was the signal for George Ratterman, Irish sub quarter back, to match it with a 48 yard scoring pass to Gomeprs who eluded the Wildcat safety man.

Notre Dame's Line Improves

Notre Dame's line steadily improved as the game progressed, not only in power but also in timing and sharpness. But at all times, the Irish had more explosive backs and the best of them was Angsman. He carried the ball four times in the six Notre Dame needed to travel 90 yards for its first touchdown, but this detail must wait for a few paragraphs. Until this scoring march, Northwestern completely dominated the contest.

The Wildcats won the toss and chose to receive. From their own 32 yard line, where Dick Conners was grounded after his 27 yard return, the Wildcats drove to Notre Dame's 21 where Farrar ran on fourth down when he couldn't spot a receiver.

Dancewicz kicked out and the ball sailed over Farrar's head and rolled dead on Northwestern's 13. Nine plays later the Wildcats were on the Irish 22 and they moved ahead 3 yards in two more plays before Farrar's third down pass was inter-

SAILORS SWAMP SOLDIERS, 47-14, AT GREAT LAKES

Bluejackets Reveal Power to Shipmates

BY JAMES SEGRETI

The Great Lakes Bluejackets yesterday showed 18,000 shipmates they have picked up a number of football tricks since leaving their home port Oct. 6 to play four games on the road. The sailors bombarded the Fort Warren, Wyo. Broncos, 47 to 14, for their fifth consecutive victory and their first success of the season on the naval training center's Ross field.

The Bluejackets revealed their vastly improved attack by scoring on 11 ground plays midway thru the first period, then exploded in the following quarter with aerial and rushing maneuvers to add four touchdowns. The Bluejacket second stringers, who warmed the bench for three periods, joined the scoring parade by going over twice in the final period.

Soldiers Threaten Twice

Fort Warren's scoring was limited to a brilliant 75 yard run by End Kenneth Whitney on a kickoff return in the second period, and a 2 yard plunge by Robert Stephens in the final quarter. The soldiers, who made only two first downs in the first half, threatened twice in the third period, reaching the 10 yard line on one occasion, and later driving to the 6. The Bluejackets held each time.

Frank Aschenbrenner, formerly of Marquette, climaxed a 70 yard drive after seven minutes of play in the first quarter by going over from the 9 yard line for the first touchdown and his 11th of the season. The march included two runs of 16 and 8 yards by Marion Motley, Bluejacket Negro full back.

The Bluejackets needed only two pass plays to score the second touchdown, George Terlep tossing to Bill O'Connor for 15 yards and to Harry Grant for 13. Terlep later pitched 25 yards to O'Connor to give the sailors a 21 to 0 lead. Late in the second period the Bluejackets began a march from their own 26 and in eight plays went over again, Motley making the final 2 yards.

Score on Interception

After Whitney's 75 yard run down the east side line had made the score 27 to 7, Grant added his second touchdown of the game by intercepting Richard Brecunier's pass and racing 39 yards with only one minute and 20 seconds left in the first half, which ended with the sailors leading 34 to 7.

Richard Ottele, ex-Washington back and Terlep's substitute, tossed two touchdown passes in the final period. One toss went to End Ralph Jones for 10 yards, and the sailors' sixth score, and another, good for 25 yards, was caught by Donald Deere, former Texas back.

Palo Alto, Cal., Nov. 17 (AP)—Coach Marchie Schwartz' Stanford university Indians, in their first game since 1942, today bowed to the superior weight and experience of the Stockton Commandos and were defeated, 19 to 13.

An estimated 10,000 fans watched the green Stanford team battle on even terms with their rivals until the fourth quarter. Stanford led, 13 to 7, at the end of the third quarter, but Bob Krieger, former Dartmouth star, pitched two touchdown passes in the final period to give the Commandos the game.

SPARTANS DEAL 33 TO 0 DEFEAT TO PENN STATE

East Lansing, Mich., Nov. 17 [Special] — Michigan State's unpredictable Spartans scored their third upset victory of the season before 8,987 here today, taking advantage of every break and employing a highly effective pass attack to defeat Penn State's Nittany Lions, 33 to 0.

The defeat was the second of the season for Penn State, which had been beaten only by Navy and which had been in line for an invitation to the Orange bowl.

Cash in on Foe's Errors

Michigan State capitalized on three scoring opportunities in the first half. A poor pass from center on fourth down gave Michigan State possession on the Penn State 29 yard line late in the opening period. Russ Reader's pass to Warren Huey was ruled complete on the visitors' 12 yard line. Reader then passed to Tino Barbas on the 9 yard line and to Steve Contos, who was run out on the 1. Jack Breslin went over for the touchdown.

Early in the second quarter Al Bellas fumbled on the Penn State 11 and Huey recovered for the Spartans. Contos lost 5 and Reader then shot a quick pass to Huey in the end zone for the Spartans' second score. Reader added the extra point.

The Spartans' third touchdown was set up late in the second quarter when Glenn Johnson intercepted Bellas' pass on the Michigan State 48. Dominic Conti passed to Reader, who went out on the Penn State 36. Reader then passed to Tino Barbas on the 20, and to Huey in the end zone. Reader kicked the extra point to give Michigan State a 20 to 0 lead at half time.

Pass Play Gains 38 Yards

Taking the ball on their own 47 in the third quarter the Spartans again took to the air. Reader tossed a 15 yard pass to Barbas on the Penn State 38, and Conti tossed a long pass which Reader took on the 20 and went the rest of the way for a touchdown. Reader added the extra point again.

The Spartan reserves outplayed the Nittany Lions during the remainder of the game. Midway in the fourth quarter they moved the ball to the Penn State 10 yard line, and Breslin entered the game and scored.

Reader was the backbone of the Spartan attack, completing eight out of 13 passes, including two for touchdowns. He caught a pass for another score. Lineups:

banged thru the right side of the Ohio State line for 5. Stasica gained only 1 yard at the Buckeyes' left guard and none at all trying to pierce the middle. Warren Amling, the Buckeyes' acting captain, knocked down a fourth down pass from Butkovich in the end zone.

Bob Dove, standing deep in his end zone attempting to punt, dropped a bad pass from center. He was tackled before he could get up to the goal line and the Illini were given a safety.

A Fumble Is Costly

Illinois got another drive under way after an exchange of punts gave it the ball on its 29. Stasica passed to Wesley Tregoning for 5 and Kwasniewski hit thru right tackle for 5 more. He picked up 5 more thru the other side and Stasica added 4. Kwasniewski's 3 yard advance was good for another first down, but here disaster overtook the Illini. Al Zimmerman, reserve half back, fumbled and Jim Crane recovered for Ohio on Illinois' 45.

The play changed the character of the game. Illinois never regained the initiative.

Soon thereafter came Fisher's punt that went out of bounds on Illinois' 4. Jack Pierce sped 22 yards, but the handsome gain was nullified by a holding penalty which moved back the Illini to their 1 foot line. Butkovich got off a punt which Fisher ran back to the Illinois' 3. That sprint broke Illinois' morale. Three plays later the Buckeyes scored the touchdown that put the game on ice. Schnittker kicked the extra point.

Five minutes later Ohio State counted again on Cline's 36 yard touchdown dash. Cline, by the way, gained 124 yards today while the whole Illinois team netted only 88. Schnittker again kicked goal to boost the score to 21 to 2.

Sub Intercepts a Pass

Charles Gandee, substitute full back, set up Ohio's final touchdown, intercepting a pass from Joe Saban on Illinois' 34. He ran to the 9 before Clyde Perkins dumped him. With only 52 seconds remaining, Paul Sarringhaus, who didn't get into the lineup until the last few minutes, fired a pass to Gandee, who caught the ball one yard short of the goal line and drove across for the tally. Schnittker's kick from placement was wide and the score was 27 to 2.

Kwasniewski was the principal ball carrier for the Illini. He moved 50 yards in 14 trips. Stasica, who was their best all around back, gained 40 yards in 12 attempts.

Sports on The Production Line

BY WILLIAM BAYLISS

THE American Gear and Manufacturing company's experiment in professional basketball last season apparently was a success for the Gears again are enrolled in the National Basketball league, in which they took runner-up honors in the western division last season.

The American Gear venture into pro sports was watched with interest in the industrial recreation field. Many persons felt that the placing of so much stress on one team might react against interest in the company's program as a whole. However, this apparently did not happen, for two other American Gear teams won championships in their own spheres of competition, these being the Lindahl Foundries men's quintet and the White Liners girls.

Two Group Discussions in 11th Recreation Meet of Special Interest

Two of the 12 group discussions on the schedule of the 11th Chicago recreatiton conference in the Morrison hotel Nov. 27 should be of special interest to industrial recreation workers. These are the morning session on "New Issues for Professional Leaders in Recreation" and the afternoon topic on "Labor-Management, a Community Team in Industrial Recreation."

The morning discussion group will be led by Harvie Boorman, with Dr. Clifford Manshardt, Walter Roy, and Neva Boyd as resource persons. The afternoon panel is headed by Myrna Siegendorf, assisted by Jack Spencer, William Lee, Annetta Dieckman, Conrad B. Rheiner, and John W. Fulton.

One week in first place seems to be about the limit for a team in the Division St. Y. M. C. A. Industrial Bowling league these days as the majority of the 16 teams retain their title ambitions. The J. P. Seeburg corporation bowlers, undisputed leaders last week, now share the top spot with International Printing Ink, which Tuesday took three in a row from Churchill Cabinet, while the Seeburgs were dropping one of their three with Redmer Sons Co. Frank Majchrowicz of Phoenix Dye Works is the leading individual, with an average of 183.

The league leading Seeburg team, mentioned above, is made up of the top five individuals, in the Seeburg intraplant league last year. Presumably positions on the "varsity" squad will be decided each year on the same basis.

Wrisleys Tie Smiths for Lead in Clearing Bowling League

There's a tie for first place in the Clearing Industrial Bowling league also, the Wrisley Olivilos having climbed back into a deadlock with the H. P. Smith No. 1 squad. The Olivilos took two out of three from the Wrisley Du Parcs, while the Smiths were losing a pair to the Chicago Steel Tanks. Sciaky Brothers, J. & J. Surgicals and Chicago Steel Tanks are right behind the two leaders.

A third industrial league which this week features a joint occupancy of first place in the Chicago Association of Commerce circuit, with Illinois Bell Telephone sharing the spot with Savoy Drug and Chemical. The latter took three straight from Cardox corporation Thursday night, while Illinois Bell dropped one to Railway Express Agency. The eighth place outfit in the 16 team league is only five games back of the leaders. Earl Johnson of Graver Dearborn corporation rolled a 267 game and 630 series in leading his team to a sweep over the La Salle Hotels.

ARMY SMASHES PENN, 61 TO 0, BEFORE 73,000

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—Army overwhelmed a strong Pennsylvania eleven, 61 to 0, before a crowd of 73,000 in Franklin field, today. Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard each scored three touchdowns before they were withdrawn in the third period.

In scoring their 17th straight victory the cadets ran their scoring total for eight games to 380 points against opponents' 33. Blanchard and Davis were, as usual, superb. Davis scored on the second play when he raced 27 yards around right end for a touchdown. Each of the cadets' stars now has 16 touchdowns for the season.

The Quakers' big line was ripped to shreds by the cadet backs, and their own offense never functioned against Army's huge forwards.

The cadets piled up 383 yards by rushing to Penn's 56, and passed for another 139 to the Quakers' 92 yards. Not shown by the statistics was the fact that two touchdown runs by Blanchard in the first quarter were called back because the officials detected an Army back in motion.

George Savitsky, 255 pound Penn tackle, was taken to the hospital with a slight brain concussion after the game. It was expected that he would be available for the closing game with Cornell next Saturday.

Yale Wins, 41 to 6

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 17 (AP)—Yale, with Bill Penn setting the pace, trounced an inept Coast Guard academy eleven, 41 to 6, in the bowl today to record the Blue's 500th football victory in 73 years. Penn tallied three touchdowns. Some 10,000 fans saw the dull fracas in which the victors rolled up their biggest score since 1935.

HARVARD WINS, 14-7

Providence, R. I., Nov. 17 (AP)—Harvard came from behind with two la.. half touchdowns to beat Brown, 14 to 7, today before 15,000 fans. Touchdowns by Herb Fritts on a 5 yard smash and by Frank Lebart, right guard, on a pass interception, nullified the tally that Brown scored on a Bob Mesch-to-Bill Lyons 6 yard pass early in the first quarter.

CORNELL, 20; DARTMOUTH, 13

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 17 (AP)—After a shaky start on a snow covered gridiron, Cornell settled down for a 20 to 13 victory over Dartmouth today in their 29th football renewal. The Indians have been denied victory in this series since the game here in 1940.

BYRD ADDS TO MOBILE GOLF TOURNEY LEAD

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 17 (AP)—Sam Byrd of Detroit, Mich., extended his lead in the $10,000 Azalea Open golf tournament to three strokes at the end of the third round of play today by scoring an even par 72. With the 69 and 70 he posted the first two days, the former New York Yankee outfielder had a total of 211, and entered the final round of play tomorrow the favorite to win the $2,000 first prize money.

Four veterans were grouped right back of Byrd with 214s. They were Joe Kirkwood, Philadelphia; Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa.; Art Doering, Denver, and Dutch Harrison, Little Rock, Ark.

Florida Accommodates Governor; Wins, 41 to 0

Gainesville, Fla., Nov. 17 (AP)—Obviously smarting under recent criticism from Gov. Caldwell, Florida's Gators smothered a weak Presbyterian college eleven, 41 to 0, before 3,000 today. The governor recently said he was tired of seeing Florida teams lose.

MARQUETTE U. IS VICTOR, 19 TO 13, OVER KENTUCKY

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 17 [Special]—After spotting the University of Kentucky Wildcats an early touchdown, the Marquette university football team came from behind to win, 19 to 13, before 5,000 dampened fans today. The Hilltoppers, with a total of 198 points, thus became the highest scoring Marquette eleven since the undefeated team of 1922 which tallied 213.

The Wildcats traveled 74 yards for their first score in the second quarter. A 40 yard pass from Quarter Back George Blanda to Half Back Bill Chambers highlighted the advance. Blanda went thru center for 2 yards and the touchdown. Fred Ferris' conversion gave Kentucky a 7 to 0 lead.

Marquette scored after Guard John Crowley recovered a Kentucky fumble on the Wildcat 25. Two plays later Quarter Back Bob Lodde passed to Half Back Jerry Strohm who went the remaining 15 yards to the end zone. Guard Bob Dams converted to set the half time score at 7 to 7.

A 47 yard run by Half Back Paul Copoulos of Marquette to the Kentucky 6 set up another touchdown early in the third quarter with Copoulos scoring from the 6 inch line to make it 13 to 7. Early in the fourth quarter the Hilltoppers tallied again when Full Back Denny Pantzlaff intercepted a Kentucky pass and returned it 29 yards to the Kentucky 1 from where Lodde scored.

Kentucky then went 80 yards to count once more with Capt. Roger Yost going over from the 1 for the final touchdown.

2d Place Tie Blackhawks' Goal Tonight

Karakas	G	Lumley
Wares	D	Stewart
Allen	D	Seibert

M. Bentley	C	Carveth
D. Bentley	L. W.	Liscombe

The Blackhawks and Detroit Wings will play the first of five Chicago engagements in the National Hockey league schedule tonight in Chicago Stadium, with the Hawks spurred by a desire for revenge for the defeat inflicted on them by Detroit in their first meeting Thursday as well as by the desire to regain a second place tie with the Wings.

Last year the Red Wings won three of the five stadium engagements against the Hawks, but this year that may be hard to duplicate, for while the Detroit sextet was the only team so far which succeeded in topping the Hawks' forward line of Max and Doug Bentley and Bill Mosienko, repeating the trick on Chicago ice may be something else again.

Detroit has considerable punch itself, as far as that goes, for in Syd Howe the Red Wings have the greatest point maker in the league's history. Howe achieved this distinction March 8 last season, when an assist against the New York Rangers gave him a life time point total of 515, breaking the old mark compiled by Nels Stewart between 1925 and 1940 as a member of the Montreal Maroons, Boston Bruins, and New York Americans. Since then Howe has run his total up to 520 points, made up of 234 goals and 286 assists.

In addition, the Red Wings have the best defense in the league, centered about Harry Lumley, sensational young goalie. Thursday's game against the Blackhawks was Lumley's seventh of the season, and the two scores he yielded brought the total against him for the year to only 11, a remarkable record in these days of high scoring.

TEMPLE DEALS A 14 TO 6 SETBACK TO HOLY CROSS

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 17 (AP)—Holy Cross' dreams of a post-season football game were jolted today as Temple university eleven upset the unbeaten Crusaders, 14 to 6, before 26,000.

The Owls, enjoying a superiority in the line, paraded 60 yards to a touchdown midway thru the second period. Then, after the Crusaders had scored to trail by a point, Temple's Jack Burns, Gene Zawolski and Phil Slosburg set out on another long drive which rolled 71 yards to the clinching touchdown early in the final quarter.

Burns, Zawolski Score

Burns made Temple's first score from a yard out and Zawolski plunged across on a similarly short charge for the second one. Jimmy Wilson kicked both extra points.

The Crusaders went 56 yards for their touchdown early in the third period, little Joe Byers tallying on a 23 yard run after taking a wide lateral from Stan Koslowski. Koslowski's attempt to kick the extra point was blocked by Mark Dolin.

17 Temple First Downs

Once beaten Temple outplayed the Crusaders by a wide margin. The Owls rolled up 17 first downs, rushed for 238 yards and passed for 19 others. Holy Cross was held to 9 first downs, 120 yards rushing and 32 others passing.

COLUMBIA ROUTS PRINCETON

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 17 (AP)—Columbia returned to winning ways today, whipping Princeton, 32 to 7, before an estimated 18,000 in Palmer stadium.

The Lions, knocked out of the ranks of the unbeaten by Pennsylvania a week ago, scored in every period—twice on long runs by Full Back Lou Kusserow. It was the fourth Columbia victory over Princeton in 20 games between the two schools, whose rivalry dates back to 1874.

Columbia made 306 yards on the ground and 160 in the air, compared to Princeton's 149 and 66.

BUY-LINES • by Phil Sasser
A Weekly Sponsored Column of Things Advertised and Interesting.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 18th.—I saw a football game yesterday via a television set,—and got a bigger kick out of it than if I'd been in the stadium. Action was sharp and clear on the screen . . . and you could follow the ball even on forwards and laterals that were too hot to handle. So maybe it's time for a little dope on television BUY-LINES . . . since transmitting stations with a range of around 50 miles are now operating in 5 major cities. Others are being planned and produced . . . and a few manufacturers are already taking orders for television sets. Price starts at around $100 for the sets with small screens . . . the size depending on the type and size of the tubes used. * * * But it's Thanksgiving and Christmas shopping that's in the air right now . . . here, for instance, are tips for the ladies on your list.

"STOLEN HEAVEN" might mean many things to many men — but to Norman Hartnell, Coutourier by Appointment to the Royal Family of England, it definitely means a brilliant perfume any sophisticated woman will love. For my money he's right — HARTNELL'S "Stolen Heaven" goes beside favored feminine names in my Christmas shopping notebook! Seriously, this perfume is as compelling and heady as its name . . . is beautifully bottled and cushioned in a satin box of deep-night blue. For the light-hearted debutante or the charming hostesses you'd like to remember, I suggest HARTNELL'S "Bright Stars" and "Gay Glitter." You'll find these three new perfumes at smart Perfumery Counters . . . ideal Christmas gifts for the ladies!

BORROW HER EAR exactly this far before Christmas! If you don't you'll regret it December 25th when you receive her idea of "just what HE wants"! "SEAFORTH" is a good word to whisper loud and often,—for SEAFORTH Toiletries in sturdy stoneware mugs and jugs not only aid any man's grooming, but brace the spirit with the outdoor freshness of Scotch heather and fern. SEAFORTH Shaving Mug, Lotion, Men's Talc and Men's Cologne, Hairdressing, Hand Soap and Men's Deodorant give an out-of-doors "pick-up" for every day . . . and said Li'l Woman can play Santa Claus with them to you at only $1 to $7, plus tax, for single items or handsome gift combination sets!

THANKSGIVING GIFT to a gracious hostess, or to anyone you want to remember, ought to be in the full tradition of the day. That's why I recommend above all else a HOENSHEL Brandied Fruit Cake! Expert chefs have translated nuts, fruits, spice and rare brandy and wines into just the succulent treat for Thanksgiving tables! It has the flavor of a home-treat, with none of the drawbacks of baking troubles! Find HOENSHEL Brandied Fruit Cake at fine Food, Department and Confectionery Stores, or write HOENSHEL Fine Foods, Inc., Sandusky, Ohio.

GARY COOPER is a shy guy . . . not given to spouting off with advice. So when he speaks up in the current sporting magazines on the "know-how" he's discovered about close, smooth shaves . . . it's NEWS! "A man well groomed is a man who has self-confidence," says the star of Along Came Jones . . . "and I've found that the quick, slick shaves given by PERSONNA Blades are the basis of good grooming." Try PERSONNA Precision Blades yourself and you'll see why . . . they're made of premium steel and the edges are hollow-ground for extra keenness. They're rust-resistant so they last longer. $1 brings you 10!

HATS ARE IMPORTANT as calling cards . . . as much an index to the man you are as the way you shake hands. So if you're going places in the business world, let your SCHOBLE proclaim the fact! I suggest the new SCHOBLE "President Hat" . . . an off-face executive type hat that is a little more in line with the demands of winter business and social activity than the more casual snap-brim. Wear the "President Hat" proudly on any occasion . . . made of the famous SCHOBLE quality felt and styled with the masterly skill that has made SCHOBLE an honored name in Gentlemen's Hats since 1886.

THE WORLD WILL BEAT A PATH to the door of the man who builds a better product. And I have a feeling that the world will soon be beating a wider path to drug counters that sell S. S. White ORALINE Tooth Paste,—for here is a BETTER dentifrice! And certainly it ought to be,—for it's made with the "know-how" of America's largest maker of dental supplies and is widely favored by dentists for its invigorating flavor and efficient cleansing power that is absolutely SAFE! Like many a serviceman, I first met ORALINE overseas, found that it kept my mouth fresh as a daisy! Why not try S. S. White's ORALINE yourself? I'll wager you'll never use another tooth paste. 25c and 40c at your Druggist's.

BY EDWARD PRELL

Chicago's two football teams figure in National Football league championship excitment today, but in a negative way. The Cardinals and Bears long since have been rudely ejected from the title seeking ranks, but the schedule just happens to have them hooked up against the leaders in each division.

In Comiskey park, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, the Cardinals will line up for the kickoff against the Cleveland Rams. In Griffith stadium, Washington, the Bears and Redskins will resume the most modern of the football feuds. Their rivalry has been intense since 1940 when the Bears walloped the Redskins in the league play-off championship game, 73 to 0.

Halas Is Back

This year the Bears are down, but with them is a living symbol of the renaissance to come. Comdr. George Halas, who is leaving the navy, will watch his team against the Redskins, who are leading the eastern fight with five straight victories after a lead-off loss to the Boston Yanks.

George McAfee, discharged from the navy, will join the Bears in Washington today but probably will see only limited action against the Redskins. Lt. [j. g.] Joe Stydahar, four times named the outstanding tackle on National league all-star teams, also has received his release from the navy and may play today.

Fans who journey out to the White Sox park may be getting a preview of the 1945 league champions. Certainly they will be seeing the team which is rated the favorite to represent the western division which since 1936 has had either the Bears or Packers as its standard bearer against the eastern champion.

Cleveland has swept its two game series against the Bears and Packers and has notched single triumphs over the Cards and New York Giants. The Rams' great young back field will be strengthened today by Indian Jack Jacobs, the great passer from Oklahoma. In 1942 Jacobs starred with the Rams in his first professional season. Jacobs will give Cleveland an excellent replacement for Bob Waterfield at the key T formation quarter back spot.

Played in Honolulu Sunday

If the Rams manage to get a safe lead today, fans may expect to get more than a fleeting glimpse of Jacobs. He played football as late as last Sunday in Honolulu with an army air force team.

The Cards don't figure to beat the Rams, but the Chicagoans are world champions at coming close to winning. Paul Christman, the Cards' T formation quarter back, has been hot and cold with his passing. He holds one record—that of throwing more times this season than any other pitcher in the league. The Cards have a burly, experienced line which may hold its own with the Rams' speedier and younger forwards. The Rams figure to win in the air on Waterfield's accurate tosses.

The Bears went to Washington for more than the train ride. They have gone there in other years prohibitive favorites to win. This time it will be an upset if they outscore a team which is rated at almost prewar strength. The Bears, tho inferior in personnel, are a threat every time they take the field, particularly now that Sid Luckman has bouncved back into his normal efficiency level as a passer.

MICHIGAN ENDS PURDUE'S TITLE HOPES, 27 TO 13

around waiting for something to happen Elliott cut loose his fearfully long pitch and Nussbaumer, with nobody to disturb him, took it in and galloped 15 yards to the goal. George Chiames kicked the extra point for a 7 to 0 lead.

Penalty Stops Purdue

On the kick-off after the touchdown the Boilermakers bounced back with so much violence that it was merely bad luck that kept them from breaking in with a touchdown. With Cody and Canfield on the loose and with a pass by Bob De Moss to Norman Maloney, the Boilermakers charged from their own 29 to a first down on Michigan's 4 yard line. A ruinous penalty set 'em back 5 yards, but nevertheless they went up to within inches of the goal before losing the ball on downs.

Michigan's second touchdown got under way early in the second period, when Purdue lost the ball on downs on the enemy 36. Elliott and Henry Fonde were the heavy men in a drive to Purdue's 42 yard line, where Howard Yerges tossed a 15 yard pass to Art Renner. Fonde picked up 2, Yerges lateralled to Elliott for 6, and Weisenburger shot thru for a first down on the 13. A 5 yard penalty was hung on Purdue and the remaining distance vanished in three charges by Elliott. Chiames missed his kick for the 14th point.

Maloney Grabs Fumble

The Boilermakers got into scoring position a few minutes later when Fonde fumbled a punt and Maloney grabbed the ball for Purdue on the Michigan 20. Cody was the short-cut to 6 points. He went to his left for 3 yards and then thru for 13. In two more plays he was operating within a foot of the goal. On the fifth straight play he dove over the line and Tom Hughes kicked the extra point to reduce Michigan's edge to 13 against 7.

Fonde's runback of the kick-off following the above touchdown had much to do with the 7 point Michigan splurge that came within a few minutes. Fonde came all the way up to the 50 yard mark with the kick-off and the Wolverines promptly tried out another of their long passes. It failed to connect, but this didn't discourage them. Elliott tossed another and altho Nussbaumer, the catcher, was fairly well flanked by Bollermakers, he wriggled free and scooted 24 yards to the goal, Chiames kicking the extra point.

Penalized for Roughing

The Wolverines' roughhousing, which they quickly regretted, came late in the third period, the penalty putting the Boilermakers on the Michigan 41. Dave Shaw skipped around end for 6 and Canfield made it a first down on the 27, Cody adding a yard as the quarter closed.

De Moss opened the last period with a short pass to Canfield, good for 17 yards. In two plays Cody went to the 1 foot mark. Canfield couldn't gain, but on the next play De Moss flipped the ball to Shaw, who lunged thru the Michigan defenders for the touchdown. Handicapped by a bad pass from center, Hughes failed to kick the extra point.

With about five minutes of the fourth quarter remaining Shaw intercepted a pass and raced it up to Michigan's 15 yard line, but the play was called back and the Boilermakers penalized 5 yards for offside. Renner took a pass and moved to the Boilermakers' 30. Nussbaumer carried on a campaign against the Boilermaker forward wall and the Wolverines went to the 10 yard line, where Elliott pitched a pass to Renner in the end zone. Chiames' toe picked up the final point. Statistics:

Slovaks Play Necaxas for Title Today

BY OFFSIDE

The first division championship of the National Soccer league will be at stake today in Sparta stadium when the Slovaks oppose the Necaxas at 2:30 p. m. in a playoff game for the title. The playoff was brought about last Sunday when the Slovaks upset their opponents to gain a tie for the lead. It was the Necaxas's first defeat.

The Vikings, major division champions, will end their season against the Schwabens in Winnemac park.

Necaxa, handicapped by the loss of four key men, has been working all week to eliminate weaknesses which cropped up in last week's game, and is expected to put up a stiff fight to gain the right for promotion to the major division, prize awarded each season to the first division leaders. The Slovaks, however, have been greatly reinforced by the acquisition of Alex Boisseree, once one of the brightest stars in the Shanghai, China, soccer picture, and feel confident of their ability to repeat last week's triumph.

Several exhibition games are on the program today as well as for Thanksgiving day. Feature of the contests this afternoon will be a meeting between Hakoah and Milwaukee's Bayerns in Key Branch stadium, while the unbeaten Viking reserves will meet the John Rago Sons, who will be reinforced by Bob Swanson and Ken Houdek of Morton High school.

COLGATE BEATS SYRACUSE, 7-6, ON 2D PERIOD SCORE

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 17 (AP)—Colgate today defeated Syracuse, 7 to 6, in their traditional game before a crowd of 25,000. Colgate scored in the second period on a 15 yard touchdown pass, Ed Grygiel to Warren Davis. Allan Short, a substitute, kicked the extra point. Syracuse came back in the final quarter to score on a pass, Roger Robinson to Pete Morrow. Angelo Acocella failed to make the extra point.

SHOTGUNS KEPT BUSY IN UPLAND GAME SEASON

BY BOB BECKER

Illinois hunters are spending every available minute in the field these days to hunt pheasants, quail or rabbits, for the season on these species is now open.

In Michigan, law enforcement agencies are slightly dizzy trying to keep up with a record crowd of deer hunters. Before the Michigan deer hunting season ends Nov. 30, the conservation department expects that upwards of 250,000 hunters will have bought licenses and gone into the woods in the hope of bagging some venison.

Last year 224,000 deer hunters were out with their guns, the second largest number on record. Lifting of gasoline regulations, shorter working hours, and a large number of returned servicemen are expected to swell the ranks of the hunters this fall.

Wisconsin Hunters Wait

Wisconsin deer hunters have to wait until Nov. 24 for their turn at the deer. The season up there continues thru Nov. 28.

Next Saturday will be a red letter day for Illinois goose hunters because at noon it will be legal to hunt wild geese in the southern part of the state, where the honkers congregate in large numbers on and around the Horseshoe lake refuge.

In order to cut down the heavy kill of geese in Alexander county, which includes the Horseshoe lake country, the government set up a short season this year. There will be goose hunting down there only from Nov. 24 thru Dec. 31 and hunting is permitted only from noon until 4:30 p. m. each day.

Altho thousands of hunters spend their time and money on wild geese, ducks, quail and pheasant hunting, the cottontail is the game animal that really gets a big play from shooters, especially after snow covers the ground. The only trouble with shooting rabbits in the middle west is the way the scientists lean over our shoulder and whisper warnings about tularemia every time you go hunting!

Cottontail Is Target

We're not quite ready to go rabbit hunting because this weekend we have an engagement with some Bob White coveys in southern Illinois—an appointment in which our setter Huntstone Felicia also is interested. But a little later when the pheasant season is over in Illinois and the duck business has slowed down we'll be wanting to go tramping thru the fields and sloughs for the rabbits.

Illinois hunters have until Nov. 25 this year for pheasant shooting. Quail hunting ends Dec. 11 but the rabbit hunting, tularemia or no tularemia, continues thru January.

L.S.U. FIELD GOAL WINS, 9-7, OVER GEORGIA TECH

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 17 (AP)—Louisiana State came thru today on a 27 yard field goal by Gene Knight two minutes before the gun to beat Georgia Tech, 9 to 7, before a crowd of 28,000. Knight, injured last week, was held out of the game until the final period. He came in to spark a Tiger drive to the Tech 15 after Tech had driven 84 yards for a 7 to 6 lead with six minutes to play.

A penalty put the Tigers back on the 20, and on fourth down, from a difficult angle, Knight slammed a placement thru the uprights, the ball just clearing the bar. It gave the Tigers their first victory over Tech in six attempts.

The first downs were even, 14 to 14, but the Tigers outrushed the Jackets, 307 yards to 119. Tech completed 12 of 24 passes for 179 yards and the victors only one of six for 1 yard.

GEORGIA, 35; AUBURN, 0.

Columbus, Ga., Nov. 17 (AP)—Charlie Trippi today led Georgia to a 35 to 0 victory over Auburn before 20,000 fans. The victory kept alive Georgia's hopes of a bowl bid, despite earlier setbacks by Louisiana State and Alabama.

Trippi was almost the whole difference in the two teams. Besides scoring two touchdowns his block cleared the way for Dan Edwards to score on a 66 yard pass play, and he got Georgia out of trouble on one occasion with a 75 yard punt to the Auburn 1 yard line. He then put the clincher on the game by running back to the Tiger 1 with Gene Norman's punt, a sprint of 30 yards. From scrimmage, he had a net gain of only 32 yards on eight carries, but one of his efforts was for 12 yards and a score as at least five men bounced off his churning knees. He passed for 136 yards on nine completions in 12 attempts.

ALABAMA, 71; VANDERBILT, 0

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 17 (AP)—Vanderbilt went down to a 71 to 0 defeat today by Alabama, which scored one touchdown in the first period, two in the second, four in the third, and three touchdowns and a safety in the fourth.

CLEMSON, 47; TULANE, 20

New Orleans, La., Nov. 17 (AP)—Clemson mixed power with tricks to defeat Tulane, 47 to 20, today before 18,000 spectators. Half Back Billy Poe contributed three of the Clemson touchdowns, Left End Chip Clark two, and Left Half Back Marion Butler and substitute Full Back Hugh Alford one each. Mavis Cagle placekicked four extra points and Jud Davis one.

Oklahoma Is Beaten, 14-6, by Missouri

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 17—(AP)—Missouri stepped within a grasp of the big six football championship here today by turning back Oklahoma, 14 to 6. An estimated 22,000 homecoming day fans jammed the stadium.

The Missouri triumph, which ended Oklahoma's record of 17 straight victories in the Big Six, left the Tigers with only a weak Kansas squad to dispose of before claiming the title.

NEBRASKA WINS, 53-0

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 17 (AP)—Scoring three touchdowns in the first quarter, Nebraska rolled over South Dakota, 53 to 0, today before a crowd of 7,000. The Husker first string retired after rolling up the first two scores.

KANSAS, 27; KANSAS STATE, 0

Lawrence, Kas., Nov. 17 (AP)—Kansas smashed to a 27 to 0 football victory over Kansas State before a homecoming crowd of 15,700 in a Big Six contest here today.

Cecil Langford, Kansas' center, knocked down a pass from Karl Kramer to Dale Tolin to halt the only serious State threat.

Wisconsin's Harriers Keep Big 10 Title

Wisconsin and Illinois yesterday split top honors in the 31st running of the Big 10 cross-country championship meet in Washington park. The Badgers, 1944 winners, recaptured their team title, but lost the individual blue ribbon to a 103 pound Illinois freshman, Victor Twomey.

In his Big Ten debut, the small, slender Illini outran a field of 39 runners, including last year's second place winner, Knight Webster. Twomey covered the 4 mile course in 21 minutes, 28.9 seconds—a winning margin of 38 seconds over Wisconsin's Webster, who ran the distance in 22:06.5. Webster trailed by nearly 100 yards at the finish.

The Badger harriers, in racing to their second consecutive Western conference team trophy, placed second, seventh, eighth, 12th, and 14th for an aggregate of 43 points. Purdue was second in the team scoring with 55, Ohio third with 62, Illinois fourth with 83, and Indiana brought up the field with 87. Chicago did not enter a full team while Minnesota and Iowa scratched at the last minute.

All six squads shared in the first six places, Purdue's Ashley Hawk finishing third in 22.11. Fourth was Thor Thoroddsson of Ohio State; fifth, Rowlette of Indiana, and sixth Kenneth Mulcahy of Chicago.

OREGON STATE SUBDUED BY COUGARS, 13-6

Corvallis, Ore., Nov. 17 (AP)—The Washington State Cougars took advantage of the breaks today and defeated the Oregon State Beavers, 13 to 6. Oregon State made 203 yards on the ground to Washington State's 67, and 120 by passing to Washington State's 24.

The Cougars set up their first score when Deane Eggers passed from the 25 to Francis Bacoka. It was incomplete, but officials ruled interference and placed the ball on the 3. Bacoka scored.

Washington State's second score came midway in the third quarter when a punt by Oregon State's John Karamanos was blocked, and Bacoka recovered the ball running 36 yards to score.

The only Beaver tally came on the first play of the fourth quarter when Bob Reiman threw a short pass from the 6 to Karamanos, who scampered over from the 2 yard line.

WASHINGTON BEATS IDAHO

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 17 (AP)—Two sharp thrusts against a dogged but undermanned University of Idaho football team gave the University of Washington a 12 to 0 victory today in its final home game of the 1945 season.

The Huskies tallied on the fifth play of the game. Doug Vickery recovered an Idaho fumble on the second play, Washington smashed twice at the line to pick up 9 yards, and then sent Gordie Hungar thru right tackle for 26 yards and a touchdown.

The second score came at the start of the final period. Idaho's Jim Hatch punted out of bounds on the Idaho 35 and Washington slashed over in a series of line lunges, Hungar counting from the 3 yard line.

4th Period Score Gives Owls Victory

HOUSTON, Tex., Nov. 17 (AP)—The Rice Owls rewarded Adm. Bull Halsey and a sellout throng of 29,000 persons today with an uphill 6 to 0 victory over Texas Aggies.

A fourth period 26 yard pass, from Jess Mason to Jack McBride, was the scoring play, coming after the Aggies had dominated play but been unable to move the ball across the goal. Altho the net yardage rushing was close—Rice 171 yards, A. and M. 174—the Aggies had the advantage most of the way.

It was Rice's first victory in nine years over the Aggies.

Adm. Halsey, guest for the game, crowned Rice's victory bond queen, between halves. The crowd was one of the largest in Rice history.

The red raiders were halted thru most of the contest with Walter Schlinkman scoring Tech's only touchdown as he intercepted Joe Thomas' pass in the third period and ran 36 yards to score.

S. M. U., 21; ARKANSAS, 0

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 17 (AP)—Doah Walker ran and passed Southern Methodist to a 21 to 0 victory today over Arkansas.

TEXAS BEATS T. C. U., 20-0

Austin, Tex., Nov. 17 (AP) — Overcoming a four year Texas Christian university jinx, the University of Texas eleven used a strong passing attack to rout the defending Southwest conference champions, 20 to 0, before 32,000 today. Bobby Layne tossed two touchdown passes to Dale Schwartzkopf and to H. K. Allen. Arthur Sweet plunged 1 yard for the Longhorns' third touchdown. Layne booted both extra points. Sand Storm's Victory Ends Racing Season

The most successful year Chicago racing ever has known came to a conclusion yesterday at Sportsman's Park with Mrs. Phil Leon's Sand Storm, a field horse, scoring a surprise victory in the $5,000 Victory Derby Ball handicap before a crowd of 12,126.

Yesterday's card also marked the end of a six day charity meeting offered by the National Jockey club. It followed six days of racing sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. During this period, a total of $4,375,633 was wagered and a check for $235,000 turned over to Arch Ward, sports editor of THE TRIBUNE, by President J. L. Keeshin.

Yesterday's wagering was $976,228, bringing the total on Chicago tracks this season to $164,228,819. This compares with $144,168,788 wagered last year. Attendance was a bit under the 1944 figures, this year's total being 2,250,742 to last year's 2,268,988.

Sand Storm's victory was achieved under the guidance of Robert Raymond Camp, a jockey who arrived only Friday morning from Hot Springs. In the mutuels, Sand Camp paid $43.20, $17.20, and $8 after scoring by a nose over W. Gher's Compatriot, which paid $8.60 and $6.20. The Happy Hour farm's Happy Pilot was third at $4.

Altho the favorites fared badly all day, few really long shots were able to score in the early races. Jubilate Boy won the first at $14 and coupled with Which Glint, at $10.40 to make a $96.60 daily double pay off.

as will be seen this season, set up the Navy first touchdown within the opening three minutes by intercepting one of Thompson's passes and toting it back to his own 28. Bruce Smith of the Florida Smith's then pitched the ball to C. Scott on the Wisconsin 47, and Clyde followed thru for a seven yard thrust at the defensive left tackle. Capt. Dick Duden then took over the catching chore and fielded the ball on the Wisconsin 22. Scott contributed another 7, and then Full Back Joe Bartos of Lorain, O., chimed in to deliver the touchdown. Jack Currence added the extra point.

After Wisconsin failed to gain on the ensuing kick-off, Scott made a nimble 26 yard return of a Badger punt to the Wisconsin 32 yard stripe. Scott, Bartos, and Tony Minisi collaborated in a burst which finally saw Bartos go over from the 5 yard mark. This time Currence, taking a poor pass from center, couldn't get the ball away in time and the score stood 13 to 0.

Barron Scores on Long Run

The Badgers then organized a drive that traveled from their own 37 to the Navy 25. The following set of action saw a Wisconsin fumble turn into a Navy touchdown, Joe Barron running thru the Badger defense for 54 yards on a first down scrimmage play. Currence made good the point.

Wisconsin again retorted with a stubbornness coupled with a clipping penalty which pushed the Navy back to its 13 yard line, then came back and drove the Sailors to the latter's 18 yard stripe before yielding the ball on downs. They repeated this procedure after taking the ball on their own 47. Thompson, Ben Bendrick and Charley Lehman hammered the Middie line with surprising ease until they were on the Navy 18 again. On second down, Thompson fired the ball to Quarter Back George Fuchs, who made a handsome catch in the end zone for a touchdown. Martin Meyer then delivered the extra point.

The outset of the scoreless third quarter saw Wisconsin, paced by two Thompson smashes of nine and 19 yards, drive to the Navy 20, where Jerry fumbled, Bo Coppedge of the Navy recovering. Shortly after, Thompson and Kindt led a charge which was halted on the Navy 34. Here Thompson elected a pass to Jack Mead, the Badger's acting captain, but the ubiquitous Clyde Scott butted in and returned the ball to his own 16.

Navy, in the last quarter, then began to push the Badgers around a bit, Pete Williams and Tony Minisi, with fine passes by Bruce Smith, one to Williams and one to Duden, producing a first down on the Wisconsin 29. On the first play, Smith deftly slipped the ball to Barron, who went 12 yards around the Badger right end. The Wisconsin line then froze and took possession of the ball on its own 10-yard line. Rex John went back to punt, but Left Guard Jim Carrington of the Navy burst thru to cut down the Badger kicker for a safety.

Williams Returns 60 Yards

Williams, a high school teammate of this year's Army and Navy quarterbacks, Arnold Tucker and Bruce Smith, returned the following kick 60 yards to the Wisconsin's 25 yard mark. John Welsh, on first down, engineered a forward-lateral nifty with the coöperation of Ralph Carnahan and Barron, the latter moving on to the Badger 8. After Bartos was halted, Welsh flipped the ball to Williams, who romped over the Badger goal line to make it 29 to 7 after Currence had obliged with the extra point. Near the end of the game, John punted to Navy, which returned to its own 30. On first down Pettit broke around the defensive left end, cut back and went 70 yards for the final touchdown. Statistics:

49,500 Watch Notre Dame Beat Northwestern, 34 to 7

cepted by Dancewicz on his own 10. Here was Northwestern's best exhibition which largely accounted for its 36 rushes to only 18 for Notre Dame in the first 30 minutes. Northwestern also outgained Notre Dame 153 yards to 129 in the first half.

Whan Finally Stops Angsman

After Dancewicz's interception, Angsman plunged for 8 yards and Terry Brennan, who started at left half instead of Phil Colella, made it first down on Notre Dame's 27. Angsman skirted defensive right end for 13 yards and then raced thru a gap in the Wildcat line and bowled over two tacklers before he was thrown out of bounds on the east side at Northwestern's 10 yard line by Don Whan.

Brennan ripped defensive left tackle for 9 yards and Angsman followed with his scoring plunge at the other tackle. Forty-two seconds remained of the first period.

Bob McKinley fumbled the kick-off which was recovered for the Irish by Bob Skoglund on Northwestern's 29 yard line. McGurk picked up six yards on the last play of the quarter.

Gompers plunged for a yard and then swung around Northwestern's right end for a first down on the Wildcat 16. McGurk was stopped but Dancewicz then hit Bill Leonard, his right end, on a hook pass on Northwestern's 4. Gompers got 2 yards and then McGurk scored.

Conners Returns to Midfield

A 15 yard penalty on Notre Dame for roughness after Krivik kicked the point for the 14 to 0 lead forced the Irish to kick-off from their own 25 yard line and Conners returned Bill Fischer's kick to midfield. The Wildcats followed immediately with their third attack which put together four consecutive first downs by rushing.

Don Laser and Conners were principal ground gainers and eventually set up a first down only four yards from Notre Dame's goal line. Laser got 2 yards but Conners and Jack McKenzie failed and on fourth down Laser was short by three inches.

John Barron handled Dancewicz' punt from the end zone and Northwestern began again from Notre Dame's 32. This attack reached the Irish 5 yard line but once more Notre Dame held and Brennan knocked down Barron's fourth down pass to Stan Gorski. Here were four scoring threats in the first half which failed but which set something of a record in that Northwestern did not have to punt in 30 minutes.

Gompers Intercepts Pass, Scores

Angsman was the major carrier in Notre Dame's third touchdown parade. This drive required nine plays to cover 56 yards and Angsman was called on four times. Brennan lent assistance and Bob Van Summers got the touchdown on a 4 yard smash over Northwestern's right tackle.

In the fourth quarter Gompers intercepted Farrar's pass and ran 32 yards down the west sideline to Northwestern's goal. Then came the Wildcats consolation score.

Ted Kemp returned the Irish kick-off to Northwestern's 22. Three successful passes by Farrar marked the progress. Capt. Max Morris caught the first for 35 yards. Kemp gained 22 yards on the second and Ken Wiltgen covered 11 yards with the last for a first down on Notre Dame's 4 yard line. Hap Murphey and Kemp picked up a yard and then Murphey scored around the left end of Notre Dame's tightly drawn line. Farrar added the point by placement.

Angsman Paces Ball Carriers

Notre Dame countered after the Northwestern kick-off which was brought back to the Irish 41. Simmons reached Northwestern's 48 on third down and then Ratterman stepped back to throw to Gompers behind the Wildcat safety.

Angsman's 118 yards on 12 rushes was the best mark of all ball carriers. The Wildcats had the unusual record of 17 first downs to Notre Dame's 14 and they also played without receiving a penalty. Northwestern was offside, however, when Gompers scored by interception, but this penalty, of course, was declined. Statistics:

HAWKEYES END SLUMP; DEFEAT GOPHERS, 20-19

ting possession of the ball for the first time. Dick Lutz went over from the 11 yard line on a progression which started with the receiving of a punt on the Minnesota 41 yard line. The try for point failed.

Lawrence Goes Across

Minnesota scored again after a dozen minutes of the first period. Dick Lawrence made 5 yards on a lateral for the touchdown. This advance also started after receipt of a punt on the Iowa 41 yard line.

On the fourth play of the second period, Art Johnson, who played brilliantly thruout the game, ran 19 yards for the first Iowa touchdown. The swoop had been continuous after John Hunter had returned a kick-off to his own 25 yard line. Two long passes, Niles to Harold Loehlein, and a 22 yard sprint by Johnson were factors in this 75 yard march. Niles' kick was no good.

Minnesota scored its third and final touchdown half way thru the second period, when Vic Kulbitski went over from the 3 yard line. The counting series was set up when Kispert intercepted a pass and was downed on the Iowa 35.

Hawkeyes Keep Plugging

With one minute to go in the first half Iowa scored its second touchdown. Johnson again counted, this time on a 9 yard pass from Niles. This series of plays got its inception when a bad bouncing punt rocketed backwards to the Minnesota 27 yard line.

Niles' kick was good and the score was Minnesota, 19; Iowa, 13, where it remained thru the third period and until the game went into its last five minutes.

The big ground gainer of the day on rushing plays was Iowa's Johnson, with 97. Lutz of the Gophers was runner-up with 78, each on 15 tries.

Tenth Victory for Iowa

Tho Iowa made only 10 first downs to 17 for the Gophers, it outgained Minnesota, 171 to 149, on rushing plays. Iowa made 128 yards on six completed passes and Minnesota made 132 on 10 completions.

It was Iowa's 10th victory in the 39 games the teams have played since 1891. There never has been a tie. Distances:

touchdown on a pass from Ben Raimondi with two and one half minutes to go in the opening period. It was just a 2 yard affair which culminated a 70 yard drive.

All Set for Title Game

Indiana came out of the game without injury despite the slippery turf and will be at full strength for their game with Purdue in Bloomington, Ind., next Saturday. On it hinges the Hoosiers' chances for their first Western conference championship. The loss was Pitt's sixth in a row and their seventh of the season.

Indiana threatened soon after receiving the opening kickoff as Taliaferro and Pihos led a determined ground attack which, interspersed with a 21 yard pass from Pihos to Ravensberg, put the ball on Pitt's 15 before Groomes fumbled and Bill McPeak recovered for the Panthers.

Pitt's attack was stopped in midfield when Taliaferro intercepted a pass by Jack Smodic and got back to the Pitt 40. At this point it began to rain and the Hoosiers made their first scoring drive.

Score on Short Pass.

Taliaferro picked up a first down to the Pitt 30. Pihos plunged for 7 and Raimondi made it another first down on the 17. Taliaferro lost 4 but Pihos went thru center to the 7 and another first down. Three punches at the line took the ball to the 2½ yard line and Raimondi passed to Ravensberg in the end zone for the touchdown. Charles Armstrong, who kicked seven straight points after touchdowns against Minnesota last week, missed his first effort today.

The Hoosiers scored twice in the third period, the first touchdown being made possible by the blocking of Leo Skladany's punt near the Pitt goal, Ted Kluszewski recovering on Pitt's 4 yard line. Pihos took the ball to the 1 and on the next play went over right tackle for the touchdown. Armstrong's kick was wide and Indiana led, 12 to 0.

The Panthers couldn't get started after the next kick-off and Skladany punted to Pihos who was downed on his 30 yard line. Raimondi picked up 8 and Pihos made it a first down on the 50. Taliaferro got a first down on Pitt's 37 in two tries and then passed to Ravensberg on Pitt's 26. Another pass, Taliaferro to Ravensberg, was good to the 10. Pihos took the ball over in three smashes and Armstrong's kick was good.

Aerial Attack Fails

Dilly Wolff, Pitt's freshman passer went into the game at this point and opened up a futile aerial attack. Wolff continued to pass after Indiana punted early in the last period and got the ball down to the Indiana 18, deepest point of penetration before Taliaferro intercepted one on his 5 yard line. Later another Wolff pass was intercepted by Dick Deranek on his 12.

A half minute before the gun brought the game to a close, Wolff connected with a pass to Robinson good for 33 yards on the 50 yard line. One more pass was grounded as the game ended.

Pro Elevens Plan Tokyo Rose Bowl Game Jan. 1

ARMED SCORES IN $25,000 RACE FOR BEN JONES

Baltimore, O., Nov. 17 (AP)—The magic of trainer Ben Jones worked its spell over the Pimlico Special for the third time today to bring a horse once regarded as "just an ordinary kind of runner" home in front by four lengths in the $25,000 event.

Winner of only two races and $1,650 as a 2 and 3 year old without much class, the veteran Armed from Warren Wright's Calumet farm in Lexington, Ky., climaxed his 4 year old season this time by turning back a field of six other highly rated horses, among them the year's top handicap campaigners and a pair of the 3 year old headliners.

It Was a Breeze

He did it with astonishing ease as he displayed the form which Plain Ben's training patience produces—the form that made Whirlaway and Twilight Tear the top horses of their years. This time the son of Bull Lea took command after three-quarters of a mile, scooted along the rail past the pacemakers, and breezed to the wire.

With Whirlaway the winner in a walkover in 1942 and Twilight Tear last year's speedster in the Special, today's third trick gave the Jones-Wright combination the head honors in the nine years of this invitation race which Alfred Vanderbilt started in the hope of finding each season's champion.

Second Straight for Jockey

It was the second Special in a row, too, for Jockey Doug Dodson, who let Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's 3 year old Polynesian and Mrs. Elizabeth Graham's filly, War Date, cut out the early pace, while keeping Armed close up. Half a mile from home, the little Idaho rider gave the word—and it was all over.

At the wire, he had four lengths on Mrs. Ed Mulrenan's First Fiddle, which closed considerable ground to take the place. First Fiddle finished two lengths in front of Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' Stymie.

Despite Armed's recent three straight winning streak, it was largely because of Pot o' Luck that the crowd of 21,294 knocked the entry down to $3.20 for $2 in the straight betting only permitted. Armed ran the mile and three-sixteenth in 1:58 4-5 to pick up the $25,000 pay check and boost his bank roll to $93,250—$91,600 of it this year alone.

BY DAVID CONDON

Tilden Tech, winner of the City league prep football crown three times in the last four years, moved to within a game of the 1945 championship yesterday when the Blue Devil eleven outplayed Fenger to gain a 30 to 19 triumph.

The victory, gained before 20,000 in Soldiers' field, was Tilden's fifth in six play-off games with the Titans, and qualified the Blue Devils to meet either Austin or Schurz in the league title game next Saturday on the same gridiron. Austin, west section champion, battled Schurz to a 7 to 7 tie in Hanson park, and tomorrow representatives of each school will meet in the office of August H. Pritzlaff, physical education director of the board of education, to flip a coin and determine Tilden's final opponent. Tilden and Austin are co-champions of the league.

Yesterday's battle in Soldiers' field opened with the Titans, south section titlists, seeking revenge for a 16 to 14 defeat dealt them by Tilden in the 1944 championship game.

Gay Scores Four Touchdowns

Tilden scored early in the first period and never relinquished the lead, largely thru the sensational play of Bill Gay, veteran quarter back, who tallied four touchdowns and passed for a fifth during the course of the afternoon.

Mike Swistowicz fumbled on the first play from scrimmage and Tony Wagner recovered for Fenger on the Tilden 18. On the second play, Rocco Raklovits fumbled and Swistowicz recovered on the 31, the Blue Devils gaining 13 yards in the exchange. From then on, the history of the game was recorded as thus:

Tilden, 6; Fenger, 0. In four plays Tilden moved to the Fenger 45. Three line plunges fell short of first down and Gay, electing to run from punt formation, traveled 37 yards for the first score. His kick for the point was blocked.

Titans Travel 58 Yards

Tilden, 6; Fenger, 6—The Titans moved 58 yards to tie the score after Dom Sukowicz returned Dick Bonko's kick from the 29 to the 42. Raklovits plunged over from the 2. Sukowicz missed the try for the point.

Tilden, 12; Fenger, 6—Ed Noble returned the kickoff from the 15 to the 45. Swistowicz moved a yard past midfield. Three plays later the Blue Devils were a foot short of a first down, and Gay passed 20 yards to Swistowicz who took the ball on the 30, moved past two defenders, and crossed the goal line. Two attempts at the point failed.

Noble's Interception Starts March

Tilden, 18; Fenger, 6—Noble must be credited with an assist in the Blue Devil's third and Gay's second touchdown. Early in the second period he intercepted Bob Carlson's pass to start a march concluded when Gay cut thru tackle from the 3 yard line. Ruddy's kick was wide.

Tilden, 18; Fenger, 13—The Titans required but seven plays to tally after taking the Tilden kick off. Raklovits returned from the 20 to the 42, then gained 14. Calabrese picked up two yards and Raklovits passed to Sukowicz on the 23. A second pass was incomplete. Then Sukowicz moved to the 9 on another aerial from Raklovits. Carlson gained four. Sukowicz scored thru right tackle and added the point from placement.

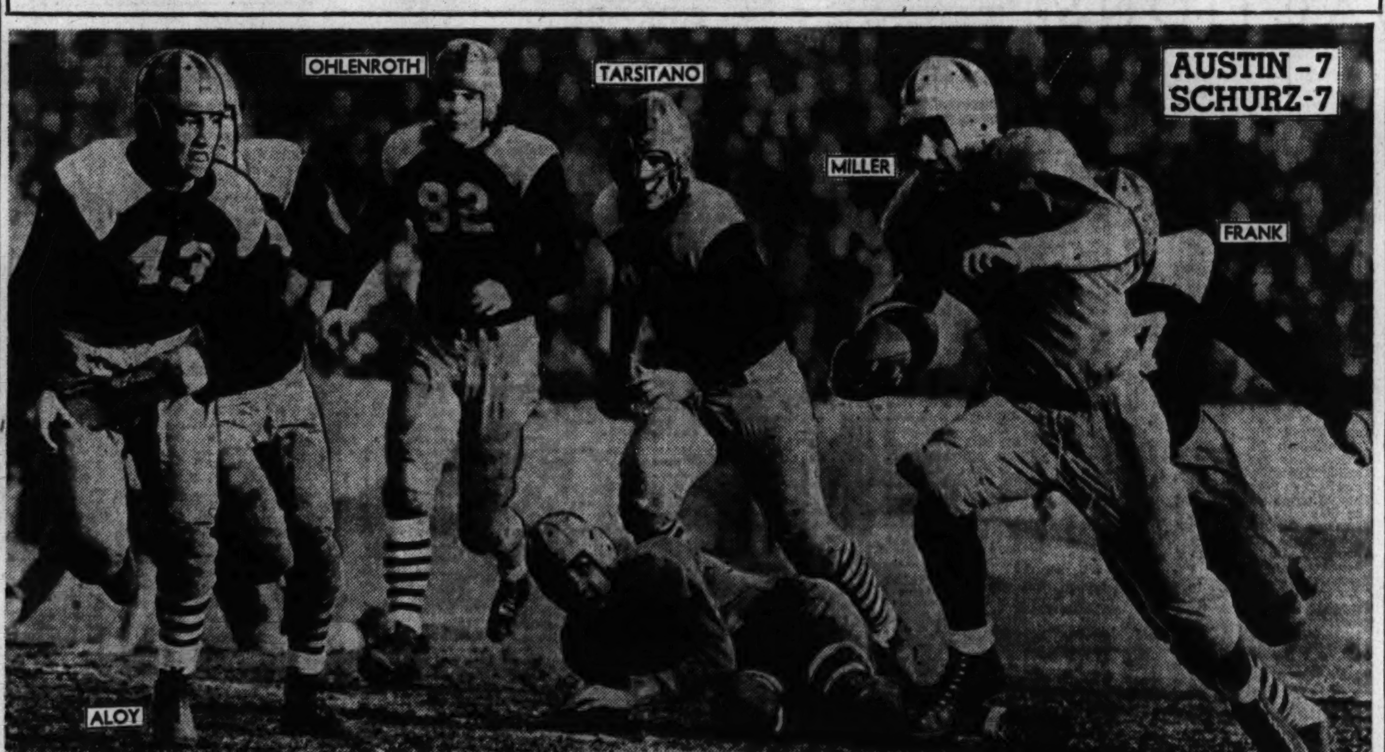
Tilden, 24; Fenger 13—The Titans kicked off and Swistowicz returned to the 23. Gay climaxed a sustained drive when he crossed from the 3. Ruddy's kick was wide.

Carlson Scores Thru Center

Tilden, 24; Fenger, 19—By the end of the third period, Fenger had possession on Tilden's 10. Sukowicz moved to the five, and Carlson scored thru center on the next play. Sukowicz missed the kick.

Tilden, 30; Fenger, 19—Once again the Blue devils marched unchecked after taking the Fenger kickoff. They ran off 17 plays to move to the Fenger 3. On the 18th, Gay scored standing up, but missed the try for the extra point. The game ended with Fenger threatening to score from Tilden's 5.

AFTER ALL THE EXERTION THEY'LL FLIP COIN



John Miller of Schurz (running with ball) looks grim in face of serious situation, with five Austin tacklers converging on him. George made 12 yards before he was brought down. Action was hot thruout tie battle in City league semi-final yesterday in Hanson park.

E. Chicago High Takes Northern Indiana Crown

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 17 [Special]—Johnny Polonciak, 145 pound all-state half back, scored two touchdowns today to lead East Chicago Roosevelt to a 23 to 0 triumph over South Bend Central in a rain-spattered battle for the Northern Indiana High School conference football championship.

Polonciak rammed over from the 6 yard line for Roosevelt's first tally in the opening period. Then, late in the fourth quarter, he provided the spectators with their greatest thrill by intercepting a pass and romping 80 yards for his second score. Julie Wojcik accounted for Roosevelt's third touchdown, plunging from the 2 in the second quarter after Roosevelt had recovered a Central fumble on the latter's 29 yard line.

Austin Ties Schurz, 7 to 7, in Semi-Final

Schurz and Austin's bid for a finalist berth in the City High School league title game next Saturday was stalemated by a 7 to 7 tie yesterday afternoon in Hanson park. A crowd of 9,000 watched Austin come from behind in the second period to effect the tie.

Tomorrow morning officials of the schools will meet in the office of August H. Pritzlaff, physical education director of the board of education, where the finalist will be determined by a flip of a coin.

Schurz Open Scoring

The same situation prevailed last year when Tilden and Austin played a semi-final tie, Tilden winning the flip and then capturing the City league and All-Chicago prep titles. Both winner and loser of the coin tossing tomorrow will share future honors; the winner actually will be bidding for the league championship, and then in turn for the All-Chicago title against the Catholic league champion, for itself as well as yesterday's foe.

Schurz scored in the first quarter when Bruce Morrice of Austin fumbled and George Paturalski recovered on the Austin 20. Dick Redman went around end for the touchdown and then passed to Bob Nusser for the extra point.

Penalty Halts Schurz Threat

Austin countered in a like manner, Rocco Tarsitano blocking Johnny Miller's punt on the 35 yard line and recovering the ball to advance it to the 12. Tony Camillo scored after which Tarsitano added the extra point.

A Schurz threat in the fourth period was stopped thru a 15 yard penalty for clipping. Redman was forced out of bounds on the Austin 17 yard line after a 28 yard run but the penalty moved the ball back to the Austin 32.

Fenwick, an Oak Park high school, and St. George of Evanston meet today in Soldiers' field in a playoff game for the Catholic league south section football championship, this unusual event being occasioned by the south section's borrowing two teams from the north section each season to balance the league's schedules.

The elevens lend-leased from the north section took care of competition in the south pretty much as it came along, each scoring victories over the Leo Lions, only real south section eleven which was in the title race until the final game. It was only when the Friars and Dragons faced each other that they were unable to settle any issue. They battled to a 7 to 7 deadlock, which is the reason for today's second time around.

Victor Plays Ignatius

Victor in today's contest will play St. Ignatius, a north section team which won the north section championship, for the league crown next Sunday in Soldiers' field, and the winner there must continue its practice sessions for another week, to meet the public school champions in the Kelly bowl game Dec. 1.

St. George won the Catholic league championship in 1943, altho Fenwick must look 10 years back to find the last time it captured the championship. The victor today, either Fenwick or the Dragons, will be the favorite next week against the Wolves.

Leading the St. George attack today will be Larry Coutre, a half back who has averaged more than 12 yards in 98 plays from scrimmage. Coutre also is the kicker on the Dragon eleven, and in this department each attempt has been about 41.1 yards, altho he occasionally gets them away up to 65 yards. Coutre has speed and is reported to be the best back in the league.

Two Are Competition

At Fenwick, Tony Lawless has two backs to compete with Coutre. One, Dick Martin, veteran of the Friar eleven which won the north section title in 1944, didn't show too well in the last battle with the Dragons, being handicapped by a first period injury.

The other Fenwick ace is Roger [Moose] Brown, to whom knowledge of football is a legacy and whom, if he has made an error in the last two years, has made it while playing a game of touch out on Long av.

More than 10,000 are expected in Soldiers' Field for the game.

POSSIBILITY OF RUNAWAY MARKET WEIGHED

The stock market has created several crops of "sold-out bulls," traders who were convinced again and again that a top had been reached. Just where will it stop? Will there be a violent upswing with investors reaching for the sky? Or is the bull market over and should profits be clinched?

Mr. Gartley devotes a large portion of this week's Forecast to this dramatic and burning question. Read it for the wealth of market ideas that it contains. It may serve you as an important market guide for months to come.

Thus Far the Market Has Been Too Easy

Because stocks have been rising virtually en masse, and money has been made with little or no real investment effort, traders have formed careless habits of buying. True, the rise may be far from over.

Yet this is no time for indiscriminate or uninformed buying. Many stocks should actually be SOLD at these levels and others should be BOUGHT AND HELD regardless of any interim declines in the market. Now is the time to square your present holdings. Especially important to you are the 25 low and moderate priced issues ... outstanding growth situations ... 16 lower priced speculations that have qualified under the stern pre-V-J Day sifting of 2000 individual issues by the Gartley analytical staff. These outstanding stocks will be made available to you during the period of the following

VOTE ON STEEL STRIKE THREAT TO CONVERSION

Tie-Up Would Stall Other Industries

BY PHILIP HAMPSON

A threat to the nation's reconversion program is inherent in the strike vote which the CIO United Steel Workers of America will take on Nov. 28 in manufacturing plants of United States Steel corporation subsidiaries, steel industry leaders warned yesterday. The vote is regarded as the guinea pig for the entire industry because approval of a strike would be expected to prove a signal to employes of other steel producers to take similar action.

"We do not believe the nation is aware of the seriousness of the labor situation in the steel industry," one company spokesman said yesterday. "The closing down of the steel plants would effectually block the country's entire reconversion program.

Affects Millions Outside

"A shutdown of the steel producers automatically would close the plants of the companies making automobiles, refrigerators, radios, household items, and, in fact, nearly all industrial plants whose raw material is steel. At a time when the nation seeks to provide employment for persons formerly working in war plants, not to speak of the returning veterans, a steel strike, if carried on for any length of time, would throw millions of persons out of work."

The steel workers are demanding a flat increase of $2 a day plus other concessions. They assert they are entitled to the wage boost because of the increase in the cost of living. They contend the companies can afford the increase, charging "hidden profits" thru bookkeeping manipulation—a charge disputed by industry spokesmen and outside analysts.

About 150,000 employes in United States Steel's plants will be affected by the strike vote and workers in other mills would swell this number by several hundred thousand.

Many Products Sold at Loss

In outlining its position in refusing the union's request, Benjamin F. Fairless, president, and other spokesmen insisted that the company is unable to grant the demands without a compensating increase in steel prices.

John A. Stephens, vice president in charge of industrial relations, said that ceiling prices which are little above prices quoted for steel before the war, and increased material and labor costs have placed the corporation in a position where it must sell a large majority of its products below cost.

If the $2 a day wage increase were granted, he said, it would add 15 per cent to the cost of producing steel. Such an added cost, if permitted to be included in prices, then would have to be absorbed by the automobile and other manufacturers who already are subject to increased wage demands from their employes.

Termed Inflation Stimulant

Edward L. Ryerson, chairman of the board of the Inland Steel company, said recently that any substantial increases in steel wages and prices would be an important influence in creating an inflationary spiral which eventually would affect every American worker.

United States Steel contends its workers are demanding nearly the same weekly wage for 40 hours of work as has been paid for 48 hours of work, including eight hours of overtime at time and a half pay. It estimates the result would be an increase of 22.1 per cent in average weekly straight time wages, with a 16⅔ per cent reduction in productive hours per week and a consequent reduction in the weekly output per worker.

Cahn, are on sale in a mailing tube for 25 cents [28 cents by mail].

Parley Action on CIO Wage Issue Stalled

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP)—A special committee of the labor-management conference reported "no progress" tonight toward a compromise on the CIO's wage bargaining resolution.

CIO President Philip Murray, named to the special committee by the conference's executive committee, did not attend the session. He had announced he would ignore it and would continue his fight to bring the wage issue before the conference at its next full session.

Instead, Murray conferred for nearly an hour with Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach. He said the forthcoming strike vote among his half million steel workers was not mentioned.

Ballot on Two Days

The steel workers, demanding a $2 daily wage increase, will ballot Nov. 28 and Dec. 6 under the Smith-Connally war labor disputes act.

Schwellenbach said he and Murray talked about "the general situation" but not about the labor-management conference developments.

Murray's resolution provided for an indorsement of collective bargaining, of wage increases, and acknowledgment that President Truman had provided in his recent speech for substantially higher pay without price increases.

The resolution was sent to the special committee along with substitutes offered by management. The members of the group who met today were President Eric Johnston of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, President Ira Mosher of the National Association of Manufacturers, AFL President William Green, and John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers' chief.

Group Headed by Green

Green, who had made the motion in the executive committee to send the three controversial issues to a special committee, was chairman. He said the four would report at the Monday meeting of the executive committee that they had been unable to agree on a compromise.

Reports of six working committees which were due tonight were not forthcoming. Conference officials said that no more reports would be turned in until Monday. The next meeting of all delegates likely will be held the week of Nov. 25.

U. S. PROPOSES 3 CENTS A POUND COFFEE SUBSIDY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17 (AP)—John C. Collet, stabilization administrator, said today the United States proposed a coffee subsidy program of 3 cents a pound to be paid to importers on a maximum of 6 million bags of green coffee to be shipped from foreign ports between Nov. 19, 1945, and March 31, 1946.

He said importers may participate in the subsidy program in proportion to their allocations under war food order 63 which imposes import limitations based on the importer's operations in 1941. Collett said the subsidy program was intended to encourage coffee shipments to the United States in the winter.

Court Acts to Speed Pullman Sale

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 17—(AP)—Special instructions to help facilitate a speedy decision in the sale of the Pullman company were issued to attorneys of interested parties by a special three judge federal Expeditionary court today.

The court already had set Dec. 10 for hearing arguments on the tentative contract Pullman, Inc., parent company, has made to sell its sleeping car subsidiary to a group of 27 railroads, and on the rival offers of Otis & Co. of Cleveland, Glore, Forgan & Co. of Chicago, and the Standard Steel Spring company of Coraopolis, Pa.

The date for filing main briefs by the four bidders, the seller, the government, and six labor unions representing 35,000 Pullman employes was advanced from Dec. 3 to Dec. 1. Reply briefs were ordered filed by Dec. 8, instead of Dec. 10.

Attorneys Get Instructions

Former United States Sen. George Wharton Pepper, counsel for Pullman, was instructed to stress in his brief the reasons for requesting approval of a sale to the railroads and an analysis of the merits of the other three offers. Pepper also was asked to deal with the question of whether the court has the power to do more than see that Pullman's monopoly is broken. Pepper had contended it has no authority to select a purchaser and "must" approve any contract the Pullman makes if it carries out the decree to separate the sleeper and car building businesses.

Attorneys for the railroads and the other three bidders were instructed to discuss the merits of their bids and whether the court has the authority to disapprove sale to the railroads and select another purchaser.

Alleghany Group Intervenes

The court also granted a joint petition by the Chesapeake and Ohio Nickel Plate, and Pere Marquette railroads to intervene to object to sale to the railroad group. These three roads are controled by the Allegany corporation, whose chairman, Robert R. Young, is associated with Otis & Co. in its bid. They will present arguments Dec. 10 that sale to the rail group would be detrimental to smaller roads.

"It is far better to let the sleeping car business continue to be conducted by the Pullman company," they said, "than to place control in the hands of a few large railroads and ultimately destroy operation of the sleeping car pool."

RYE BOUNDS 5 CENT LIMIT IN FACE OF CURBS

Big Eastern Buying Is Influence

December and May rye prices advanced 5 cents a bushel yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, the limit for one day's trade. Brokers attributed the rise to reports the cash rye supply was becoming scarcer and a drive to reinstate lines by eastern traders who had been big sellers of futures. Closing prices were at the top. July and September finished at $1.44½, the ceiling price, unchanged from Friday.

Other grains were stronger with December wheat and all deliveries of corn unchanged at ceiling prices. Active wheat futures gained ⅛ to 1¼, oats advanced 1⅛ to to 2¼, and barley rose ½ to 1⅝.

Fancy Rye Steady at $2.11

Fancy quality rye suitable for distilling purposes was reported steady at $2.11 a bushel, or 32 cents above the ceiling price on No. 2 hard and red winter wheat. The common variety of rye sold at $1.97, or 18 cents above the wheat ceiling.

Rye traders were little influenced by new exchange rules to prevent the accumulation of new speculative lines of December and May rye in excess of 250,000 bushels. Initial margin requirements were raised early last week to 35 cents a bushel, up 10 cents from the prevailing rate.

Winnipeg rye futures after breaking the permissible limit of 1 cent early rallied and closed 1 cent higher. Price changes in the Canadian market are limited to 1 cent a bushel above or below the preceding close.

Oats Rise with Rye

Strength in rye and short covering combined with a continued demand for cash grain led to higher oats prices, but the aggregate trade was not as large as earlier in the week. Initial margin requirements on new speculative commitments in oats are 10 cents a bushel, up 4 cents from the former rate.

Wheat showed a firm undertone. Export interests, Brazil, and other countries were reported having purchased more than 400,000 sacks of flour last week, largely for shipment from Gulf of Mexico ports. Shorts in December wheat found it difficult to cover their commitments in large markets because the price is at the ceiling and mills and other big users are paying maximum prices for the cash grain.

Chicago Bank Clearings Mount to 586 Millions

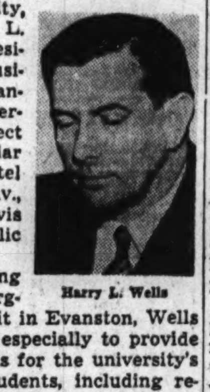
Big Apartment Hotel Planned by University



Harry L. Wells

Moving to alleviate Evanston's acute housing shortage, Northwestern university, thru Harry L. Wells, vice president and business manager, announced yesterday it will erect a 2 million dollar apartment hotel on Orrington av., north of Davis st., in the public library area.

The building will be the largest housing unit in Evanston, Wells said. Planned especially to provide accommodations for the university's faculty and students, including returned veterans, it will contain a minimum of 208 apartments of one to five rooms.

All apartments are to be unfurnished except those to be occupied by students. The structure will be soundproofed and carpeted for quiet. Special accommodations will be provided for children.

Apartments Are Flexible

The structure has been designed to permit flexibility in the size of apartments. For example, it will be possible to convert a four room unit into two apartments of one room and three rooms, or into two apartments of two rooms each. One room apartments will be equipped with rollaway kitchenettes.

A basement garage for tenants will have a capacity of 126 automobiles. The fore part of the first floor will contain apartments and the rear will be divided into service rooms, a kitchen, and a dining room.

To be seven stories high, the building will be of face brick with limestone trim to conform in appearance with other structures in the neighborhood. Courts will provide maximum light and ventilation.

Run by University

The university will operate the building and rent it on a "reasonable basis" to the faculty, students, and public.

Test borings on the site are in progress and construction is expected to be started in January, with completion scheduled by Jan. 1, 1947. Holabird & Root are the architects and the Raymond C. Wieboldt company is the contractor.

Rope Maker Votes First Dividend Since Stock Split

Directors of American Manufacturing company, rope makers, yesterday declared a year-end dividend of 62½ cents, the first disbursement on the common stock since a recent four for one split. This would be equal to $2.50 on the old stock, compared with a 1944 year-end dividend of $1.50.

ELECTRIC OUTPUT LOWER

An industrial barometer which recently has been declining is the nation's consumption of electricity, reflecting the widespread cancellation of war contracts and delays in reconversion to peace time industrial operations. Each week since V-J day has witnessed a drop in total electric output compared with 1944. The rate of decrease, which was 6.3 per cent in the week of Sept. 1, had risen to 10.5 per cent in the week ended Nov. 3, for which the Edison Electric institute reported a total output of 3,899,293,000 kilowatt hours compared with 4,354,929,000 a year earlier.

Because wholesale industrial power takes a relatively low service rate, the drop in dollar revenues of the power companies presumably was not commensurate with the falling off in kilowatt hours.

In the central industrial region the decrease was 11.8 per cent, in the southern states 16.3, and on the Pacific coast 12.1, with smaller recessions in most other regions. For individual systems the largest declines, in percentages, were: Columbia Gas and Electric 17.5, North American company 16.9, Detroit Edison 14.2, Public Service Electric and Gas 12.7, Electric Power and Light 11.3. Commonwealth Edison's decrease was 6.4 per cent. An increase of 2 per cent was reported by Consolidated Edison of New York.

Many industries will increase their use of power as transition is completed, provided of course the selling prices of their products permit an expansion of operations. Continued growth in residential use is expected as more homes are built and more household appliances become available. Profits of the power industry will benefit from the repeal of the excess profits tax, to which many of the utility companies were subject, and from the reduction in the corporate surtax.

The tax saving will mitigate any inflationary rise in power company costs, a trend otherwise difficult for utilities to offset because of uncertainties and delays in obtaining rate increases. In fact, renewed pressure by state commissions for rate reductions in some cases would not be surprising. With electric power rates in general at the lowest on record, some views are that further reductions will be contingent on economies, however.

WARRANT ISSUE URGED IN SMALL UNDERWRITINGS

Termed Attractive to Both Parties

Use of stock purchase warrants as a method of compensating underwriters who handle issues of small companies is one of the most economical and mutually attractive ways of financing small businesses ever devised, John F. Fennelly of Chicago, partner of Glore, Forgan & Co., said yesterday.

"Nearly all small business financing is essentially risk financing, and no intelligent underwriter will undertake such risks unless he has at least a chance to earn a profit commensurate with the risk taken," Fennelly told the annual convention of the National Association of Securities commissioners at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Fair to Both Parties

"Stock warrants give the underwriter a chance to earn such profit only if the company grows and prospers. In this event the company can easily afford to pay this profit. If the company does not prosper, the underwriter will not make a profit on his warrants and the company will have suffered no cash loss by the use of this device."

Commenting on a recent decision of several state commissions to frown on such a method, he warned that the inevitable result would be a widening of the cash underwriting spreads for many small "growth companies" at a time when they least could afford such outlays. Another effect would be to stifle security offerings by many such companies because of unwillingness to pay the increased cash costs.

Simpler Regulation Asked

Other methods suggested to facilitate small business financing include the creation of a decentralized system of investment companies supervised by the local federal reserve banks and aided by federal reserve credit, and the establishment of simpler and uniform securities regulations.

Fennelly warned that proper financing was of "vital importance" because small business provides almost 50 per cent of the total employment of the country and needs its proportionate share of the estimated 60 billion dollars of additional capital investment required by business. Forty billion dollars will come from business and private sources, but the other 20 billion must be raised thru public securities offerings, he said.

Pan American Reduces Express Rates to Europe

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Pan American World Airways today announced reduction in air express charges between New York and Shannon, Ireland, London, and Lisbon, effective Nov. 24. It said shipments for England, Scotland, and Wales would be handled thru London for $1.17 a pound, compared with the present rate of $2.02; to Shannon for Eire or Northern Ireland at $1.09, a reduction of 69 cents, and for Portugal and Spain thru Lisbon at $1.28 a pound against $2.

Change in Rail Reorganizing Held Probable

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17—Legislation which would nullify the Milwaukee, Rock Island, and all other incompleted railroad reorganizations is expected as a result of investigations conducted in congress and by the departments of justice and commerce such legislation would have no effect on railroads that have completed reorganizations and their properties transferred to the reorganized companies.

Congress is preparing to eliminate "monopolistic control" of reorganized railroads which is said to be inevitable under the provisions for voting trusts in the reorganization plans pending in federal District courts. It has been charged that these plans provide for placing all voting stocks in trusteeships for a period of years, which would put the management of the carriers in the control of a few individuals.

Control Vested in Few

Critics of the voting trusts say that a third of the country's railroad mileage is in reorganization and under the present reorganization plans control of the roads would be lodged in too few persons.

Rep. Reed [R., Ill.] charged on the floor of the house last June 27 that vast speculative profits are being made in reorganizations. Specifically referring to the North Western reorganization he said Wall st. speculators made approximately 10,000 per cent profit at the expense of small stockholders.

Holders of stock have bombarded Reed and other members of congress with letters demanding they be saved from the fate of the North Western stockholders. Reed has expanded his investigations to cover all reorganizations. This has aroused the interest of the anti-trust division of the justice department and the transportation section of the department of commerce.

Action was taken in the senate yesterday. Senators Wheeler [D., Mont.] and Reed [R., Kas.] introduced a senate resolution which calls for a sweeping investigation of all railroad reorganizations by the senate committee on interstate commerce, of which Wheeler is chairman.

RAIL ATTORNEY'S VIEW

Legislation to prevent a recurrence of "gross inequities that existed" in the reorganization of the North Western railroad should be enacted, Luther M. Walter, Chicago attorney in various rail reorganizations, said yesterday.

He said that passage of such legislation would not help junior securities holders in the North Western case, but would prevent a recurrence of inequities in the reorganization of other railroads.

COURT EXTENDS TIME FOR BRIEFS IN A. & P. TRIAL

Danville, Ill., Nov. 17 (AP)—Government attorneys today obtained a 15 day extension for filing of briefs in their anti-trust case against the New York Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company and 28 officers and subsidiaries.

W. M. Acton and H. I. Green, defense attorneys, objected to the extension. They said the defense would have its brief completed by Dec. 23, the original date.

STOCKS AT NEW PEAKS DESPITE PROFIT CASHING

Week's Volume Sets Record Since '39

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Profit cashing stalled numerous recent stock leaders, but general strength pushed the market to its second successive peak since early 1931. Bullish sentiment predominated for the third day in a row despite some lightening of accounts for the week-end and on the thought that the upswing may have been overdone.

Dealings were lively from the start and activity in the final hour lifted volume to 1,090,000 shares, one of the largest Saturday trades since late 1941, against 1,150,000 a week earlier.

The Associated Press 60 stock composite rose 0.1 to 75.5, a top since April 14, 1931, and in the week gained 0.8. The utility average added 0.1 at 52.3, a high since Feb. 4, 1937. Industrials and rail groups were unchanged. Of 850 issues registering, most for a Saturday since Dec. 16, 1944, 406 advanced and 257 declined.

Standard Gas Issue Soars

Standard Gas $4 preferred again was prominent, rising 4¾ to 32 in further reflection of reported plans to amend the company's reorganization program. In the week it was up 12¾ points. Commonwealth and Southern, up ⅛ more, was the liveliest issue of the day and week.

On the Curb, Fansteel rose 6½ to 105 on stock split possibilities.

Heavy buying during the week was exemplified by volume on the big board of 9,550,000 shares, high for a five day week since Sept. 9, 1939. The total on the Curb of 7,890,000 shares was the largest there in any week since the 1929-'30 crash. Curb liveliness was accounted for mainly by dealings in warrants which, selling for pennies, ran into hundreds of thousands daily.

BONDS PRICES GAIN

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Narrow advances were general in a fairly active bond market today. Principal activity centered on low priced rails. St. Louis-San Francisco's 4s advanced 1¼ to 63, and its heavily traded 4½s moved up ½ to 50½. The Associated Press average for 20 rails rose 0.1 to a new 1945 top.

UTILITIES UP IN CHICAGO

Prices on the Chicago Stock exchange rose again yesterday on a turnover of 35,000 shares. More active issues included Central and South Utilities, up ⅞, Chicago corporation, up ⅛, Middle West, up ⅜, Binks Manufacturing, up 3¾, and Commonwealth Edison, down ⅛.

BRITAIN TAKES MORE STEPS ON SOCIALISM ROAD

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Nov. 17—State socialism advanced by big strides in Great Britain this week when the government announced decisions to tighten its grip on agriculture and industry, and warned there will be no letup in the austere living scale until the export trade revives.

Submitting the Labor farming program in the house of commons, Agriculture Minister Williams said the government plans to arm itself with powers to continue, in peace time as in war, to direct British farmers as to what they should produce and how to produce it.

Any farmer adjudged inefficient by government standards will be dispossessed of his land after a period of supervision by the state controler. The land may then be compulsorily purchased by the state and farmed by a new commission to be set up by the ministry of agriculture.

Will Have Guaranteed Prices

In return for submitting to restrictions the farmers will be guaranteed markets and prices for their milk, live stock, eggs, cereals, potatoes, and sugar beets. Offering a "reasonable return on capital invested," under this plan the government will become virtually the sole buyer, distributor, and seller of the country's food.

The government also moved this week to set itself up as the biggest house builder and builders' merchant in this country. It submitted a bill to parliament providing for expenditure up to 1 billion 200 million dollars on bulk purchases of building materials and components, including prefabricated houses, as well as their production and distribution, under control of Minister of Works Tomlinson.

Creates a Monopoly

One effect will be to create a virtual government monopoly in house fittings. All engineering components for houses, including baths, cookers, refrigerators, and window frames will be bought, distributed, standardized, and have their quality and prices controled by the government during the "period of emergency, which may last five years."

SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY

To the Holders of Southern Railway Company's

Development and General Mortgage Bonds, 6% Series, due April 1, 1956;

and

Development and General Mortgage Bonds, 6½% Series, due April 1, 1956.

In furtherance of its program of retiring debt, Southern Railway Company has, within the past thirty days, purchased substantial blocks of its Six Per Cent and Six and One-Half Per Cent Development and General Mortgage Bonds, aggregating $2,650,000 principal amount, at the respective prices of 118 for the Sixes, and of 122 for the Six and One-Halfs.

The Company desires to give the same opportunity (to the extent its resources available for such purposes permit) to the remaining holders of these Bonds, and at the same time thus to augment its debt retirements before the end of the year 1945.

Southern Railway Company therefore offers to purchase, for retirement, up to $5,000,000 principal amount in the aggregate of the above described issues, at the following prices:

Six Per Cent Series

For each $1,000 Development and General Mortgage Bond, 6% Series............ $1,180.00, together with accrued interest on the principal amount from October 1, 1945, to November 30, 1945, inclusive, (being $10.00 for each $1,000 Bond).

Six and One-Half Per Cent Series

For each $1,000 Development and General Mortgage Bond, 6½% Series............ $1,220.00, together with accrued interest on the principal amount from October 1, 1945, to November 30, 1945, inclusive, (being $10.83 for each $1,000 Bond).

This offer is open between Tuesday, November 13, 1945, and the close of business on Friday, November 30, 1945.

Bonds should be presented at the office of the Company's Agent, The First National Bank of the City of New York, #2 Wall Street, New York 15, New York. Coupon Bonds must be surrendered with April 1, 1946, and all subsequent coupons attached. Registered Bonds must be assigned in blank or be accompanied by appropriate detached assignments, with signatures guaranteed.

Bonds will be paid for in the order in which presented until the above mentioned $5,000,000 principal amount shall have been acquired, provided, however, that the Company reserves the right (a) to accept such additional principal amount of Bonds, if presented within said period, as it may desire, accepting such proportion of each lot (to the nearest $1,000) presented as the aggregate amount of Bonds in excess of said $5,000,000 determined by the Company to be accepted bears to the total additional principal amount presented, without preference between the two Series, or (b) to reject any amount offered in excess of the first $5,000,000 principal amount presented.

The Agent will pay, with reference to any Bonds presented for account of the owners thereof by any Bank, Trust Company, Member of a National Securities Exchange or Member of the National Association of Security Dealers, Inc. (such Bank, Trust Company or Member not being the owner), a commission of $2.50 per $1,000 Bond.

All Bonds purchased are to be cancelled, and United States Stamp Taxes are not payable on the sale.

Wanted

WANTED
Merchandise, Material, Equipment. Supplies of every character and description.

Simply mail us list or inventory of what you have to sell with your rock bottom price subject to prior sale. We do not bid, as you set the price. Requests for bids cannot be acknowledged.

Immediately upon receipt of your order to sell this is checked against unexecuted orders and frequently executed immediately and cash purchase arranged.

If we do not have a definite order for what you have it will be if it merits inclusion in our FLASH to over 1,500 salesmen to dispose of at once. Some one somewhere is usually looking for what you have and wants it badly. These men will usually either get an order or a contra bid of some kind within a few days.

Government officials, RFC manufacturers' agents, contract termination executives and all others charged with disposal of government surplus will greatly facilitate and ease their work by use of this service.

There is no cost, no obligation and no catch. You sell at the price you set. There is no commission or brokerage. You offer it subject to prior sale. We work on the basis that we can do it quicker and better. Our profit is the overage.

Please do not send samples unless requested specifically, or phone or call at our office. It requires several hours to process the average disposal order and it can best be handled in the manner suggested. Thanks.

"I've Seen Nothing as Fine as Your Highlands Sites"
So declared an attorney as he recently concluded the purchase of a 76x134' high, rolling site on Crabtree lane on Northbrook Highlands, and had us arrange for the preparation of his Colonial house plans for building and delivery this next Summer.
You too will agree when you see the circular drives, the sparkling white, new houses, each different, from $10,500 to $15,000, which were had for $1,000 cash above the cost of the lots; when you read the careful protective restrictions, and when you learn the astonishingly low prices for the high values provided.
We supply you site, construction, and financing—all or part, as you desire.

Dr. Cream took the two parcels into an inner office, where he remained for a few minutes.

The Crimes of Dr. Cream

By DELOS AVERY

AT 9 O'CLOCK in the morning of Nov. 14, 1892, a man who ought to have been hanged in Chicago was hanged at Newgate prison in London. He was Dr. Thomas Neill Cream. They led him from his cell thru a flagstoned corridor to the scaffold, and afterward they buried him in quicklime under one of the flagstones he had so recently trod.

Those who are familiar with the long and gloomy history of Newgate know that better men than Dr. Cream have been hanged there, but it may well be doubted that a worse ever was hanged anywhere.

Just how many murders Dr. Cream committed nobody can tell. Probably that evil physician himself never knew the exact number, since it was not his practice to wait for verification of death in every case.

We do know that one of his early victims was a Chicago woman who died horribly in a ramshackle tenement near the corner of Madison st. and Western av. in the late summer of 1880. We know that in the case of the "Elderly Epileptic" the crime began in Dr. Cream's Chicago office, altho it was in a village some 70 miles away that the old man died. There was also a girl in Ontario, Canada. And there were four sinful women in London whose deaths you may find indexed as "The Lambeth Mysteries" in the libraries of many connoisseurs of crime.

One reason for saying that Chicago ought to have been the scene of Dr. Cream's execution is, of course, the simple fact that a man hanged for one murder murders no more, a consideration which in this instance would have saved the lives of the four Lambeth sinners, who, whatever their transgressions, deserved a fate less terrible.

There is another reason why a Chicago hanging might have been a fitter punishment for Dr. Cream, and you may find it stated in a pamphlet privately printed some 40 years ago by Halifax Gadley, a dilettante disciple of Thomas De Quincey, author of the famous monograph on "Murder Considered as a Fine Art."

"Deference to the esthetic proprieties," says Gadley, "would suggest that such an artist in homicide as Dr. Cream ought to be hanged for his masterpiece rather than for one of his minor works. And certainly the chef d'oeuvre among all the known murders by Dr. Cream was that of the 'Elderly Epileptic.'"

The Tribune was alluding to that case when it said editorially: "The annals of crime have rarely furnished a stranger case of poisoning than that with which Dr. Cream stands charged. It can hardly be paralleled in cruelty and infamy." Headlines called it a "Diabolic Plot That Would Do Credit to the Borgias."

Yet it is a curious fact that in all the better known books dealing with Dr. Cream's lethal career the comparatively dull and uninteresting Lambeth cases are given front rank, while the truly fascinating tragedy of the "old man with fits," as a Chicago reporter called him, is all but ignored.

Indeed, it was all but ignored by the very authorities whose duty it was to expose the crime. The victim had been buried and forgotten before the murderer himself, seemingly resentful of his safe obscurity, sent forth a whole series of messages to police, coroner, and public prosecutor, demanding that the crime be brought to light. He even threatened to prosecute the prosecutor for not prosecuting.

Before taking up in detail the Chicago chapter of Dr. Cream's life it will be well to glance briefly at an earlier period. He was born in Glasgow in about the year 1850. His parents, while not wealthy, were able to give him many advantages, including enough education in medicine to set him up in practice, but it soon became apparent that he preferred the easy profits of quackery to the slower and steeper path of the ethical physician.

A natural result of this ignoble choice was that he became a wanderer, a fugitive from his own reputation. He was still a young man when he first crossed the Atlantic. In Canada, where he established himself for a time in the illegal but lucrative trade of the abortionist, he sought a protective "front" by joining the Y. M. C. A. and even teaching a Sunday school class.

But he had to start traveling again soon because of circumstances surrounding the death of a patient, an inmate of an Ontario vice resort. Local authorities, reluctant to undertake the cost of pursuit and prosecution, chose to assume that the girl had committed suicide. Some time later Dr. Cream boasted of having performed "hundreds" of abortions in Canada and said he had 15 cases of that kind in a single "fancy house."

When Dr. Cream first came to Chicago the city had a reputation for being "wide open" and a "land of opportunity" for frauds and shysters of all sorts. Ambulance-chasing lawyers used doctors of Cream's kind in frauds against insurance companies. Madams in the red-light districts were ready clients. And many a luckless working girl "in trouble," if she could bring enough pressure against the responsible man, found funds available to pay for Cream's hazardous services.

The two Chicago patients who brought the most trouble to Cream, almost getting him hanged, were the "Elderly Epileptic" and a woman named Mary Anne Faulkner. He met both of these thru his association with another quack known as "Greer."

One of Greer's specialties was to watch the employment agencies and offer "help" to girls who failed to get jobs because they were visibly "in trouble." Mary Anne Faulkner was such a case, and it was a black day for her when she listened to Greer.

"I don't go in for that kind of thing myself," he told her, "but I can send you to a doctor who does—a specialist. Cost you $5 for the address. Then you can deal with him."

Mary Anne didn't have the cash, but Greer accepted her watch as security and turned her over to Cream. The result was announced to the public in newspaper headlines:

DOUBLE MURDER

Ante-Natal Infanticide and Consequent Death of the Mother

Cream escaped conviction in that case, thanks partly to a lax prosecution and partly to his assertion that it was all the fault of a nurse, Hattie Mack, a Negress, who vanished after giving her story to the police. She said Cream, to whom she owed $15 which she could not pay, forced her to take Mary Anne as a "boarder." And after the "boarder" died, Hattie said, "Dr. Cream said he would give me $30 for my furniture if I let him burn the house down with the body in it so nobody would know about the operation. I refused."

How much Cream's defense cost him is not known, but he was in such financial straits immediately afterward that he got into trouble with the federal government by sending obscene threats thru the mails in an effort to collect overdue bills from penniless patients. And he was still in trouble financially when Greer brought him the "Elderly Epileptic."

That unfortunate man was Daniel Stott. At one time he had been a prosperous merchant in Canada, but his wife ran away with his partner and took most of his fortune along. Stott still had some money left, however, not to mention his life insurance, and he came to Illinois to live in semi-retirement in the village of Garden Prairie, six miles east of Belvidere. There, for the double purpose of occupying his too abundant leisure and adding a little to his small income, he took a job as station agent on the Chicago and North Western.

Being alone, over 60 years old, and subject to unpredictable attacks of his malady, Stott thought it prudent to employ a housekeeper, and the girl he chose was one who had been a housemaid in the Belvidere home of Myron Avery. Being a smart girl, she attended to her new employer's needs and comforts with ever greater zeal than her duty or her wages called for, and the natural result was that Stott married her.

This appeared to be an excellent arrangement for both—for Stott because it seemed to mean that he would be well cared for during the rest of his life, and for his bride because in all natural probability the rest of his life would be short and she would be left free and prosperous.

In the meanwhile she was able to enjoy a portion of her prospective inheritance in advance, since Stott was generous with shopping money, which she spent in Belvidere and Chicago, buying so freely in the better places that, as a Tribune reporter said, "her neighbors disliked her because she was too stylish."

One of the things she did for the health and happiness of her husband was to study all the medical circulars that fell into her hands, hoping to find a medicine which would "cure fits." Incidentally, this quest provided new excuses for trips to Chicago, and on one of these she looked up Greer, whose alluring literature promised to cure not only "fits" but virtually everything. And he called Dr. Cream.

That was in February, 1881. Mrs. Stott described her husband's symptoms as well as she could, and he prescribed as wisely as his limited knowledge of both the patient and the malady permitted. Oddly enough, the old man seemed to thrive on this long-distance treatment. And it was not until late July that The Tribune published the following dispatch from Detroit:

"Last night the police went to a hotel at Belle River, a small town on the Great

PRICE OF FAME

VINCENT PRICE

Price as Prince Albert in Helen Hayes' "Victoria Regina."

(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune)

Hollywood

IN THE AUTUMN of 1935 Gilbert Miller, the prominent producer, invited the New York press to the docks to witness the arrival of Vincent Price, his latest English "discovery," who was being imported to play Prince Albert to Helen Hayes' "Victoria Regina."

Price had been sensational in London in the part, and since English actors were the rage on Broadway then, a raft of news and camera men were on hand to greet him.

The Aquitania had practically emptied. The press was restive, the producer about to blow a gasket, when a tall, slender figure appeared at the steerage gangway. Just then Vincent Price, whom the public now knows as the star of "Dragonwyck" and "Shock," and who is known for many fine movie characterizations, looked like anything but star material. He carried some topcoats slung loosely over one arm. A few pairs of shoes, strung together by their laces, dangled from the other. Tucked firmly against his body was Albert, his cat (Siamese in front and plain alley in back), the mascot of the English version of "Victoria Regina." The producer's secretary spotted this dismaying sight in time to relieve Price of his burdens and hustle him over to the de luxe gangway. This spiked what would have been the best theater story of the year. It also saved Miller's face.

Vincent Price, the British star—who actually was born in St. Louis, Mo.—was stony broke. He'd wired the producer for an advance on his American earnings. The cable was ignored, coming from a successful London star, and was answered by a tart message to quit fooling and get going. Which Price did, after paying all his debts, which was rare in those days, too. He got going the only way he could—via steerage.

Price's record on Broadway in "Victoria Regina," "Angel Street," and other successes is a happy one and well known. But the inside story of how he made a career happen is a tribute to keen wit and admirable foresight coupled with a great deal of persistence.

Price told me about it on the set of "Shock," his second starring picture at 20th Century. I wanted to know how come the public always thinks of him as British.

"I went to the University of London after I finished at Yale," he told me, "because I realized that anybody who wanted a real break on Broadway at that time had to have an English label. Every spare moment I had in London I devoted to trying to get into the theater. To my dismay, I found British producers favoring actors with a touch of the continental, so I spent half the year attending the University of Vienna. One night in London a friend told me that Norman Marshall was looking for a young American to play the policeman in his production of 'Chicago.' I applied for the job and got it. When the piece finished Marshall surprised me by handing me the role of Prince Albert in 'Victoria Regina'—Pamela Stanley starring—which we put on at the tiny Gate theater. It never moved into a west end theater until after the death of King George V. Three generations have to pass before profit can be made from the royal family—at least, in Great Britain. As luck would have it, a New York producer saw it, liked my work, and sent for me when he put the play on in America."

"Then the movies grabbed you——"

"No, it wasn't as easy as that," Price laughed. "During the three years I played Albert on Broadway I got all sorts of movie offers. But I didn't want to leave New York. Actually I was watching Edith Barrett. I'd been in love with her ever since I bumped into her on the street and almost knocked her unconscious. But she was hard to get. The day she said 'yes' I signed for a picture at Universal. One was enough. I rushed back to New York again to play in the all-star revival of 'Outward Bound,' which ran for two seasons. Hollywood snagged me once more—for five pictures that time.

"But I heard the call of the theater louder than the offer of a long-term contract. 'Angel Street' was being cast, with Judith Evelyn. I'd been told it had tremendous money backing. Big names were being bandied about. When I got to New York I found that about 40 people had $500 apiece in the show and every one connected with it was either on his uppers or determined to make a name with one throw of the dice. As a result rehearsals were carried on with a desperate, inspired fury. The play turned cut triumphantly."

I'll say it did—it was a critic's pet as well as popular with the public. Twentieth got Price's signature on a long-term contract right after it. He came back to play Dutour in "Song of Bernadette." It was one of the most polished portraits on the screen. The role of Dutour—cold-blooded public prosecutor of Lourdes—won Vincent Price his starring picture, "Dragonwyck," in which he plays an arrogant, snobbish member of the early Dutch aristocracy of New York.

Altho he doesn't want to be routined in disagreeable parts, Price finds his present role of murderer in "Shock" an intriguing one. "The fellow isn't actually a criminal at heart," he says. "This makes the character fascinating to play. He's a doctor, out of love with his wife and very much in love with a beautiful nurse. In a quarrel with his wife he kills her, altho not intending to do so. The crime is seen from a hotel window by a woman who becomes his patient when he gets an emergency call because she is thrown into shock. Fear prompts him to try to destroy the woman's mind with drugs and hypnotism. The situation is unique, a psychological drama that actually keeps the audiences on the edge of their seats."

In real life Price is both informal and one of the best informed members of our colony. He dislikes snobbishness in any form; is popular with every one on the lot. Stagehands and producers alike call him Vince. For some years after his arrival here he owned and operated the Little gallery, which specialized in modern paintings. Since stardom he finds the responsibility too much and liquidated his art interests some time ago. He had bought a Goya the day I talked with him, and his enthusiasm was contagious. He had all the elation of a man who's made a real buy.

Recently Vincent and Edith Price bought the old Walter Lang house in Benedict canyon; painted and decorated it themselves. They're busy now landscaping the neglected garden. The Prices all love to work—even 5-year-old Vincent Barrett Price is covered with paint most of the time.

Price has had only one flaw in what has become a star career—recently he asked for leave of absence to do the Chodorov play "Comedie Francaise" on Broadway. The studio said, "No!" It was a blow to Price, who says it's the best play he's read in years.

By and large he's a happy fellow, even if bothered occasionally by that itch to get back before an audience again. He'd also like to do a play in London. He'll have to put these ambitions on ice for the moment, as big stars are kept at home in Hollywood and are not allowed to wander hither and yon unless their studio sends them. And Vincent's studio, as of today, refuses to lend its Vincent "Prince Albert" Price.

The Port Said area.

This is the third of a series of articles by a Tribune man who has resumed active work as a foreign correspondent. Opinions expressed are not necessarily those of The Tribune.

By ALEX SMALL
Cairo, Egypt

THE hawkers and mendicants of Port Said have decreased greatly in numbers. Partly that is because they no longer have any of their cheap merchandise or souvenirs (made formerly in Birmingham, Pilsen, Duesseldorf, or Yokohama) to sell; partly because the labor shortage caused by the war gave them steady employment at relatively decent wages—for the near east.

There remained enough, I discovered, to remind one of the nuisance they used to be. After walking six blocks and finding myself wringing wet I flopped into a chair beside a little round marble-topped table and ordered a beer. I was just thinking that the man who brewed that liquid would be inadequately punished if drowned in it when I was spotted as a newcomer, an American (the correspondent's uniform did that).

A street merchant of Cairo, selling licorice water.

A barefooted woman, unveiled and in black rags, clutching to breast a baby with the flies thick and immobile on its purulent eyes, came whining up with outstretched hand. I gave her one copper piaster (exchanging at 4 cents). She kept the hand outstretched and kept on wailing. I understood. That is the way of the east. The beggar feels under no compulsion to keep his end of the social contract—to say thanks and go away. Why should she? Time meant nothing to her; I was as good a prospect as any other, or better; and if she annoyed me enough I might give her another piaster.

All logical enough, but after a while you will find it exasperating. Then a gally-gally boy started to work on me. "Just give me a chance, mister, just one chance; I've got to earn a living," he intoned in passably good English. Defenseless with fatigue and the heat, I gave in. He got out his equipment of brass cups and bits of cork and worked his variation of the shell-pea game. He tied impossible knots in handkerchiefs and untied them; he pulled a squeaking chick out of my breast pocket.

All very ordinary sleight-of-hand, but then he started tricks in which I had to supply him with coins (or the paper notes which now replace most of them), and of course the game was I lost the coin or note if I guessed wrong, which I was sure to do. I blush to relate it, but before he had finished that conscienceless rogue had taken 100 piasters (4 American dollars) off me.

An expensive lesson, but only fools who travel in the near east ever need a second one.

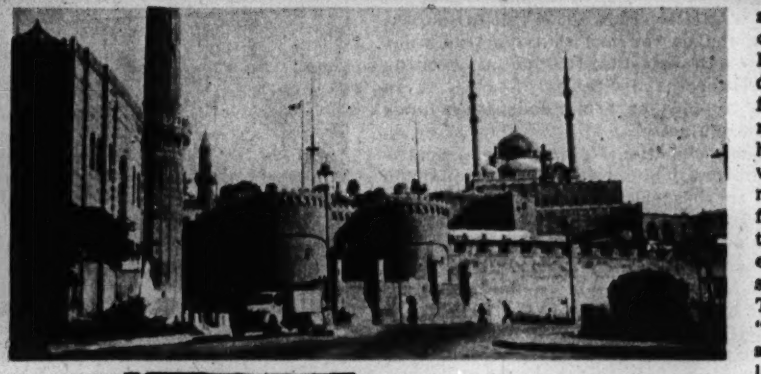
The westerner soon will get used to the unpleasant idea that in the orient he has to defend his pocketbook vigorously and all the time. Otherwise you will be stripped, piaster by piaster. An eager horde, a universal conspiracy, is alert to pounce on your slightest weakness. You will be habitually overcharged and shortchanged. Domestic servants will chisel on their market accounts; laundries will return your clothes with one or two pieces missing; you will spend a fair part of your time and energy defending your pennies.

It is futile to think of saving yourself grief by overpaying and overtipping. Waiters will walk away from you with the same contemptuous curl to their lips and cab drivers will curse you out just as heartily. It is the price you pay for being a foreigner.

There's another side to this question. The average traveler, especially the American, seldom understands that articles he takes for granted as necessities of life, like iced fruit juices and efficient plumbing, in countries like Egypt may be luxuries. He usually does not consider that the people he deals with have to make the effort of understanding his language, and that alone deserves special compensation.

Egypt for five years was overrun by soldiers, most of them youngsters with little idea of the value of money. Many are still there. They expect much for a little outlay. They do not understand and make no allowance for the complexities of foreign exchange nor for the scarcity conditions produced by war. The British especially have the obsession that all "natives" are robbers. So a vicious circle is created, the one side convinced that it is being overcharged, the other that it is being underpaid.

Monuments of three widely separated epochs in history may be seen within a half hour's journey from Cairo. Above, the Sphinx and the Khephren pyramid, relics of life about 4,500 years ago.



Above: In Cairo can be found the citadel and the Mohammed Aly mosque, masterpieces of the Arab conquerors who overran Egypt after the fall of the Roman empire, about 800 years ago.

Today—a corner of the Immobilia, a business and apartment building in the center of Cairo, erected within the last 10 years.

All British and most Americans with whom I have talked are convinced that Egypt and Egyptians have done well out of the war and have repaid the service of being saved for democracy, civilization, etc., by profiteering on their rescuers. Exterior signs, in comparison with pre-war conditions, sustain the belief. About 250,000 workmen have been employed in British military installations in Egypt, many of them for the first time in their lives getting steady employment at war-inflated wages. Far fewer are employed by the Americans, naturally, but their wages are even better and they are superbly contented.

Contractors, wholesalers, and retail merchants have accumulated profits in paper Egyptian pounds—depreciated, of course, but still with considerable purchasing power. Everywhere there is that atmosphere of free spending and exuberance which goes with high prices and scarcity.

The conclusion drawn by most simple people is that Egypt is best off when it's a battleground, or at least an army camp. That is their direct experience. The wiser are full of doubts. They know that merchants and wholesalers who have accumulated paper pounds would like to get hold of "hard money" (American dollars, Swiss francs, Swedish kronen); failing that, they are buying land or jewels, and in the last extremity spending their money on anything. The Egyptian pound is in the "sterling block," tied to the pound sterling, and will be forced to follow the latter's fluctuations. If the financial authorities of London decide to devalorize, Egyptian currency will automatically be devalorized.

The pessimists see hard days ahead even at the best. When all military establishments are dismantled, where will the workmen be employed? The still rudimentary industry of the country can absorb only a small fraction. The land is crowded with people living on the margin of existence. Reclamation schemes and more irrigation (expensive and long-term projects) will take care of some people eventually. For the others there is a clamor for industrialization, based on the precept heard in all underdeveloped countries, "Agricultural peoples are poor; industrial people are prosperous." It is assumed there is nothing more to the problem.

The capital dominates the country, and of it you will hear that Cairo is not the "real Egypt." It's true that at Cairo you cannot see the patient, heart-breaking life of the Egyptian peasant, still living much as he did 5,000 years ago, nor the contrast between him and the rich landlord.

But Cairo is the objective of every boy with ambition, more even than Chicago may be to a midwestern farmer boy; it is the

RELIABLE KNITTING WORKS

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

Pullman, Wash.

THE STATE COLLEGE OF WASHINGTON, set in this little town on the easternmost border, makes you feel that it's true what they say about the Pacific northwest—that it's our last exciting frontier, a brave new world of resource and vitality. W. S. C. is an exciting college, a vigorous one, a place of firm handshakes, quick cordiality, a kind of relaxed purposefulness.

Since 1890 it has played a strong educational part in the agricultural development of the state; right now, while it retains its strength in agriculture, it is shifting gears, so to speak, with a vast and fascinating technological program designed to assist the state in its industrial future, which promises to be fabulous.

This year Washington State has a new president, Dr. Wilson Compton, of "America's most learned family," who will be flanked on his official inauguration in December by his two brothers, Dr. Karl Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Dr. Arthur Holly Compton, the internationally famous physicist, winner of the Nobel prize and president of Washington university in St. Louis. W. S. C.'s Compton has been in residence here for many months; he came here because he firmly believes that the northwest is the section destined for the greatest growth, and apparently he came armed with a blueprint for the college's development of an industrial research program to facilitate that growth.

As soon as conditions permit the state of Washington will spend between 7 and 8 million dollars on the college in Pullman. It will have a student union, its engineering laboratories will be expanded, and it will have a tremendous new library, a new school of pharmacy, additional dormitories—one for married students—and, perhaps most important of all, a new and vast institute of technology, heart of its division of industrial research, Dr. Compton's special interest, which is already mushrooming.

Light metals research here is vibrating with activity. Coulee dam has given Washington more water power than any other state, and there are mountains of dolomite and magnesite, a practically inexhaustible supply, which can be extracted with that power. In the college foundry and laboratories experimental products in light metals are being tested daily. All during the war the college foundry turned out magnesium castings for Boeing. Now a variety of products are being turned out for possible utilization by private industry.

A quick walk thru the workshops of the industrial research division is downright exciting. We saw, and could practically toss in the air because they were so feather-light, all sorts of things made of magnesium—bulky airplane parts, baseball bats, a tennis racket, a truck wheel hub, a horse's bit, and a griddle light as the pancakes it can brown—without benefit of grease!

At the moment there are 2,600 students sharing this forward-looking atmosphere at W. S. C. Normally there are 4,000, and when housing is adequate and the post-war program is established there will be a few thousand more than that.

Tho women still outnumber men by two to one, the Cougars resumed football this year. There are no military on the campus now (during the war 6,000 cadets were trained here for the army air forces), but civilian men are numerous enough to give that pre-war flavor.

By day dates drift inevitably to the college book store, a big, hospitable place owned by the students' association, which has been so well managed and patronized that its profits thru the years form a tidy little nest egg of funds toward the new union. By night the boys and girls all head for the "Coug," brief for the Cougar cottage, a hang-out for the "fussers," as daters are known, and all else who care about such things as the latest titbits in the Evergreen, the prospects for next week's game, or the state of Butch's health. Butch is the honest-to-goodness live cougar mascot.

Friendliness and good manners, we thought, characterized the Washington State students. Courtesy is important in the Cougar code. As a matter of fact, W. S. C.'s handbook for new students, called "Cougar Code," is one of those student guides every college kid should read. By students, for students, it's a fine book of rules for behavior in the world as well as the know-how of life on Pullman's College hill.

Little by little the evidence came out, but for the purpose of clarity and condensation it may as well be given here in its assembled form—the way the trial jury got it in the final arguments.

Cream, it appears, at first regarded his new patient as a simple medical case from which he could derive an ordinary professional revenue. But a time came when his scheming mind visioned a greater opportunity. From Stott's young wife he learned something about what she would get when her husband died, including insurance. He had some reason to believe that he could cut in on the inheritance, perhaps get all of it if he could marry the young widow, which did not appear too difficult, since he had already made some progress with her along romantic lines.

But his plan, as it slowly developed, went far beyond the simple project of annexing the Stott estate. He proposed in addition to collect heavily from another source.

For this purpose one summer day, after he had written two new prescriptions "for fits," he said to Mrs. Stott:

"Don't have these filled at the first drug store you come to. They must be filled exactly right. Take them downtown to Buck & Rayner's, because they are responsible in case anything should go wrong."

Mrs. Stott demurred. She knew that Buck & Rayner's was one of the most reliable drug stores, but it was a mile and half out of her way.

"O, any drug store will do," she protested. "They're all careful."

"Do as I say," he told her sharply. "Who are you to be giving advice to your doctor?"

"All right, all right," she replied impatiently, "I'll go wherever you want me to."

But he did not like the way she said it. He thought it was a pretended concession.

"Come—I'll go with you," he said.

He led her to Buck & Rayner's and sent her in, while he waited across the street, watching.

The prescriptions were filled—properly. They were recorded in the pharmacist's records.

One was No. 303,479. It called for three capsules containing calomel and sugar.

The other was No. 303,480, calling for rhubarb, sodium bicarbonate, and a very small quantity of strychnine—deadly in an overdose but described at the trial as "not enough to harm a baby" in the strength called for in the prescription.

"Now," said Dr. Cream when Mrs. Stott brought the medicine to him, "we'll go back to my office."

They returned there and, according to Mrs. Stott's testimony, Dr. Cream took the two parcels into an inner office where he remained for a few minutes, then returned to her, handed her the parcels, and sent her home to give them to her husband.

What he had done in the inner office was this. He had added a large quantity of strychnine to the bottle in which the pharmacist had placed the very small quantity specified in the prescription.

This was Dr. Cream's conception of a perfect crime. The Elderly Epileptic would die from the poison. Dr. Cream would prove from the druggist's own records that the dose prescribed was harmless. Dr. Cream and the widow, both grieving over the tragedy, would be drawn together more strongly than ever as they made their accusation against the unlucky pharmacist who, they would charge, had made a fatal blunder in measuring the poison. And the pharmacist's employer would be compelled to pay heavy damages—would pay either by court order after a suit or without a court order, to avoid a suit.

To Dr. Cream it looked completely safe. For even if the pharmacist could prove that the prescriptions were correctly filled when they left the store, even if it were proved that the extra poison was added later, Dr. Cream, as he conceived it, would still be safe, since it could be made to appear that Mrs. Stott herself, wishing to exchange a tiresome husband for a fat bank account, had added the poison.

That night, 20 minutes after swallowing a dose of his new medicine, Daniel Stott was dead. But from that time on Cream's plans went wrong.

First, the death failed to attract the attention and suspicion that Dr. Cream had intended. The coroner called it "natural death"—an old man, known to be subject to fits, had had one more and died, just as any one would expect him to die. The certificate said epilepsy.

So there was a funeral, with plenty of flowers, the whole town present, the widow in tears, and the body of Stott was lowered into the grave. In a case like that how would Dr. Cream or anybody else hope to collect from the drug firm described as "responsible in case anything goes wrong"?

Rather than lose this chance for "big money" Dr. Cream did a desperate thing. From his Chicago

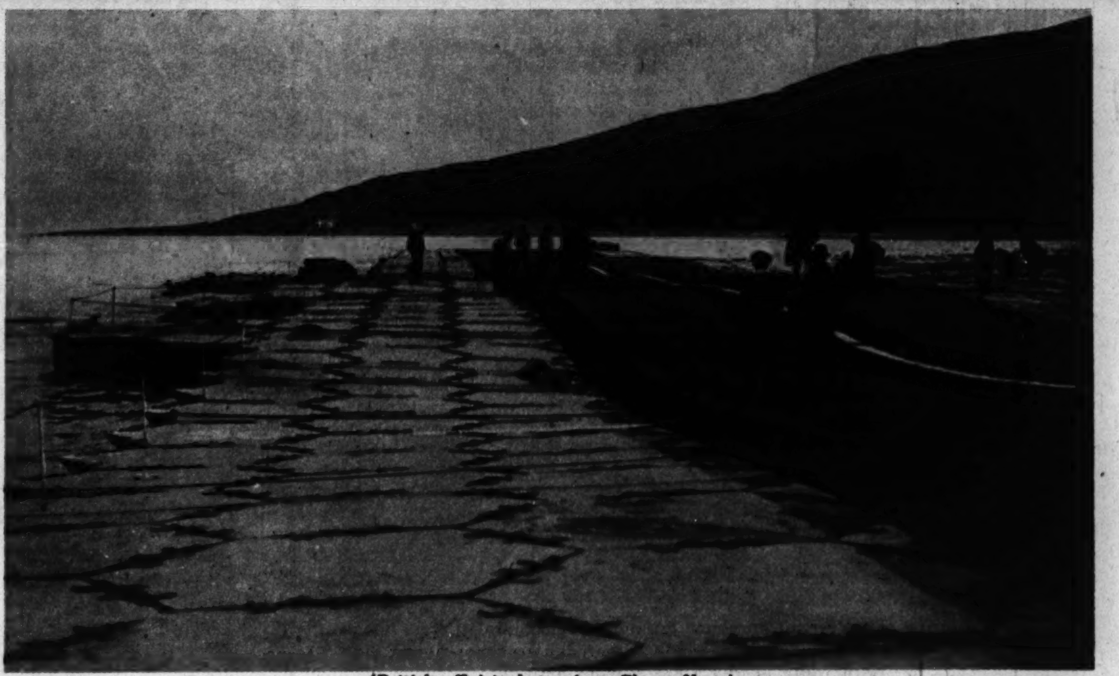
The "LILY" and the "SWISS ROLL"

Graphic Laboratory of Popular Science

By JAMES SLOAN
London



(British official photos from Planet News)

Close-up of the floating landing field called the Lily, showing how the movement of the waves causes the surface of the field, formed by a number of buoyant hexagonal cans, to undulate.

A FEW MILES off Lamlash, on Arran Island in the Firth of Clyde, Scotland, floats an air field where British service planes have been able to land and take off, a synthetic island that owes its birth to a boy's mathematics problems.

Some time ago the security wraps were removed from "Lily," the code name given to the floating air field developed by Ronald M. Hamilton of London, but the inside story of its discovery was not told then. The matter-of-fact admiralty just told about how it was using a 520x60 foot landing strip that floated because of magnification of the surface tension that allows a needle to float on water.

"Lily" began in the mind of Hamilton in 1941 when he had what the British quaintly call a brain wave.

"I realized the simple truth that if you could increase the natural surface tension of water you could support heavy weights," he explained.

So he borrowed a tarpaulin from a farmer near the Surrey town where he was vacationing and spread it on a river. Then he drove his motorcycle over it, and, discovering speed made a harder surface, he raced across the huge canvas at 50 miles an hour safely.

That was the beginning of Lily, and also its "Swiss roll" variation, which is a collapsible canvas and wood bridge laid on the water and which layed an important role in the Normandy invasion.

Ronald M. Hamilton, inventor of "Lily" and "Swiss roll."

For two years Hamilton worked on the floating air field problem without much success. His discovery of a way to float the airdrome is indirectly due to the fact his son Peter, an Eton scholar, took his mathematics problems to his teacher.

Peter at that time was being tutored by John Stewart Herbert, housemaster of Hopgardens, Eton's star mathematician. Returning from a visit with his father, Peter took the tutor into his confidence, telling him of the invention on which the elder Hamilton was working and on which he was giving him the benefit of his fresher mathematical mind.

But they were stuck, he admitted; perhaps their calculations were wrong, so he enlisted his tutor's assistance. This gave Lily a dual birthplace.

At Eton Herbert worked out some of the problems on a scale model of a floating air field made from cardboard and string produced by the butler at Hopgardens. In London Hamilton took over bomb-damaged parts of the Grosvenor hotel, next door to Victoria railway station, and the long vacant corridors became experimental sites for the airstrip.

Together—yet apart—they developed Lily, so named because of its resemblance to a carpet of lily leaves on a pond. It consists of a great number of buoyancy cans with hexagonal surfaces so linked together that they give in a controled manner to the motion of the sea yet remain rigid enough to support a heavy plane.

The admiralty took up Hamilton's experiments and built the first Lily, nicknamed the Lamlash Monster because an aerial view of it gives the impression of a great undulating sea serpent with planes on its back. On it, however, planes loaded to a total of 9,000 pounds have landed and taken off safely even in waves 36 feet apart.

Enlargement of the buoyancy cans, 6 feet wide and 30 inches deep in the original Lily, will allow construction of 2,500 foot airdromes capable of handling ocean air liners, the inventor claims, adding that such a seadrome could be transported to mid-Atlantic by three average sized merchant ships.

Unlimited possibilities are claimed for the floating air field, which not so long ago was considered an inventor's wildest dream. In addition to being able to revolutionize ocean flying by providing safe refueling stations at intervals across the sea, it easily can be converted into an extension of seaside resorts' facilities, according to its inventors. They claim it is fully capable of standing the stress of hotels, boarding houses, and pleasure grounds, all of which would greatly expand Britain's rather limited coastal resorts. British admiralty experts and Mr. Hamilton himself are of the opinion that a floating air field of the Lily type could be installed on Lake Michigan off Chicago to provide a place for planes to land and take off close to the city's loop.

Floating parking lots on the Thames river and unimpeded roadways atop the river itself are other suggested uses for Lily, which also could be combined with the Swiss roll type bridge to provide auxiliary piers in cramped ports.

In its Normandy invasion model the Swiss roll was a flexible canvas and wood jetty capable of withstanding a tension of 18 to 30 tons. Unrolled from ships to shore, 2,700 feet of it helped land tanks, trucks, and other heavy armor at Avranches despite severe weather. The British navy recently has been conducting experiments which utilized the Lily principle to expand the scope and uses of the Swiss roll.

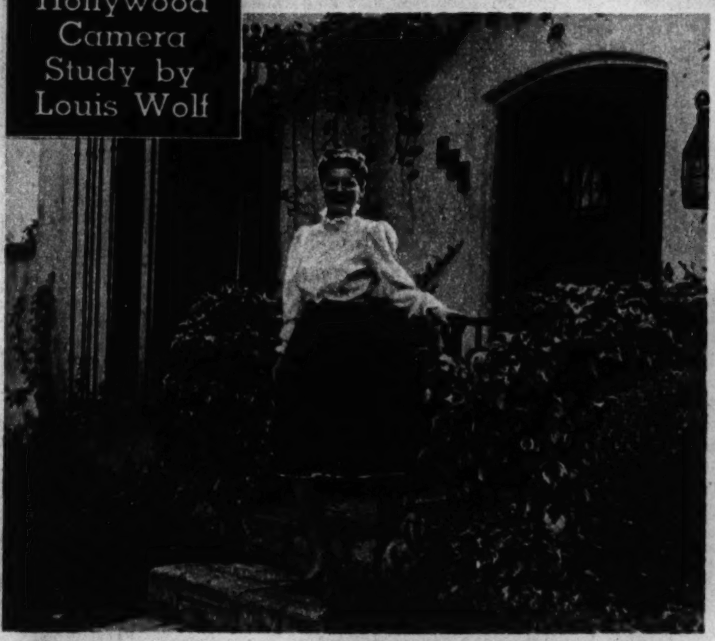
ELLEN DREW

Hollywood Camera Study by Louis Wolf



Ellen is proud of her recent purchase, an eight room Spanish style house in Beverly Hills. At present she would rather decorate her house than participate in any other outside activity.

Ellen often goes swimming at the Beverly Hills club. She prefers swimming to all other sports.

One of the first additions Ellen made to her home was the wall library in the living room. Getting books from the high shelves and putting them back again represents one of her most violent exercises.

By FREIDA ZYLSTRA

ELLEN DREW worked for Paramount two years before she won a lead opposite Bing Crosby in "Sing, You Sinners." For the last eight years she has been playing leading parts in pictures such as "If I Were King," with Ronald Colman, and "Christmas in July."

Four years ago she married Col. Sy Bartlett of the U. S. A. A. F. She has an 11-year-old son, David, by another marriage. Her husband has been overseas most of the time since their marriage. While she is waiting for his return she works at the studio, writes letters regularly, and is her own interior decorator.

Even tho her friends say that she is a good cook, she doesn't believe it herself and prefers to do all her "cooking" in the outdoor barbecue. She always has been interested in interior decorating, and, now that she has bought an eight room Spanish style home of her own in Beverly Hills, she is putting into effect every idea she ever had on the subject. She believes that the colors in a room should be complimentary to the occupants. The walls, furniture, and even the rugs are in colors that she wears best—deep dark greens and bright reds.

When she is at home she likes to wear dirndl skirts and peasant blouses, because they don't require the wearing of a slip. In fact, she never wears one if she can get away without it.

Miss Drew is 5 feet 3½ inches tall and weighs 110 pounds. She was born in Kansas City, Mo.

At left: Ellen and her pet Airedale, Willie. Ellen has no other pets, because her son, David, and the dog keep her quite busy.

How Nickel Helps Keep Signals Working...Tracks Clear!

As your fast train speeds across the country, its starts and stops are controlled by an intricate signal system.

These signals must be dependable – these systems must stay on the job, even if the main power supply is interrupted. That's why so many railway control systems turn for stand-by power to the rugged batteries invented by Thomas A. Edison.

And here his genius came upon your Unseen Friend—NICKEL. For it is the chemical changes of nickel oxides and iron in an alkaline solution that make possible these long-lived batteries which are free from acid, from danger of deterioration in stand-by service and from injury when discharged. Built of steel plated with Nickel, they stand up under the roughest use.

Your Unseen Friend Nickel is on the job wherever failure of the power supply might mean disaster and wherever reliable, portable or stand-by power is needed.

In these and countless other ways . . . from the pure Nickel in your radio tubes to the Nickel in your stainless-steel cutlery . . . this versatile metal is your Unseen Friend . . . as much a part of your life as your daily paper.

THIS YEAR we'll be able to choose from traditional fare for Thanksgiving menus. There's a normal supply of turkeys, cranberries, and other favorite holiday foods.

Start the dinner off with cranberry juice cocktail and end it with jellied mince pie. In between serve roast turkey, oyster stuffing, glazed sweet potatoes, buttered peas, a crisp vegetable salad, and hot rolls.

For best results, place the turkey breast side up in an uncovered roasting pan with no water. As protection against drying out, cover the bird with a piece of cheesecloth moistened with melted butter and brush at hourly intervals with additional melted butter or drippings from the pan. Roast an 8 to 10 pound bird at 325 degrees for 3 to 3½ hours and a 10 to 14 pound bird at 300 degrees for 3½ to 4 hours. Take the turkey out of the oven about 20 minutes ahead of serving time, if possible, to give the meat a chance to absorb the juices.

Mince and pumpkin pies are the most popular Thanksgiving dessert, tho they'd be moré suitable after a lighter meal. Here's one that's a good choice, since it's a one-cruster and can be cut in small pieces:

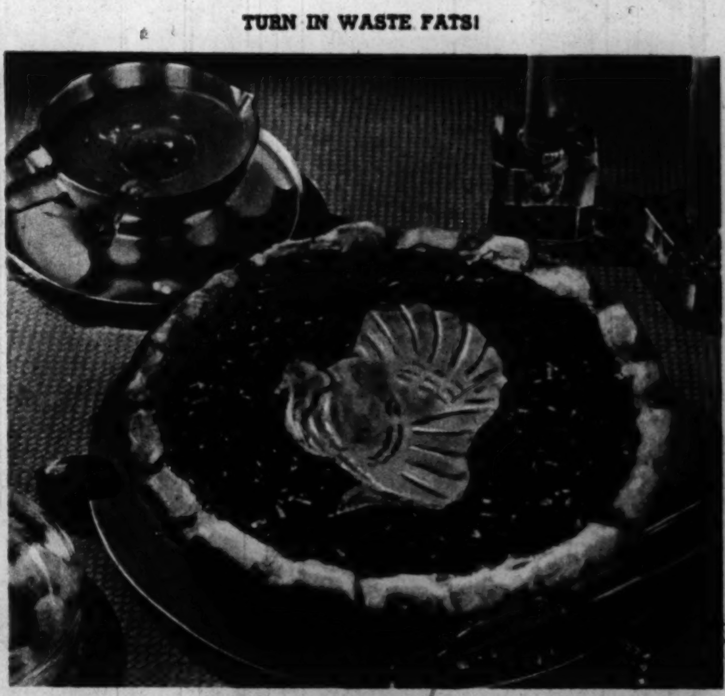
JELLIED MINCE PIE
(One 9-inch pie)

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
2 cups seedless raisins, finely chopped
½ cup currants
¼ cup chopped citron
¼ cup chopped candied orange peel
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
⅓ teaspoon allspice
⅓ teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 baked pastry shell

Soften gelatin in cold water. Mix remaining ingredients with exception of lemon juice and simmer until apples are tender. Dissolve softened gelatin in hot fruit mixture, add lemon juice, and cool. When mixture begins to thicken, pour into baked pie shell and chill. If desired, serve with whipped cream or a hard sauce.

To make the pastry turkey which garnishes the center of the pie, use a cutter or lay a paper pattern on top of the dough and cut around it with a sharp knife. Mark in the feathers with the back of the knife and use a currant for the eye. Brush lightly with melted butter and bake in a hot oven until lightly browned.

TURN IN WASTE FATS!



That's a bowl of hard sauce in the upper left corner to serve with the jellied mince pie.

when the Turkey was stuffed with Mickelberry's "Old Farm" Sausage

Grandmother Mickelberry's Dressing for Thanksgiving Turkey

2½ Cups Crumbed Bread 2 Tablespoons Minced Onions
1 lb Mickelberry's Old Farm Sausage Meat (Roll) 2 Eggs
¼ Cup Mushrooms can be added if you so desire.

Select a light loose-textured bread that is one day old. Crumb and measure by packing lightly into a cup. Blend it with the sausage and seasonings. Stir in the lightly beaten eggs, handling carefully, so as not to pack the dressing. Put the well blended mixture into the dressed fowl, leaving room for expansion. Sew up the opening before roasting. Be Sure To Use Mickelberry's "Old Farm" Sausage. It keeps the turkey meat juicy and sweet and imparts a delicious zest. A Hint for the Woman Over Forty

(Posed by Irene Dunne)

There is more to a beautiful face than mere structure or cosmetic magic. Its real beauty radiates from deep inside.

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

TODAY'S ARTICLE is directed at the woman of from 40 to 50 summers and springs and winters and falls. She is the woman on whom certain divisions of the beauty trade depend. She is, we have reason to believe, the woman who uses up the greater percentage of marketed eye creams and astringents. She is the one upon whom our numerous reducing salons, health farms, and so on depend for their continuance as profitable ventures. She is the woman who needs to put the largest sums into foundation garments, and she is, by right of her own or her husband's established success, the woman financially equipped to patronize the smartest millinery and dress houses.

We see them, as do you, on the avenue, turned out like top fashion numbers from head to toe. They're furred, bejeweled, accessoried, curried within an inch of their well groomed lives. They should, to a last woman of them, be apparitions of loveliness. Some of them may be that. But they represent a small minority, sad to say.

When your eye comes to rest on their faces, after a woman-to-woman sharp appraisal of costume, hat, gloves, and bag, the lack of beauty secrets hits you full force in the dour, belligerent, grim, or otherwise emotionally afflicted countenance.

We wish, for greater benefits to the beauty landscape, some one would discover a balm, an herb, lotion, or foundation product upon whose application the female countenance would be lifted to heights of smiling glory or sweet calm, radiance, beauty of face in the real sense of the word. Then, with that woman turned out from tip to toe by experts and professional artistry, what a woman you'd have!

We wonder sometimes if the so commonly seen expression-blemished face of an older woman doesn't stem from refusal to accept age at its own value; if awareness of the impossible competition with glowing youth doesn't get so many of those drooping mouth corners down. The sour-puss look can't all stem from domestic troubles.

It may be that many women reach this age unprepared for it, so to speak. They keep on keying themselves to the excitement-chasing, adventure-hunting twenties, with the baleful consequences written into their faces. They frankly lack the common sense, the will power and character to face the forties not as a dead-end street but as an avenue abloom with a beauty of its own.

On this broad and gracious avenue there is no place for bitterness over past opportunities lost or misdirected; no place for attempts to compensate in youth's way for experiences not taken advantage of in the earlier years. There is place, however, for a cultivated serenity, if need be, for the new perspective on life that allots to the woman of mid-years a graciousness, a charm, a poise, a philosophy starring generosity of spirit and that certain spiritual quality that smooths and softens a countenance as no bottled balm, cream, or lotion ever could.

Our wish is to see more serenity of expression, more kindliness thereof, and more facial cheer under that pretty chapeau; and there is only one person on earth who can effect the miracle, and it is the lady under the hat. We would only add the adoption of a slogan for daily mirror use in question form: "Is my face wearing an expression that would earn admiring glances?"

(Posed by Kay Francis)

If only some balm could lift all feminine faces to heights of smiling glory or sweet, radiant calm!

EGYPT—OLD VS. NEW

focal point of opportunity, the seat of power and favor. It probably is the most cosmopolitan of all the cities of the world. Along with the native-born mingle in the business, amusements, and work of Cairo tall, austere blacks from the upper reaches of the Nile; shrewd, sharp, active little men from Lebanon, Palestine, and Iraq. There are people from as far away as Iran and India, considerable colonies of Greeks, Armenians, Italians, and French. Before the war there were a noticeable number here of Germans and Austrians. The British may be less numerous than some of the others, but their presence is everywhere felt—in banking, business, and administration, and in their eternal gabble about sport, with which they have infected Egyptians.

Americans are less in the picture, but the American university is the most ambitious foreign attempt at providing higher education, probably also the most popular and successful of such institutions. Americans also have played an important part in supplying funds and scholars for the archaeological research which is an essential feature of the life of Egypt. Chicagoans may be little aware of the part played in this research by the elaborate institution of the University of Chicago, called Chicago House, but that is at Luxor, a good 400 miles from Cairo. About it I shall tell you more later.

"When a man is tired of Cairo he is tired of life," might be justly said, copying Dr. Johnson's remark about London. Its people are constantly in the streets, arguing and gesticulating, perpetually in movement to pick up an honest or dishonest piaster (4 cents), occupied with any incident which can be a subject of conversation or give a good laugh. Their good humor seems inexhaustible.

Locally made pottery jars, used as household utensils, form the merchandise of one of Cairo's many specialized markets.

Yet all this elemental turbulence is viewed with a sour eye by the westerner, at least by Britisher and American. He is possibly shocked by so much noisy vitality. He may complain that he cannot sleep in a town where some sort of row is going on all night long. At heart he is offended by so much energy expended on a basis which he cannot understand. For the citizens of Cairo have never heard of, or reject as a fable, the Anglo-Saxon assumption that wealth can be created, that the diligent and shrewd man can rise from rags to riches.

No; on this point east does not meet west. The ingrained belief of the inhabitant of Cairo is that you must either get wealth by divine intervention, like being born to it, or take it away from some one by servility, flattery, or intrigue. Acting on this basis, it is amazing what efforts one of them may exert to flimflam some one out of 10 piasters, when the same efforts might have earned 100. Cairo has never accepted the puritan propaganda that it is honorable to work. It is, on the contrary, honorable to loaf, to be rich and arrogant, and to have a good laugh at the poor imbeciles who cannot do anything better than work.

Whenever you hear an Egyptian talk about efficiency and progress you can safely bet he has fallen under Anglo-American influence. He is lost to his own people. The chances are also good that he is putting on an act to see what he can get out of it.

Among world capitals Cairo is the ancient of days, more ancient even that Delhi. It has been devastated and destroyed, fallen into decay, been deserted, and risen again. Its first version, Memphis, a few miles up the Nile on the left bank (Cairo is mostly on the right bank), was a royal city at the dawn of western history. Memphis went into oblivion for centuries; then a smaller city was built by the Romans closer to what now is Cairo. The Moslem dynasties made it a place of beauty.

Today, within less than an hour's motor drive in Cairo and its vicinity, you may see this march of time. On the left bank of the Nile, in the suburb of Giza, the great pyramids loom before you at the edge of the desert, symbols of one human effort to conquer oblivion. Off in east Cairo you will find the great mosques, relics of the past but still a living force to the people of Egypt. And all about you in central Cairo are the utilitarian buildings of the 19th and 20th centuries, the latest mark of foreign influence on the valley of the Nile.

Here in this new setting it may be that a new Egypt is being formed, a westernized Egypt, buying and driving motor cars, listening to and believing the radio, respectful of microbes, inoculations, and vitamins, twitching in response to the demoniacal ideas of Lenin and of the Aspidistra school of economics, yearning for the dawn of the brave new world, eager to exchange its traditional superstitions for another set.

Is it so? Or does the near east still have vast reserves of inertia? That is the next question to examine.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS BY BOB BECKER

At left: These 3-week-old American water spaniel pups are owned by Mrs. D. J. Wykoff, Joliet.

WHEN AUTUMN and the threat of unpleasant weather comes in the northern states, dogs kept as pets inevitably experience several changes in their lives. For example, dogs that have been kept outdoors most of the time begin to spend more time indoors during bad weather. Many pets that are given lots of walks and chances to exercise on delightful summer and autumn days are apt to be taken on fewer strolls because the owner doesn't want to walk in the rainy or cold windy weather. Thus the pet gets less exercise but very often the same amount of food, which often increases its weight.

The St. Bernard is known for its work in saving lives. This one is Peter Resolute, owned by Stanley T. Peters, River Forest, Ill.

The question of bathing the dog also comes up when cold weather approaches. In many homes the pet gets fewer baths after bad weather sets in. This calls for more brushing and combing.

Autumn is also the time for the owner to make what may be the last offensive against ticks. That means the use of a powder or a dip to kill the ticks, which are the number one pest in many localities.

If you are one of those dog owners who give the pet fewer baths during the winter months (a smart thing to do when the animal is kept in well heated rooms most of the time), a bed of cedar shavings comes in very handy for the pet. In fact, to have the dog sleep on cedar shavings the year 'round is just about ideal. Such a bed has two advantages—the shavings discourage fleas, and they impart to the dog a pleasant fragrant odor.

It would be difficult to name a more useful or cheaper dog accessory than cedar shavings. They are perfect for use in a kennel. We have sprinkled them in our dog kennel for years. For the pet kept in the house the best way to use them is in a cloth bed. The material can be washed when it gets dirty and stuffed again with shavings.

Judging by the letters we receive starting about this season of the year, many owners do not know that it's possible to keep a dog free from the typical canine odor by this combination: Lots of brushing and combing several times each week, cedar shavings, and the use of a cleaning liquid made especially for dogs. We want to emphasize the words "made especially for dogs." Several months ago when we were suggesting the use of this kind of canine toiletry an owner called to ask if one of those dry cleaners that you use to remove spots from clothes would be all right for his pet!

It certainly isn't all right. No cleaning fluid designed for use on clothes should be used on a dog. The liquids or powders for cleaning canines are entirely different.

Our dogs never get into water from late autumn until the following spring. One of the last dunk-

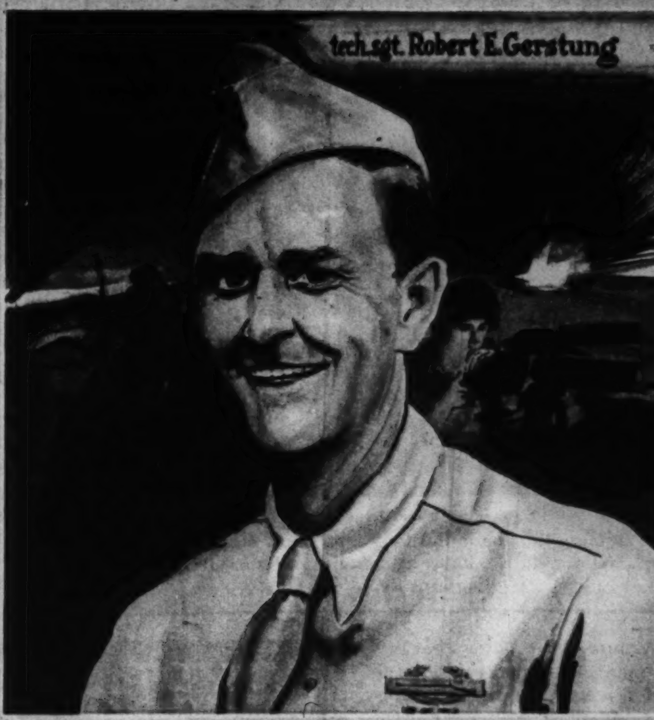
AMERICAN HEROES OF WORLD WAR II.



This is another of the series on outstanding American heroes of World War II. Subjects are heroes who have been decorated for valor. Illustrations are by Clara Fargo Thomas and Alexander Varnak.

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

AMONG THE THOUSANDS of young men of Chicago who went to war were many who performed outstanding acts of bravery on the battlefields. On the land, on the sea, and in the air these lads, like those from other parts of the country, contributed their generous part to defeat the enemy. The war records are provided abundantly with their stories of individual valor, altho many were the heroic deeds, no doubt, that passed unnoticed and unrecorded in the excitement and confusion of battle.

In the list of Chicago's distinguished heroes is Tech. Sgt. Robert E. Gerstung, 30, of 5447 Northwest highway, who last Aug. 23 was awarded the medal of honor (congressional medal) in an impressive ceremony at the White House in Washington in which President Truman personally bestowed the decoration upon Gerstung and 27 others.

A member of H company of the 313th infantry of the 79th division, Sergeant Gerstung saw severe fighting in France and in the invasion of Germany. On Dec. 16, 1944, he and the other members of his company were pinned down by enemy mortar, tank, and rifle fire in the vicinity of the Siegfried line near Berg, Germany. Altho wounded, Gerstung single-handed held up a counter-attack of the Germans long enough to permit the safe withdrawal of his company. Operating a machine gun until it jammed and then jumping to another weapon of the same type, he fought until his last round was used up. Seeing that his comrades were safe, he withdrew to join them.

Watch for this series of sketches and stories every Sunday.

SURE CURE FOR A SHOW-OFF!

BY SHEILA JOHN DALY

(Copyright: 1945: The Chicago Tribune)

THERE seems to be one of these characters in every high school crowd. To every 20 or 30 smart and smooth fellows and gals who get along wonderfully together there's usually one who disrupts the whole amiable setup. He's one of those high schoolers who, either thru a superiority complex or a queer kind of inferiority complex, is constantly reminding the rest of the group what an interesting young thing he is. And most of the time the rest of the guys and gals don't agree with him too heartily.

These obnoxious persons come in both male and female packages and in assorted sizes ranging from freshmen up thru seniors, and no one is entirely sure of being free of them. So let's give them the once over lightly to see what makes them tick.

Usually the high pressure tactics of these fellows and gals can be traced to the fact that they don't feel sure of themselves; they don't think they have enough on the ball in the line of personality to make an impression and so have to rely on their big talk. Whenever the conversation has gone on for more than five minutes without a reference to the joe in question he feels left out and turns the talk his way. He may mention, casually, of course, the price tag that came with his new yellow corduroy sport coat, the amount of income tax his father paid last year, and how many helicopters he's going to buy as soon as they're available.

You are bound to feel disgusted when some gal tries to top everything any one in the crowd says.

No matter who tells a story or anecdote, this particular character can match or surpass it with a tale of his own. Your cousin is coming home with 89 points? Why, think nothing of it! His cousin is being discharged with 129 tallies, the air medal, the Purple Heart, and the unit citation, and he shook hands with President Truman besides!

A gal may come to school one morning all aglow and bursting with news of the bright lights evening she spent with her sailor boy blue. But her story quickly loses its point when the local glamor gal starts reminiscing about the night she spent at the Punk Room, an evening complete with champagne, peacocks' tongues on toast, and calling the headwaiter by his first name.

If some one is rejoicing because she came out with so few red marks on her nice black and white history exam, even tho it was hard, the eager beaver can't let it pass without mentioning that her mark was even higher! And of course it makes little difference to her whether the story is strictly the truth. What are a few glamorizing extra details among friends? And so it goes, until by the end of the day a few people are tempted to chain this character in a damp, dark corner of the school basement and forget about her.

And there's another kind of individual who takes the fun out of everything. Tho he may not say anything, whenever any one else has a tale to tell he indicates by his weary, isn't-this-dull attitude that he's just too, too bored with this whole business. Tho he may never put it into words, the implication is that he leads such an exciting, hectic life that these small details don't compare at all with the tall tales of his existence.

So if you're one of those sad-eyed susans who finds herself looking the other way and twiddling her thumbs whenever any one else is talking, it's time for the revolution. Besides dampening the excitement for your friends, you're losing a lot of fun yourself. Perhaps your lack of enthusiasm stems from your belief that it is no longer smooth to get excited, as long as you're a big girl now. But you'd have much more fun if you were interested in what you and your friends are doing instead of assuming that utterly-tired-of-it-all attitude. So let yourself go and see what you've been missing!

And for the talkative young ones who take the spotlight for every conversation there's a solution, too. You'd find the other fellows and gals in the crowd a more interesting group if you'd stop to give a listen to their activities and interests occasionally instead of concentrating all your talents on your own. The next time you find yourself about to tell a tale, encourage one of the others to speak up instead. Two out of three times when you're about to launch into a detailed description of your newest sack and snood, compliment some one else on her clothes instead. If you expend a little of your excess energy on making others feel good, just watch your popularity rating soar. You'll soon be hitting the number one spot on your friends' hit parades and will be having more fun yourself.

So give out with the enthusiasm occasionally instead of insisting always on being on the receiving end. You may be a terrific young person, a Van Johnson j. g. or a junior June Allyson, but why not let people find out for themselves? If you're as smooth a young operator as you say they shouldn't have to be told!

TOPS AMONG THE TEENS

BARELY OUT of the saddle shoes and fuzzy socks stage in her high school career, Chicago's 17-year-old Joanell is already an established favorite as a songstress in the city's smartest supper spots. The glamorous little blonde with the satiny hair and velvet voice, who delights diners in the Buttery with her smooth vocalizing by night, is a hard-working student by day at Longwood academy, where she's president of her senior class.

Altho Joanell took singing lessons for seven years, her big love was the ballet, and it was not until summer vacation, 1944, when the Buttery was searching for a new songstress, that she really got serious about a singing career. She auditioned, got the job, and spent that summer and the next as featured vocalist in the chic little room that performers have affectionately tagged the Showcase.

When school starts each September the Cinderella evenings are over for Joanell, because she and her family agree that her education comes first. Until she has finished school singing can be only a side line, and that's the way she feels it ought to be for a while, altho she is anxious to embark on a full time career some day.

JOANELL . . . singer

Among her devoted fans is Dick Haymes, who popped up at a ringside table every night during his last summer's run at a loop theater, just to catch Joanell's show. Several tempting offers have come from Hollywood, the most recent of which was the role of Miriam, the lame singing girl in "The Robe." But the ambitious little singer is biding her time before accepting a bid from Hollywood or anywhere else. Since she tried out for her first big-time singing stint with "Embraceable You" (now her theme song) Joanell has come a long way. But she's smart enough to know that school's important now—and studying, improving her breathing by listening to recordings by topnotch artists, and plenty of that vital thing called practice.

How Dentists Voted in Nationwide Survey
There are only 3 basic brushing surface designs among all leading tooth brushes!

When 30,000 dentists were asked which of these designs cleaned teeth best — by more than 2 to 1 — the answers were: "Straight Line Design!"

Every Pepsodent Brush has the Straight Line Design most dentists recommend

Why Pepsodent Straight Line Design Cleans Teeth Best. Despite popular belief, most teeth in the average mouth lie in a series of relatively straight lines. Authoritative research shows Pepsodent's Straight Line Design fits more teeth better than convex or concave designs...Actually cleans up to 30% more tooth surface per stroke.

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS

ings the Labrador retriever receives is a combination bath and insect-killing dip. From then on this big dog is kept clean and free from odor by the use of a special liquid cleaner which contains a cleansing agent (not soap), a deodorant, and a clean, pleasant scent which stays in the dog's coat. It works perfectly on white dogs, for it removes dirt quickly.

If we were to bathe any of our dogs with soap and warm water to eliminate dog odor as often as some owners do the animals would be scratching all winter, due to a dry skin. Such a skin irritation during the winter months, when pets are kept in warm rooms, often is a signal to the owner that he is bathing the dog too often, with the result that the animal naturally has no oil on its skin or coat.

Cocker spaniels, springers, setters, and other dogs with quite dense coats ought to be checked over at this time of the year before they develop their heavy winter "overcoats." Two spots especially require attention—under the front legs, where careless grooming results in matted hair, and behind each ear, where three or four inch long mats of hair also may form. Another thing to do is to give the dog's feet a haircut if he's one of those dogs that grow lots of hair around their toes.

It's surprising how many owners fail to use the comb, brush, and scissors on these spots. The cocker spaniel, America's most popular breed, is a splendid companion dog. It's a very good looking dog, too. But these little dogs deserve and require a certain amount of grooming to display their good looks and also for their health. If a cocker has a profuse coat it's a good idea to have a professional handler trim it a little from time to time. The dog will look better, feel better, and leave less hair around the house if it gets such attention. In between these treatments the owner should give the animal plenty of combing and brushing.

VETERAN WORLD WAR II

Discovery by Noted Veterinarian

STOPS DOG-ITCH

For years, veterinarians were baffled by a common skin disease that caused untold agony to dogs and cats. Starting as a burning itch, it soon develops dandruff-like scales and brownish edged sores with a mouldy odor in ears, on paws, under-body, back or around tail. Treatments for mange, fleas, allergy or faulty diet result only in costly care or actual loss. Now, noted veterinarian, Dr. A. C. Merrick, has positively identified this disease as a fungus infection comparable to "Athlete's Foot." He has named it "Fungitch" and has also developed SULFADENE, a treatment proved amazingly effective in thousands of clinical cases. Applied externally, Dr. Merrick's SULFADENE stops the itch in a few minutes—scales and sores vanish in a few days. Buy today where you get pet foods or remedies—or send $1.00 for generous treatment; money back if it fails to give complete satisfaction. Address Brookfield Laboratories, Dept.M-125 Brookfield, Ill.

RECORDially Yours

WILL DAVIDSON

BY THE time this is in print I hope the efforts of a group of jazz lovers will have resulted in the formation of the Hot Jazz Club of Chicago. The purpose of the organization is to promote jazz concerts and to further jazz in metropolitan Chicago. If ever a town should foster the preservation of jazz Chicago should, for altho New Orleans created jazz, this Windy city of ours nurtured it, shot vitamins into it, and gave it to an excited world. The club has a good start with the backing of such sincere enthusiasts as David Bell, George Hoefer Jr., Judy Downs, John T. Schenck, and others, and "RECORDially Yours" wishes it well.

Eddy Duchin

New York is currently excited over the appearance there of the legendary Bunk Johnson and an aged crew of ragtime greats. DECCA, I understand, is going to record some of Bunk's work, and that is a break. Perhaps Chicago's Hot Jazz club can bring Bunk here, and I'll wager a farthing Chicago will greet him more warmly than New York. Out on the west coast another old-timer, Kid Ory, is showing moderns what the old-timers can still do with jazz. I'm hoping before long to have some of his latest recordings for review.

Looking over the album field: It's far from new, but Cugat's Favorite Rhumbas is a cinch collection by COLUMBIA for the Latin fans. Includes eight top-flighters, such as "Beguine" and "Green Eyes." . . . Another COLUMBIA book that is proving pretty popular is a collection of Duchin solos in the nostalgic vein. Two numbers to a side, eight sides of such sweet stuff as "April Showers" and "Am I Blue." . . . VICTOR gives Vaughn Monroe an album of "moon" numbers. Every one has "moon" in the title, which gives you a good idea. It is called "On the Moon Beam." . . . SONORA comes thru with a good item for the Christmas trade, "Christmas Carols." Twelve of the most famous carols are sung by the Sonora Choristers, made up of Met and St. Louis Opera singers. Another SONORA album is a wonderful buy for the children—Uncle Don's "Land of Song." Its three records carry 28 favorite jingles and tunes.

Crimes of Dr. Cream

office he sent a telegram to the coroner at Belvidere saying:

"Daniel Stott was my patient. Am convinced his death not due natural causes. Suggest post-mortem."

He signed the message "Dr. T. N. Cream," but fate dealt him another blow just then, for in transmission the signature came thru not as "Cream" but as "Crame." And the coroner, never having heard of a "Dr. Crame" nor finding any record of the existence of a doctor with that name, ignored the message.

Dr. Cream, after an interval, sent another, saying:

"Insist you investigate Stott death. Possible error of drug clerk in filling prescription. Suggest examination of any remnant of medicine. Suspect foul play."

Still nothing happened and Dr. Cream sent still another message, a letter, saying that if an investigation was not started at once he would notify the state's attorney, which he did. He also communicated with the police. And he suggested that any remnant of Stott's medicine be "tried on a dog or a cat."

That suggestion did not get action, since it did not call for anything so troublesome, spectacular, and possibly embarrassing as exhuming Stott's body.

A tablespoonful of the medicine described as "harmless for a baby" was administered to a dog, which promptly died.

Next day the village of Garden Prairie was invaded by Chicago reporters and the heat began.

The belated post-mortem showed that Stott's body contained enough strychnine to kill six men. Analysis of the unused portion of the medicine revealed 30 times as much of the poison as the prescription called for.

Dr. Cream, realizing too late that every one of his messages had been a colossal blunder, desperately sought to enlist the Widow Stott for his salvation. But he found her far from docile.

"You killed him," she cried. "You're trying to drag me in. I understand now why you insisted on having those prescriptions filled at a special drug store. I'll tell."

She did tell, and the point was fatal at the trial.

"It had to be Buck & Rayner's," she said. "Nothing else would do. He said Buck & Rayner's would be responsible if anything happened."

Had he ever insisted on having Buck & Rayner's fill earlier prescriptions? No, at all other times he had been indifferent. But this time it must be Buck & Rayner's, even if he had to go with her and see that she went where she was told to go. It was a mile and a half. Plenty of other good drug stores on the way—nearer. But only one was sufficiently "responsible if things go wrong."

Mrs. Stott testified that she protested against the exhuming of the body but that Cream said to her: "Who in hell knows best—you or Tom Cream? You give me your power of attorney and we'll collect from that drug store. We can get $5,000 as easily as five cents."

Finding Mrs. Stott rebellious against his plan, however, Cream realized his own increasing danger, and that was when he fled to Canada. He went first to a hotel in Windsor, where he registered as Thomas Creighton, then to the French village of Belle Riviere, using the name of Dr. Donald Ross. There he locked himself in his room at the Commercial hotel and drank whisky so steadily that when the police broke in they found him on the verge of delirium tremens, "shaking like a leaf."

So Dr. Cream was pictured to the jury as a man who not only would murder for money but would also ruin, if he could, a reputable drug firm, ruin an innocent pharmacist and perhaps cause his imprisonment or worse.

Dr. Cream's effort to turn the law's accusing finger from himself to Mrs. Stott proved fruitless. The apparent motives for the crime were all Dr. Cream's, not hers. She already had such an abundance of "economic security" for both present and future that it would have been madness for her to take the risks involved in any deliberate shortening of her husband's life even if she had thought of such a thing. Patience promised far greater and safer rewards. At least that is the theory accepted by the state and ratified by the jury, which may account for the fact that she appeared only as a state's witness instead of co-defendant.

The jury in Dr. Cream's trial, like so many other American juries, appears to have blended a stern sense of justice with a sentimental reluctance to take life, for while it was quick to decide that the defendant was guilty, it saved him from the gallows by including the phrase "second degree," thus limiting the punishment to life imprisonment.

After Dr. Cream had served a little more than nine years a movement was started to free him, one of the arguments being that his father had died and left him a $16,000 inheritance. It was felt that filial grief and a lot of money would be enough, in their combined effect, to persuade him to be good. So Gov. Joseph W. Fifer turned him loose in July, 1891.

He sailed for England, landed there on the 1st of October, and in less than two weeks had committed another murder. He killed a girl named Ellen Donworth on Oct. 13, apparently for no reason at all. Exactly a week later he killed another, Matilda Clover. And in the following April he killed two more, Alice Marsh and Emma Shrivell.

All four of these women were of the class euphemistically called "unfortunate," and most students believe that Dr. Cream selected them for death merely because of their easy accessibility. Anybody could visit their rooms at any hour of the night without attracting attention.

The only credible motive for the many murders appeared to be simply cruelty. Edmund Pearson, an exceptionally astute analyst of criminal mentalities, believed that Dr. Cream was a sadist—with variations.

"If he delighted in cruelty for its own sake," says Pearson in "Three Footnotes to De Quincey," "he was of a special, peculiar type; he carefully absented himself from the scene when his victims endured their agonies."

Halifax Gadley held a similar view, believing that Dr. Cream "preferred to let his imagination picture the suffering rather than watch it directly, for the imagination is able to outdo the actual, and if the screams of a dying woman are music to the ear of the sadist, one might recall Keats' observation that 'Heard melodies are sweet but those unheard are sweeter.'"

Dr. Cream was placed on trial at the Old Bailey in London on Oct. 18, 1892, for one of his last four murders, that of Matilda Clover. The trial lasted five days, the jury took only 10 minutes to find him guilty, and less than a month later he was executed.

"Just like I pictured you... even to the color of that robe!" "Those were Bill's very first words! What a husband! Away for two long years—and right off the bat he notices what I have on.

"Guess I'm not so dumb! Bill was always one to notice my duds. That's why I made plenty sure the things he liked would keep their glamour. Take this pretty robe. Every single time I washed it, I played safe and used Ivory Flakes!

"Don't let bright memories fade! When something you're wearing makes a man's eyes light up, why not keep it pretty?

"It's so easy! Avoid rough treatment. And never use the wrong kind of soap. Just stick to gentle care and pure, mild Ivory Flakes. That way, pretty sudsables stay bright and lovely up to twice as long!" It's true! It's been proved—by wash tests on bright prints, stockings, sweaters, filmy undies!

"Remember—make gentleness the rule! Take a tip from those wash tests if you want your pretty things to lead a double life. It's as easy as this:

"Every night, swish undies and stockings through gentle Ivory Flakes-suds. And give all your other washables frequent tubbings in lukewarm water and Ivory Flakes. Ivory Flakes, remember, are 99⁴⁴/₁₀₀ % pure—just like baby's Ivory Soap!"

RAW, SORE, MISERABLE FROM A COLD?

Do This Quick for Relief!

If you are sneezing and snuffling from a cold... all stuffed-up, with your nose and throat raw and sore—combat this distress, as thousands do, by gargling with new Pepsodent Antiseptic.

The reason it's recommended is this: Standard laboratory tests prove new Pepsodent Antiseptic kills millions of germs that go with colds. The very type of germs that many medical authorities say often heighten the misery and prolong the effects of a cold.

Isn't it only common sense then, to gargle with new Pepsodent Antiseptic at first sign of a cold! What better way to combat millions of germs that swarm on mouth and throat surfaces as far back as you can reach... back where illness often strikes first!

So treat a cold this sensible way: Get plenty of rest, avoid exposure, dress warmly, drink plenty of liquids... and gargle frequently with new Pepsodent Antiseptic. See if you don't relieve discomfort almost at once!

PROMINENT DOCTOR'S DAUGHTER TO WED NAVY CAPTAIN'S SON

The engagement of Frances Hutchins to Ensign Allister Carroll Anderson has been announced by Dr. and Mrs. Amos F. Hutchins, Stoakley House, Md.

She's Engaged!

SHE'S LOVELY!

SHE USES POND'S!

FRANCES HUTCHINS—honey-spun hair, delft-blue eyes, a "mighty-like-a-rose" complexion

BEAUTIFUL Stoakley House where Frances lives, is one of the aristocratic old homes near Annapolis—so it's natural that she is "marrying into the Navy."

She's another engaged girl with that charming "soft-smooth" Pond's look that just seems to belong to romance.

Frances is enthusiastic about what Pond's can do for a girl's complexion. "I like Pond's Cold Cream better than any I've ever used," she says. "It feels simply luscious—and it certainly gives my skin perfectly grand help."

Here's the way Frances uses Pond's Cold Cream!

She smooths snowy-soft Pond's all over her face and throat and pats "with good brisk little pats" to help soften and release dirt and make-up. Tissues all off.

She rinses with more Pond's for an extra cleansing and softening—creaming all over her face with little spiral circles of her Pond's covered fingers. "I love the way this twice-over Pond's cleansing leaves my skin—so soft and smooth," she says.

Use your Pond's Cold Cream the way Frances likes so well—every night, every morning, and for daytime clean-ups. It's no accident so many more women and girls prefer Pond's to any other face cream at any price. Get a big luxurious jar that lets you dip in with fingers of both hands at once. Get it today!

ANOTHER POND'S "CANTEEN GIRL"—Frances helped organize and run the canteen sponsored by Ogontz Junior College near Philadelphia. The girls in her college have made it a big part of their own special war work—serving coffee and "snacks." Volunteers are still needed for recreation centers—can you help?

Only the Good Go to Jail

THE Teenie Weenies were getting tired of supporting Ginky in the Teenie Weenie jail. The lazy mouse liked nothing better than to sleep all day and to have the Teenie Weenies bring him his food. If the little people let him out he immediately committed some crime so that he had to be arrested again and be put back in the pint fruit jar.

"If we put him out of jail, he'll cause us a lot of trouble until we arrest him again," said the Policeman. "I don't see why we have to support him in order to keep him from stealing."

The Teenie Weenies discussed putting Ginky out of their jail for several days, but they didn't do anything about it until the mouse was very rude to the Cowboy one morning when that little chap went into the fruit jar with the two grains of corn which was the mouse's daily food ration. Ginky demanded three grains of corn, and when the Cowboy refused the mouse knocked off the Teenie Weenie's hat and tramped on his toes. That decided the General, and he ordered that Ginky be put out of jail.

The Policeman unlocked the paw cuffs and told Ginky he'd have to get out of jail. The mouse promptly refused and it took five of the little men to drag him out. All the little folks gathered around the jail while Ginky pleaded with the General not to put him out of jail.

"I'll be as good as ice cream, if you let me stay in jail," Ginky told the General.

"No, Ginky," said the General. "You're a bad mouse, and we don't want any bad mice in our jail."

"If you put me out I'll steal, and rob, and break all the windows in the shoe house," Ginky screamed in rage.

"If you commit any crime around here you can never get back in our jail," answered the General. "However, if you behave yourself and don't get into any trouble for a long, long time we may consider putting you back in jail once in a while as a reward for your good behavior."

"I'll go and throw myself into a mouse trap if you don't put me back in jail," sobbed Ginky.

"That would probably be a very good thing to do," smiled the General who knew very well the mouse had no intention of doing any such a dreadful thing.

After much weeping Ginky finally went away, and for some time now he has been a very good mouse, for he is most anxious to get back into the Teenie Weenie jail.

YOU CAN SEE THE DIFFERENCE!

Tests show it...Millions know it!

No matter what leading tooth powder you are using now . . . Pepsodent Tooth Powder with Irium will make your teeth brighter!

Pepsodent makes this unqualified promise to you, without fear of contradiction . . . because test after test proves: Pepsodent Powder with Irium makes teeth far brighter.

Tests by impartial laboratories . . . tests with photoelectric devices . . . tests by identical twins . . . by dental clinics, by dentists themselves . . . produced overwhelming evidence for this one unshakable fact:

Pepsodent Powder produces a lustre on teeth twice as bright as the average of all other leading brands . . . brighter than any of them—bar none!

Change to Pepsodent Powder—the only powder containing Irium, the exclusive cleansing ingredient. Use it twice a day . . . and see it make your teeth brighter!

You can see the difference in one week!

Don't let a broken tooth make your smile self-conscious!

There's nothing so ruinous to your smile as a broken or defective front tooth. It spoils your looks . . . even spoils your poise. Yet there's no need to let it handicap you permanently. Your dentist can make a jacket crown (just as they do for movie stars) exactly matching your other teeth in color and shape. Once he's fitted it over the injured tooth . . . no one would ever guess which one it is. And what a difference it makes in your looks! Today modern dentistry can work miracles to make your smile more attractive. And Pepsodent Powder with Irium can make your smile far brighter!

A native of the suburb and a brother of Mrs. Charles G. Little, 239 Greenwood blvd., Evanston, Wilson was in diplomatic service 30 years before retiring early in 1941. During World War II. he served overseas in the office of strategic services.

When Wilson went to Germany as ambassador in 1937, he assumed his third diplomatic post in that country, having served there early in World War I. and again in the 1920s. He was minister to Switzerland for 10 years and also has been stationed in South American and other capitals.

What? Will It Be a Happy Thanksgiving? Let's Ask These Folks!

That firm hold Carol Sweetow, 11, has on her father, Harry A. Sweetow, 6928 Sheridan rd., may be to prevent his enlisting a third time in the navy. Not satisfied with a four year stint during the first World war, Sweetow signed up in 1942 and served three years in the Pacific. "It's great to be home," he declared, "but I'll fight again if they need me!"

Army KP was never like this! Edward Spellberg, 1260 Leland av., Sweetow's son-in-law, wasn't on a kitchen detail during his five years in the army (he says), so he doesn't mind washing the dishes every night for his wife, Ruth. And it may be there's some difference in taking instructions from a pretty wife and orders from a sergeant!

Susan Diane Spellberg, who observed her 1st birthday last Wednesday, will be the youngest participant in the Thanksgiving day family gathering planned by the Sweetows and Spellbergs. "Susan looked like me when she was younger," commented Spellberg, "but she's getting so pretty she looks like her mother."

Mrs. Sweetow lights candles in preparation for a turkey dinner and "everything that goes with it" to celebrate the happiest Thanksgiving the families have had in several years.

2 FAMILIES PLAN OLD FASHIONED THANKSGIVING

With the War It's Been a Long Time

In the words of a popular song, "It's Been a Long, Long Time," since the Sweetows and Spellbergs celebrated Thanksgiving day together, but this year they intend to make up for lost time. They're also trying to catch up on a lot of other holidays—seemingly countless.

For example, Harry A. Sweetow, 6928 Sheridan rd., feels cheated about his 25th wedding anniversary, for he was 10,000 miles away with the navy in the Pacific when the date rolled around last January. And Edward Spellberg, 1260 Leland av., Sweetow's son-in-law, still is celebrating Labor day and expects to do so with special ceremony annually, because he was discharged from the army last Sept. 3, after almost five years of service.

Plan a Typical Day

Just being together is enough, the families say, but they plan to serve traditional dishes at dinner in the Sweetow home, and afterward do whatever suits their whim—take a long walk, attend a movie, or listen to the radio and talk. It is the typical Thanksgiving, planned this year by hundreds of north side families of veterans, who are celebrating whole heartedly for the first time since 1941.

"It's great to be a free man again," Spellberg said fervently. He went overseas as a private in May, 1944, and received the Purple Heart for spinal injuries suffered during a bombing raid in France Oct. 6, 1944. After several months in hospitals, he returned to duty in Germany. Early in May he entered a hospital in England for further treatment, and while there received a Tribune V-mail picture of his wife and daughter, Susan Diane, born Nov. 14, 1944.

Meets His Daughter

He returned to the United States in June and was in Ashburn general hospital, McKinney, Tex., until his discharge. "When I first saw Susan," he said, "I was wondering what she thought of me. I said 'hi!' and she held out her arms to me. I was one surprised guy!" A former Bostonian, Spellberg is a salesman for a loop store.

Between his enlistment early in 1942 and his discharge last July, Sweetow, a chief petty officer, served in the Aleutians, Australia, the Philippines, and other parts of the Pacific. "I thought my four years in the navy in the first world war didn't give me enough adventure, but I found plenty of excitement this time. If there's a third war, I'll try to enlist again, but I might not make it," he said, with a twinkling eye.

Tells of Return Trip

One of his most interesting experiences, the veteran sailor remarked, was his return trip on the U. S. S. Admiral Eberlee. The ship was on its maiden voyage, bringing 2,400 internees from the Philippines. "Quite a cosmopolitan trip," he commented. "The ship was owned by the navy, manned by the coast guard, and controled by the army!"

In addition to Mrs. Spellberg, the Sweetows have a younger daughter, Carol, a 6th grade pupil in Field school. "High 6th," Carol prompted. Sweetow has picked up his former work with an insurance company. In fact, both families have picked up where they left off, they said.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Col. O'Connell

Col. James D. O'Connell, who recently returned from 18 months in the European theater, is spending a leave with his mother, Mrs. Agnes D. O'Connell, 2818 Sheridan rd. He holds the Legion of Merit and one cluster, and is presently assigned to Fort Monmouth, N. J. A graduate of the United States Military academy, West Point, N. Y., he is the grandson of James Dunne, who received the congressional medal of honor in the Civil war for services with the Chicago mercantile battery at the siege of Vicksburg.

The silver star has been awarded Sgt. George L. Demand, 912 Reba pl., Evanston. As a member of a reconnaissance squadron under heavy fire in France he helped to knock out an enemy anti-tank gun, destroyed a mortar position, and killed numerous enemy personnel.

Sgt. Harris

The bronze star medal has been given Sgt. Norman Harris, 1215 Norwood av., for delivering messages on Luzon under enemy fire when radio communications had been knocked out. He attended the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

Seaman William D. Farnsworth, 629 Sheridan rd., was aboard the destroyer Lansdowne when it brought the Japanese surrender emissaries to the battleship Missouri.

Capt. Clarence E. Madlen, 2234 Cleveland av., has been admitted to Brooks hospital center, Fort Sam Houston, Tex., for treatment. He was liberated from a Japanese prisoner of war camp.

John F. Smith, 512 Lee st., Evanston, has been appointed a midshipman in the merchant marine and assigned to the cadet school at Pass Christian, Miss.

While awaiting return to United States, Lt. Sidney C. Cook, 1627 Burling st., has enrolled in the Warton American technical school, England.

Staff Sgt. Jager

Staff Sgt. Stephen M. Jager, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Jager, 1050 Altgeld st., has received the combat infantryman's badge. A rifle squad leader, he fought in the French, Belgian, Luxemburg, and German campaigns. He holds the Purple Heart with one cluster.

William A. Streff, 6324 Magnolia av., and Harry J. Williams, 1557 Olive av., aviation cadets, have been released from service at Truax field, Madison, Wis. Streff entered the army in February, 1944, and Williams, in December, 1943.

Sgt. Robert Wagner is spending a 30 day furlough with his mother, Mrs. Doris Wagner, 2407 Orchard st., after serving in the South Pacific. He shot down an enemy plane while with the 20th air force on Saipan.

WAUKEGAN HIGH PICKS DIRECTOR OF VET STUDIES

Julien D. Hills, social studies faculty member, has been named director of veteran's affairs in Waukegan Township High school. He recently returned to the school after three years in military service.

Supt. J. Lloyd Trump said the position has been created to handle an expanded program to care for returning veterans.

The program covers acceptance for credit of courses completed while in service, use of guidance tests, night school classes, and short courses devised for veterans. Hills will supervise development of these short courses.

Concert Forum

Dorothy Maynor, Negro soprano, will appear on Temple Sholom's concert forum at 8:15 p. m. Wednesday in the temple, 3480 Lake Shore dr. Her program will include arias from operas, Negro spirituals, and other selections.

GIVE 'PILGRIM'S PROGRESS' PLAY TODAY IN ZION

Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," which had its first presentation by the Zion Passion Players last week, will be repeated at 3 p. m. today and next Sunday in Zion auditorium.

The first drama to be added to the repertoire of the veteran cast of actors in 11 years, the epic was adapted in play form by Jabez Taylor, producer and director of the Passion Plays.

Name Cast Members

Christian's pilgrimage to the Celestial City, which Bunyan wrote in 1687 while incarcerated in Bedford jail in England because of his religious beliefs, is told in 10 scenes. Verne Lucy, elder of Zion Christian Catholic church, plays the dual roles of Bunyan and Christian. Because he is on stage almost constantly thruout the play, he has been studying his parts for eight months. [He has appeared as Sodak, a high priest, in Passion Play presentations.] Other members have been in rehearsal since September.

Robert [illegible] has been cast as both Fa[illegible] and Evangelist. Charles Kessler is Appolyon. Prudence, Piety, and Charity are portrayed by Dorothy, Charlotte, and Jessie Mifflin. Giant Despair is Ernest Hosken, and Worldly Wiseman is Raymond Luther.

Orchestra to Play

The Zion Symphony orchestra, directed by Mayor Richard F. Hire together with Walter Flandorf, organist, will supply the musical accompaniment. Soloists are Philip Perington, tenor, and Mary Kosehl, soprano. Mrs. Mary Johnson is pianist.

HERE'S ANSWER TO WHAT TO GIVE TEEN-AGE SUSIE

Students to Model Youth Fashions Friday

Harassed dads and boy friends, who haven't a notion of what to give teen-age Susie for Christmas, should be issued special invitations to the Holiday High Jinks fashion show Friday afternoon in Beardsley gymnasium or Evanston Township High school.

There they will be introduced not to one, but at least 40 gift ideas as young and sparkling as the 40 junior and senior student models. Ten mothers and teachers also will serve as mannequins.

Will Hear Book Review

The annual show, presented each Thanksgiving Friday under the auspices of the PTA, will open at 2 p. m., when Mrs. Sarah Weidner Youngren presents a book review of "The Peacock Sheds Its Tail," by Mrs. Alice Tisdale Hobart. She will be introduced by Mrs. Edgar C. Turner.

At the conclusion of the review the junior and senior models, chosen thru competition, and trained by Miss Madelaine Brumbaugh of the faculty, will present the fashion show, for which Miss Jean Bartelme will be commentator.

List Student Models

Junior and senior models are Betsy Alford, Betty Altenberg, Carol Anderson, D'Etta and Mary Elizabeth Ashwell, Barbara Boswell, Janet Botkin, Phyliss Bottomly, Sally Brown, Martha Cameron, Joyce Charn, Dee Chase, Carolyn Clarke, Nancy Daniels, Sandra D'Arncourt, Alice Daum, Nancy Eastman, Sally Fisher, Joan Foster, Dale Granstand, Pat Grimm.

Name Committee Heads

Mrs. August Pritzlaff is general chairman of the party. Proceeds will be used for the correction of physical and dental defects for students unable to finance treatment, the annual tuberculosis tests given each student, and the maintenance of a full time home nursing instructor.

Many Evanston dentists and doctors have united with the physical instruction department of the school, directed by Leo J. Samuelson, in promotion of the program.

Style show co-chairmen with Mrs. Chauncey Hobart are Mrs. L. Otis Green and Mrs. William Lonquist. Other chairmen are: Mrs. Philip Maxwell, publicity; Mrs. Joseph Russell, properties; Mrs. M. L. Hampton, hospitality; and Mrs. W. F. Tempest, tickets. Mrs. Nelson F. Wilmot, PTA president, and Mrs. Harold S. Darr, chairman of the home room mothers, complete the ticket sales organization.

In Evanston High Style Show

As young and sparkling as the junior and senior student models will be the fashions displayed in the Holiday High Jinks style show Friday afternoon in Beardsley gymnasium, Evanston Township High school. Sponsored by the PTA, proceeds will be used to finance school medical treatment and administration. Among the 40 student models, chosen thru competition are (left to right): Sally Fisher, Sally Smith, Marjorie Stockenberg, Barbara Hawes, and Nancy Eastman. [TRIBUNE Photo]

The Purple Heart has been awarded posthumously to Lt. Allen Ferguson Jr. who was killed in action at 11:15 a. m. Pilot of a B-17, Lt. Ferguson was brought down by anti-aircraft fire while en route to England, where he was based with the 8th air force. He held the air medal with leaf clusters.

WAUKEGAN CITY COUNCIL ALLOWS MORE TAXICABS

After receiving several protests that it had discriminated against ex-service men in issuing taxicab licenses, the license committee of the Waukegan city council recently approved a recommendation that licenses without limit should be issued to all who qualified. The council authorized increasing from 41 to 51 licenses issued. Ald. William Faller, committee chairman, who denied there was any attempt at discrimination, said the council would be asked to rescind previous action and issue licenses to all applicants who qualified.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Chicago Tribune, will be the speaker. Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra and chorus. AMOS AND ANDY ARE HEADED FOR HEIGHTS AGAIN

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Hattie McDaniel

Like Ol' Man River, Amos and Andy, that is to say Freeman Gosden and Charlie Correll, jes' keep rollin' along. In fact, they're doing somewhat better than that this fall. Once a national habit as Sam and Henry on W-G-N nearly 20 years ago, they have never been without a sponsor during the intervening decades. And this season with a revamped half hour show, supporting cast of outstanding actors, and plot outlines by Octavus Roy Cohen they appear to be headed for the heights again. Latest Hooper rating reveals that only five comedy shows are ahead of them—Fibber McGee, Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Fred Allen, Charlie McCarthy.

Situation comedy together with outstanding supporting actors seems to be doing the trick. In the old days Correll and Gosden played all the parts. That put them in a vise from which they have escaped by adding a supporting cast, including several feminine performers, and a slick musical backdrop provided by the Delta Rhythm boys and Lud Gluskin's orchestra.

As in the past, Gosden portrays Amos, the Kingfish, Lightnin', Brother Crawford, Flukey Harris, and Frederick Montgomery Gwindell. Correll, besides doing Andy, takes the part of Henry Van Porter.

Buxom Hattie McDaniel, who won an Academy award for her work in "Gone With the Wind," puts a lot of zing into the show as Sadie Simpson, Andy's landlady. Ernestine Wade plays Sapphire, the redoubtable wife of the Kingfish; Lillian Randolph, who plays the part of Birdie, the Great Gildersleeve's maid, bobs up occasionally as Madame Queen, and Madeline Lee as Miss Blue.

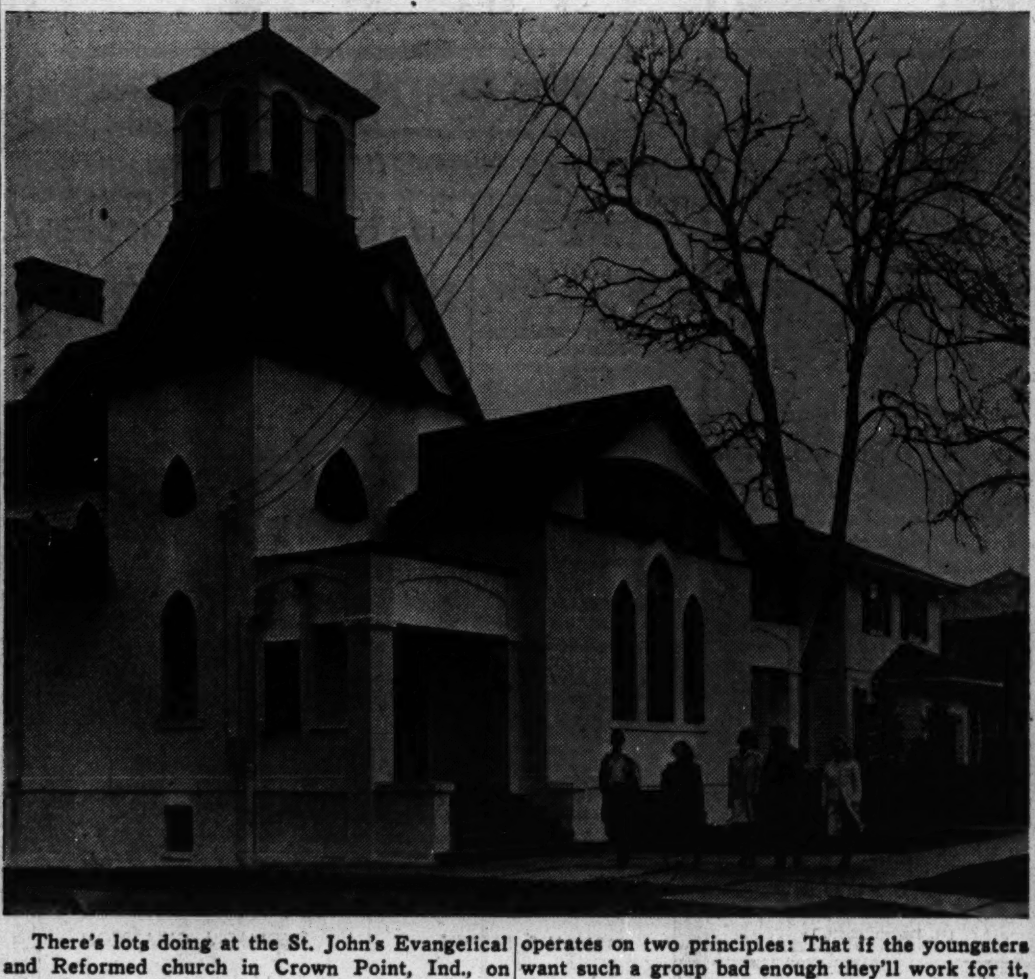
Teen-Agers Teach Adults How Well Managed Projects Are Operated



There's lots doing at the St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church in Crown Point, Ind., on Wednesday nights. For that's when the recently formed Youth group meets to discuss plans, and attend programs of it own choosing. Sponsored last March by a group of married couples, the club operates on two principles: That if the youngsters want such a group bad enough they'll work for it, and that they are not told by their sponsors what they would like in entertainment. Membership of the group has doubled since organization.

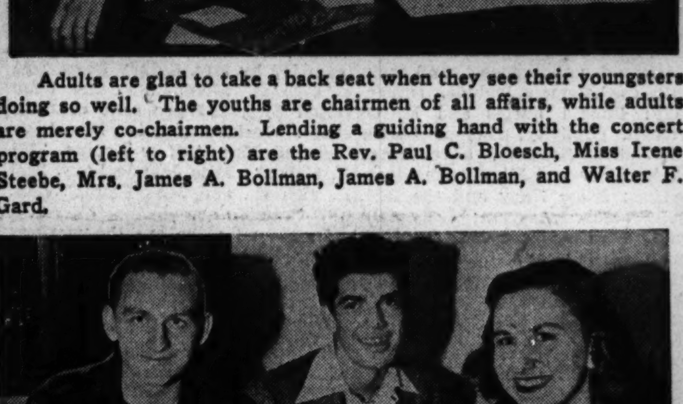
The biggest program in the club's career, a concert to be given at 8 p. m. next Sunday at Community hall, calls for many extra meetings, such as the one at which (left to right) Eugene Lottes, Jeanne Jenkins, Donna West, Kenneth Letterer, and Lyrrel Hayden took part. Youngsters hope the program will accomplish two things: Show that youth can manage community events as well as adults, and help raise funds for their group.

Adults are glad to take a back seat when they see their youngsters doing so well. The youths are chairmen of all affairs, while adults are merely co-chairmen. Lending a guiding hand with the concert program (left to right) are the Rev. Paul C. Bloesch, Miss Irene Steebe, Mrs. James A. Bollman, James A. Bollman, and Walter F. Gard.



Officers of the self-governing Youth group (left to right) are Don Lottes, President; William Mitchell, treasurer, and Irene Nagy, secretary. Lois Holtz is vice president. The clubs hopes to purchase recreational facilities for the church basement, where it meets.

Usher Chairman Jeanette Lottes (left) is busy enlisting others, such as Anita Lewis, to help make a success of the big event. The program will include Nicolai Malko, director, and the Elmhurst college community chorus of 70 voices; part of the college symphony orchestra with Samuel Dolnick, violinist, as solist, and the women's ensemble, directed by Mrs. Ursela Richter. This is the first time the youngsters have planned such an extensive program. Previously they had organized lectures and entertainments.

Rifles Water in Dives, but He Can't Swim

Louis Fox

What is it that dives like a fish, but can't swim a stroke? Ask most any South Chicagoan and he'll tell you in a hurry, "Louis Fox of 8541 Baltimore av." Just about every one out that way knows him, especially since his recent diving stunt off the 92d st. bridge.

Fox, who seldom stuck so much as his big toe in any water outside his bathtub, learned to dive while serving with the seabees. It was after his boot training. Volunteers for diving school were requested and tho Fox swears he didn't have his hand up, the first thing he knew he was on the deck of a boat in Chesapeake bay, a diving mask on his face, preparing to go down.

"Not Afraid, Just Uninterested"

Of that first trip he recalled, "I wasn't conscious of being afraid particularly, but I just didn't care for the work, or so I thought. But d'ya know once down there," he said, "I liked it. I didn't want to come up."

Fox thinks perhaps the navy picked him for that work, which included the repairing and salvaging of ships, because of his experience in the ship yard. But for whatever reason, the navy must have been more than satisfied with their choice. During his two years overseas the diver earned the Legion of Merit and eight letters of commendation.

Calls for Lots of Nerve

"All it takes, really, is a lot of nerve," he insisted. But on at least two occasions he found himself in a dangerous position under water when it must have called for a level head and quick thinking to save himself. At Casablanca, two large truck chassis the army was putting ashore dropped from the crane. Fox was sent down to raise them.

The man on deck got excited, misunderstood his signals, and let down a heavy chain, presumably to raise the chassis. This became entangled around the diver. "I didn't have time to be afraid," the ex-navy man said, "all I could do was wait a little until the man calmed down. Then I signaled him to pull off the chain, hoping it would loosen from around me, which is just what happened. Boy, did I escape quick!"

Lauded by LCI Skipper

One of his letters of commendation came from the commander of an LCI whose vessel found its anchor cable tangled in one of its screws. The citation said he performed "invaluable service" in clearing the vessel's starboard shaft and screw of nearly 100 feet of anchor cable.

Released from the navy because of age, Fox would like to continue diving. However, he wants to do it his own way; no diving suit such as you see in the movies, just a rubber diving mask.

Has Ideas of Own

He'd like to try out some of his own under water advertising ideas such as carrying the letters or banners down and then letting them be seen by the public as they rise to the surface.

Fox is a member of the Joseph Knaus post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and it was for them and the public he put on his Armistice day diving exhibition at the 92d st. bridge over the Calumet river.

"Boy!" he grimaced, "was that river dirty."

OLD TIME DAY OF THANKS TO UNITE FAMILIES

Returned Heroes to Attend Services

Thousands of service men are on their way home after three Thanksgivings in the strange surroundings of a war torn world. They're coming home to fill those vacant chairs 'round the family board, and occupy those pews in the family's church. Thanksgiving day will indeed be observed by families, churches and institutions as it hasn't been for three long years.

At the Thomas Stephenson residence, 8200 Harper av., there is much gratitude. They haven't all been together for eight years. There's Lt. Stephenson Jr., home from overseas, who greeted his two year old son Thomas III for the first time recently. And the two were father and son at the first meeting. There is also Sgt. Lewis Piper, a nephew raised by the Stephensons, home after three years.

Buy 20 Pound Turkey

There are the two Stephenson girls, Mrs. Charles Henderson of Midland, Tex., and Mrs. Robert K. Paxson of Laurel, Miss., and their husbands and families. Also present and accounted for will be Polly Piper, Sgt. Piper's sister, also raised by the Stephenson's, home from college for the holiday.

It will be a christening party as well, for Mrs. Henderson's youngest son, Stephen, will be christened Thanksgiving eve. Mother Stephenson reports she has ordered a 20 pound turkey and all the fixings for a big and joyous noon dinner.

Many Church Services

Churches thruout the south side will unite in interfaith services again this year. In the Hyde Park-Kenwood-Oakland area, church and synagogue members will meet at 11 a. m. Thursday in Rockefeller Memorial chapel for services. The Rev. Robert Steiger, pastor of First Baptist church, 935 E. 50th st., will deliver the sermon.

In Woodlawn, members will gather at 10:30 a. m. in the Woodlawn Immanuel Lutheran church, 6401 Kenwood av., to hear the Rev. H. B. Rhodes of Woodlawn Methodist church talk on "Three Trails to Thanksgiving." In the South Shore district, members will meet at 10:30 a. m. in St. John's Methodist church for the 22d annual interfaith services. Dr. G. George Fox, rabbi of South Shore temple, will talk on "A New Faith in a New Day."

Hyde Park Y Tells Plans

Among institutions observing the day will be Hyde Park Y. M. C. A., 1400 E. 53d st., with its women's committee sponsoring the 57th consecutive Thanksgiving day turkey dinner for young men, and more recently young women, away from home. The dinner will be held at 12:30 p. m. in the Y cafeteria.

Earl L. Thompson, chairman of the board of directors, will preside and Mrs. Fred W. Patterson, chairman of the women's committee, will give the greeting. Speaker will be Dr. Paul G. Macy, director of the midwest regional office of the World Council of Churches, who will talk on "Thanksgiving Means Thanksliving."

First Dinner in 1888

The first such Thanksgiving meal for young men away from home was

YOUTH PROGRAM SEEMS TO THRIVE ON OWN RULES

Crown Point Group Is Going Places

"We don't tell the youngsters; they tell us," said the Rev. Paul C. Bloesch as he outlined plans for the recently formed Youth group at Crown Point, Ind.

"That is why the organization was started," he continued, "to give youth the chance to put his 2 cents in as to what he would like in the way of entertainment. To date they've chosen mostly lectures, interesting, but with an educational angle. They really seem bent on learning something."

The group which meets each Wednesday evening in the St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church was organized last March by a group of married couples in the church. It opened with a banquet and a lot of enthusiasm.

Tells How Theory Works

"The boys and girls understand," said the Rev. Mr. Bloesch, "that they have to take an active part in the planning and the activities of the group, or it's no go. Our theory is that if they want it badly enough they'll work for it, and as time goes by we hope to turn over even more authority to them."

Evidently such a group is just what the youngsters want, for they have coöperated fully with their sponsors and interesting programs resulted. Such as a speaker from the Institute of Family Relations, talking on "Teen-Age Problems"; a resident from a neighboring city who taught the members to folk dance; a hair stylist who gave the girls a few tips, and a chemist whose talk was of special interest to the boys.

Their biggest program to date will be the sponsoring of a concert at 8 p. m. next Sunday in Community hall, Crown Point. Artists will include Nicolai Malko, director, and the Elmhurst college community chorus of 70 voices; part of the college symphony orchestra, with Samuel Dolnick, violinist, as soloist, and a group of selected voices, the women's ensemble.

Two Points to Establish

This program, the youngsters hope, will accomplish two things. First—show the community that youth can manage community events as well as themselves. Second—Help raise funds for the youth project.

Youngsters serving as committee chairman for the concert, and their adult co-chairmen include, respectively: Donald Lottes and M. O. Mitchell, publicity; Eugene Lottes and James Bollman, advertising; Juanity Doty and Miss Irene Steeb, housing; Irene Nagy and the Rev. Mr. Bloesch, program; Billy Hill and Charles Lewis, decorating; William Mitchell and Walter Gard, tickets; Kenneth Letterer and Herbert Bramer, finance, and Jeanette Lottes and Ralph Kauffman, ushers.

Officers are Donald Lottes, president; Lois Holtz, vice president; Irene Nagy, secretary, and William Mitchell, treasurer.

Harvest Dinner

The Altar and Rosary Sodality of Corpus Christi church will sponsor a harvest turkey dinner from noon to 7 p. m. today in the Corpus Christi center, 4622 South Park way.

DOGGONE! EVERY DOG HAS ITS DAY AND THIS IS IT

Canine College Class to Cavort on Command

The old maxim "every dog has its day," seems to be true. For today is certainly that day, at least at Tuley park fieldhouse, 91st st. and South Park av., where the South Side All-Breed dog club is holding its first obedience training show.

Not that the dogs themselves care a sniff about the whole business. To them it's merely a case of performing on command and possibly receiving a dog biscuit, or not performing and being in disgrace for days to come. It's the owners who are taking it seriously, and they have been frantically putting their pooches thru the paces ever since entries were signed, sealed, and delivered to Mrs. William Zielke, 4317 41st st., president.

Hope Judges Will Understand

However, the pups do seem to sense something is going on, owners agree. But whether it's that certain tone in the boss' voice that means business; the gleam in his eye as he mutters wildly of professional judges, keen competition, attractive premiums; or just the tenseness proud dog owners feel at the opportunity to show off Fido, is hard to say.

Every master is convinced his dog presents a special problem, and no doubt is praying inwardly that the judges will be understanding. There's the sleek, handsome Isis, a German shepherd, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. H. D. McCullough, 1642 E. 85th st. The only trouble with Isis is that she's just a big puppy ready to play at the drop of a hat. She seems to know her folks are sold on her, and tho the McCulloughs know she can perform, they sometimes have trouble proving it. "Part of the excitement of the show for us," laughed McCullough, "is, will Isis be 'in the mood' or not."

No Restriction on Size

Participating in the show will be big dogs, medium sized dogs, and little dogs, and one of the littlest is the fluffy black schipperke, belonging to Mrs. Louise Blood, 2336 W. 112th st. Rhip is the size of a half grown puppy, but can heel, stay put, and even jump a little with the best of them. Besides which he doesn't seem to have much temperament, always seems willing to perform on his mistress' command. "He's been going to school 10 months, learning his obedience tricks," said Mrs. Blood. "Now he'll have an opportunity to show if he's learned anything."

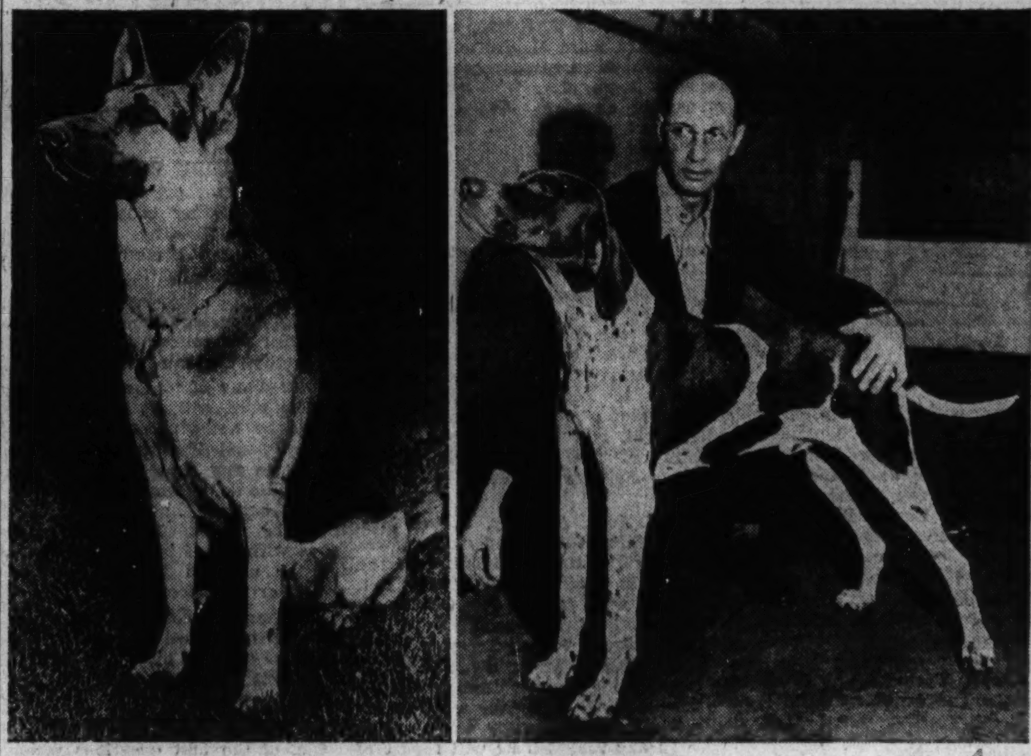
Judging at the show will begin at 10 a. m. While many of the dogs will be strangers, others will be old school pals, having attended the club's obedience school Friday nights in the fieldhouse.

Other club officers include Walter Carlson, 2019 W. 82d st., vice president; James Lezatte, 7049 Vincennes av., treasurer; Mrs. Leo Kushner, 1708 E. 68th st., secretary, and William Zielke, director of training.

Young Mothers of Church to Hear Talk on Fabrics

Miss Marie LeFebvre, will speak before the Young Mothers club of the Bryn Mawr Community church at 8 p. m. tomorrow. Her subject will be "Facts About Fabrics."

Dogs to Exhibit Schooling at Obedience Show



Participants in the South Side All-Breed Dog club's obedience show today in the Tuley park fieldhouse, 91st st. and South Park av., will include dogs attending the club's school every Friday night at the park. In the German shepherd class will be Isis (left), who belongs to Mr. and Mrs. H. D. McCullough, 1642 E. 85th st. Among the English pointers will be the Duke of Ingelhills, belonging to Earl Grange, 11239 Longwood dr. The Duke strikes a pose that is a must for show dogs. Judging will begin at 10 a. m.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Nov. 19

Unless the ground is so frozen that it cannot be dug or plowed, it is not too late to do this important fall work. Leaving the soil upturned or rough all winter kills many insect pests that lie dormant. Thru the action of frost mellowness it will be possible to work in the garden earlier next spring.

One has only to cite last season's experience to realize that continuous rains make it practically impossible to spade early and get the seed in the ground.

Tuesday, Nov. 20

Plant lily bulbs as soon as received for they must not be allowed to lie around exposed to the air or they will lose much of their vigor.

Burn all remains of the garden and take all garden furniture inside for repairs or painting. Drain water from the hose and hang it up on a peg in a cool place.

See that covering material is ready to cover the coldframe in which plants have been heeled-in for protection. Cut down all peony and garden chrysanthemum stems.

Wednesday, Nov. 21

Shrubs may be looked over anytime for pruning, but the gardener should know that if the very early shrubs are pruned during winter some of the flower buds will be destroyed. These are shrubs like the goldenbell, bridal wreath, cornelian cherry, sweet shrub, deutzia, flowering currant, house hydrangea, lilac, and climbing rose.

Thursday, Nov. 22

There must be a reason for pruning, altho it should be intelligently undertaken. We prune for several reasons, chief among which is to renew the wood. Unless this is done, the plant will become clogged with old wood that fails to flower abundantly.

New wood produces a profusion of flowers and new wood is most attractive.

Friday, Nov. 23

Planning the entire yard should be continued all winter, if necessary, or until the final plan is acceptable.

The beauty of gardening lies in the fact that changes may be made yearly to suit the whim of the gardener. He will want to plant new kinds and discard those that have been grown over a long period of time.

Planting masses of one kind is always effective, in fact a great many kinds usually give a spotty appearance and especially in border planting. It is best to repeat cerain kinds for best results.

Saturday, Nov. 24

House plants will occupy the attention of the gardener from this time on. They must not be neglected. The desertlike atmosphere to be found in so many overheated rooms cannot be productive of luxuriant plants.

WOODLAWN FORUM TO HEAR AUTHORS OF 'BLACK METROPOLIS'

St. Clair Drake and Horace R. Cayton, co-authors of "Black Metropolis" will speak tonight at the monthly forum of the Woodlawn A. M. E. church, 65th st. at Evans av. Leading the discussion on the book, written about Chicago's south side, will be Dr. Archibald J. Carey Jr., church pastor for 14 years. The forum is sponsored by the Service guild under leadership of Miss C. Novella Trotter, and Suejette F. Crank, guild president. A musical program will be presented under the direction of Portia Bailey.

HOMES HEATED UNIFORMLY BY RADIANT PANELS

BY LOUISE BARGELT

One of the most discussed features of building construction is radiant panel heating. If you are planning a new home the benefits of this type of heating will be of interest to you.

It is a system which provides healthful and uniform warmth from completely concealed heating.

Since many of tomorrow's homes will be built without basements it should be noted at once that this radiant panel heating can be installed in any type home, modern or traditional, basementless or with a full basement. Not only will there be no radiators, grilles, or pipes with this heating, there also will be no cold floors, no "cold spots" or "hot spots."

Whether the coils are placed in the floor or the ceiling, all the surfaces are warmed by the absorbtion of radiant heat rays from the main radiating panel.

Rugs Make No Difference

One of the first questions which comes to the layman's mind is: "Won't floor coverings affect the operation of such a system and lessen its efficiency, especially if the pipe coils are in the floor?" "No," since whatever insulating effect they may have is so light as to be ignored.

Radiant panel heating reverses the process of our conventional systems as we have known them for a long time. Instead of heating the air in the room, and letting this air wam floors, walls, and ceilings, this system affords large areas of mildly heated floor, ceiling, and walls, thus supplying an over-all warmth to the house interior.

Less Dust Gathers

Furthermore with this large area, low temperature heating surfaces there is comparatively slight air movement and less chance for the deposit of dust and dirt.

As for costs of installation and operation, it is claimed this type system usually comes within the percentage of cost allotted to the heating plant, and that in many actual installations the operating cost has been shown to be often as much as 25 per cent less.

It also has been found that radiant heated rooms have a very small differential in temperature between floor and ceiling.

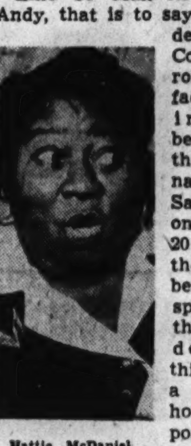
AMOS AND ANDY ARE HEADED FOR HEIGHTS AGAIN

Situation Comedy Lends Believability

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Like Ol' Man River, Amos and Andy, that is to say Freeman Gosden and Charlie Correll, jes' keep rollin' along. In fact, they're doing somewhat better than that this fall. Once a national habit as Sam and Henry on W-G-N nearly 20 years ago, they have never been without a sponsor during the intervening decades. And this season with a revamped half hour show, supporting cast of outstanding actors, and plot outlines by Octavus Roy Cohen they appear to be headed for the heights again. Latest Hooper rating reveals that only five comedy shows are ahead of them—Fibber McGee, Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Fred Allen, Charlie McCarthy.



Hattie McDaniel

Situation comedy together with outstanding supporting actors seems to be doing the trick. In the old days Correll and Gosden played all the parts. That put them in a vise from which they have escaped by adding a supporting cast, including several feminine performers, and a slick musical backdrop provided by the Delta Rhythm boys and Lud Gluskin's orchestra.

Play Many Parts

As in the past, Gosden portrays Amos, the Kingfish, Lightnin', Brother Crawford, Flukey Harris, and Frederick Montgomery Gwindell. Correll, besides doing Andy, takes the part of Henry Van Porter.

Buxom Hattie McDaniel, who won an Academy award for her work in "Gone With the Wind," puts a lot of zing into the show as Sadie Simpson, Andy's landlady. Ernestine Wade plays Sapphire, the redoubtable wife of the Kingfish; Lillian Randolph, who plays the part of Birdie, the Great Gildersleeve's maid, bobs up occasionally as Madame Queen, and Madeline Lee as Miss Blue.

The show is given a lot of savor by Lou Lubin of the old time minstrel team of Swor and Lubin as Shorty, the barber, and Jim Baskette, as Gabby Gibson, the lawyer whom Andy and the Kingfish find they need ever more frequently.

Extras Now and Then

From time to time extra characters are introduced. A few weeks ago a big bruiser dubbed Butch Jordan bobbed up as Andy's nemesis. He was played by Ernest Whitman, well know radio and film actor, who had a distinguished career on Broadway, too. He had a big part in "The Last Mile." In the movies he was featured in "Cabin in the Sky," and "Jesse James."

Seems to this observer that dropping famous guests has improved the show. They didn't always fit into the A. A. groove.

What has helped the show most, besides excellent character delineation, has been the toning down of the scripts leading to more believability. Of course, it doesn't hurt them to be right ahead of Fibber McGee and Bob Hope on NBC. And Fibber and Hope are finding that Amos and Andy make pretty good advance men for them, too, every Tuesday night.

Boris Karloff Invades Allen's Alley Tonight

Boris Karloff will pay Fred Allen a visit on WMAQ-NBC at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Portland Hoffa, Minerva Pious, Parker Fennelly, and Irving Kaufman also will be on hand at Allen's Alley to welcome Karloff.

Stewart will direct the Bach-Wood Prelude in E major, a group of English folk songs, and other classical selections.

Harriet Smolinski, violinist, will be the student star entertainer. Florence T. Love is to direct the Girls' Choral club.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker. Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra and chorus. The music includes "There Is a Land of Fancy," "Love for a Year," "Love Is Like the Rose," and "Gypsy Love." Dramatic leads will be taken by Sondra Gair, Laurette Fillbrandt, William Everett, and John Barclay.

PARISH ADOPTS $250,000 PLAN FOR EXPANSION

La Grange Church Looks to Future

Decision to go ahead with a new building project was made at a congregational meeting that marked the recent 55th anniversary celebration of the La Grange Presbyterian church. The program contemplates an expenditure of $250,000 to meet the needs of a 1,200 membership predicted for the church at the end of its sixth decade. There are now 1,024 members, a net increase of 192 in the last five years.

The Presbyterian structure of Indiana limestone was erected in 1912 and has the design of an English parish church. Plans of the general building committee presented at the anniversary celebration provide for four additional units to the present facilities as follows:

A unit on the north to house an educational program for boys and girls thru the 6th grade of school.

Would Enlarge Hall

A unit on the east to provide a larger Fellowship hall with stage equipment, an enlarged parlor, and educational rooms for junior high and high school students.

A chapel with a seating capacity of 110 for small weddings and funerals. Open daily for meditation and prayer, it would have for its motto, "A door never closed, a light never out, a Presence never absent."

Enlargement of the church sanctuary by the addition of two trancepts and a balcony, lengthening of the sanctuary to the north, and doubling the length and capacity of the chancel.

The congregation voted to approve the plans in general and to start a financial campaign with $150,000 as the minimum goal. It is not expected that construction will start before 1947.

Serve on Committee

Members of the general building committee which has spent a year investigating needs of the church are Arthur B. Hall, chairman; George W. Wrisley, A. L. Nelson, Carl B. Smith, and L. G. Elliott.

The Rev. Emerson O. Houser, pastor, presided over the anniversary meeting.

Plans for the new units were drawn by Charles Collens of Boston, who designed Riverside church in New York City, which is said to be one of the finest church structures in America.

The church also is participating in the $27,000,000 restoration fund to be raised by the entire denomination during the next three years. In planning to meet its quota of $18,000, boards of the church felt help should be given stricken peoples of the earth before actual building was started at home.

WEST SIDE GIRL SCOUTS HOLDING SALE OF COOKIES

Continuing their annual cookie sale begun last week, Girl Scouts will ring many west side doorbells tomorrow thru Saturday. Altho Girl Scouting in Chicago is supported largely by private contributions and the Community Fund, approximately one-third of the organization's expenses are met thru cookie sale proceeds each year.

The sale also helps finance attendance of girls from each section of the city at Camp Juniper Knoll, near Elkhorn, Wis., during the summer. One hundred dollars for this purpose is allotted to each of the five Chicago districts.

West district cookie sale chairmen are Mrs. Rudolph O. Stekle, 2704 S. Kedvale av.; Mrs. Marie Agin, 1509 Washburn av.; Miss Ethel Hall, 3334 S. Paulina av., and Mrs. William Cameron, 4425 Maypole av.

Install Safety Signals, Gates at R. R. Crossing

Flashing light signals as well as gates should move soon at the intersection of the Burlington tracks with Hollywood av., Hollywood. Signals and gates will be automatically operated on the approach of a train on any of the three tracks.

The operation is so arranged as to provide ample warning by flashing light signals, as well as assuring that the gates are closed, before the fastest train can reach the crossing. Upon the approach of a train the flashing light signals begin to operate, as well as a bell to provide audible warning.

From three to five seconds after the beginning of the warning, the gates start to move from their normally vertical position and require from seven to 10 seconds to reach their horizontal position, forming a barricade across the traffic lane. This warning continues in effect as long as any portion of the train is approaching or occupying the crossing.

As the rear end of the train clears the crossing, the gate arms begin moving back to their vertical position, which requires five to eight seconds. When the vertical or clear position of the gate arms has been reached, the operation of the flashing light signal ceases.

In event of power or mechanical failure, the gates automatically go into a closed position. The complicated electrical equipment used in controling the signals and gates is precision made and the installation cost is approximately $8,500.

FIRE FIGHTERS IN RIVERSIDE TO MARK 50TH YEAR

Volunteers Will Dance Saturday Night

The Riverside volunteer fire department will celebrate its 50th anniversary with a dance Saturday night in the Riverside town hall. Entertainment and games will be on the program.

S. D. Barcik is dance chairman. Frank L. Schips is ticket chairman. James B. Mackey is the department's chief and Roger Coverly is his assistant.

The veteran member of the department is Fred C. Crowe, who has responded to alarms in the village for 49 years. Crowe was not yet of age when the department was organized in 1895.

His Wagon Used

However, a year later it was his express wagon to which the fire fighting equipment was attached when a run was made to a blaze. Now he cares for the modern trucks at the village hall. For 15 years Crowe was assistant chief.

No longer does the Riverside department concern itself with the possibilities of the old Riverside hotel being a fire hazard. The rambling, frame building next to the village hall was torn down this summer, but thruout the 50 years local firemen figured that the task would be tough if the structure ever caught fire.

Get Call at 5 A. M.

Not until the building had been half torn down this summer was the department called to extinguish a blaze in the historic hotel. A smudge lighted by the watchman to keep away mosquitoes got out of hand. The firemen responded at 5 a. m. The fire was of brief duration, and on making a close inspection of the half-razed building it was found that unusual precautions against fire had been taken by the long ago builders.

The fire department dances have not been annual events. The 50th anniversary event, it is expected, will be attended largely by the villagers. Proceeds will go to the purchase of uniforms and equipment.

CHURCH TO LAY CORNERSTONE IN RIVERSIDE

Burt and the board members will discuss present problems and future plans. A report on the proposed new River Forest High school will be given by Lee Krafft. Pupils will present a musical program.

MISS ANNA BATTAGLIA OF BERWYN WILL SING DEBUT RECITAL TODAY

Miss Anna Battaglia, 1224 S. Maple av., Berwyn, will make her vocal debut this afternoon in the Jefferson school auditorium, 16th st. and Wenonah av., Berwyn. The program will consist of familiar music by Rudolph Friml, Victor Herbert, Sigmund Romberg, and Jerome Kern.

Anna Battaglia

Miss Battaglia will be assisted at the piano by another young Berwyn artist, Miss Ruth Ann Shuma, who also will be heard in selections of her own.

The concert will start at 3:15 o'clock.

Home Dedication

More than 100 blind members participated in recent dedication services of the new home of the Association of the Jewish Blind, 3440 Douglas blvd.

On duty in England is Pvt. James Marzano, 19, who served with the 76th division of the 3d army. A member of the engineering corps, he participated in three major campaigns.

Corp. William Marzano served in the Pacific, winning the Purple Heart during the assault on the Palau Islands. With the 81st (Wildcat) division, he helped occupy the Japanese homeland.

Young Mothers of Geneva to Sponsor Benefit Dance

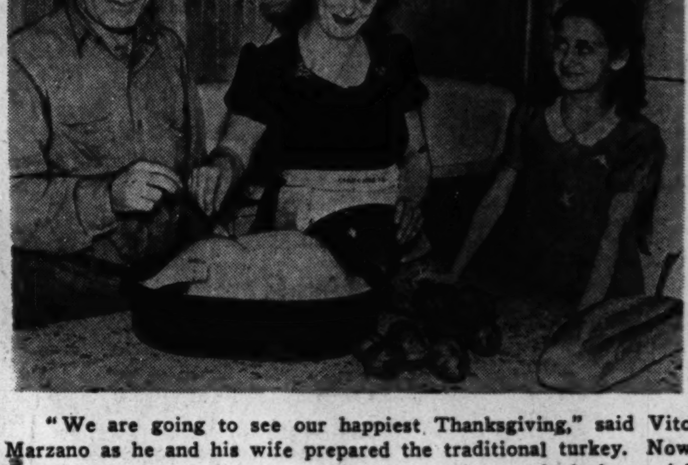
For benefit of the Community hospital in Geneva, the Young Mothers club of Geneva will sponsor a dance Saturday night in the Rainbow room of the Baker hotel in St. Charles. Mrs. Robert Rowbottom is chairman.

Male Chorus to Present Twilight Musical Today

The United Male chorus directed by Albert Skooglund and Maud Nosler will present a twilight musical at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the Mission Covenant church of Austin, Iowa and Mayfield avs. Margaret Jacobson will be organist.

Delicacies are being baked in profusion as the Marzano household enjoys the holiday season. Rosemarie, 15, takes a custard pie from the oven while her brother, Leonard, 17, surveys her handiwork approvingly.

Louise Marzano, 13, and John, 21, examine the box of clothes which their brother, Corp. William, sent from the Pacific. When they last heard from him, he was in Japan, but the clothes, they feel, indicate that he will be home soon.



"We are going to see our happiest Thanksgiving," said Vito Marzano as he and his wife prepared the traditional turkey. Now that the worries of the war years are over, the couple feels special cause for rejoicing. At right is Anna, 10, youngest daughter of Vito's family.

RIVER FOREST SAFETY RECORD WINS CITATION

No Pedestrians Die by Auto Injury

For excellence of its 1944 pedestrian accident record and excellence of activities designed to increase the safety and convenience of the man afoot, the village of River Forest recently was awarded a special citation in a contest conducted by the American Automobile association.

C. W. Soderlin

River Forest was the only community in Illinois with a population under 10,000 to receive the association citation. Only eight towns in the country were similarly recognized.

Receive Award at Meeting

Presentation of the citation was made at a meeting of the west area council of the Chicago Motor club in the Midwest Athletic club. The citation was accepted by C. W. Soderlin, chief of police, Judge Roy F. Nix, and Roy Iverson, secretary of the safety commission, River Forest.

The board of judges of the 1944 National Pedestrian Protection contest stressed the showing made in "activities designed to increase the safety and convenience of the man afoot" as well as the reduction in pedestrian accidents as revealed by the records.

Visited Schools Twice

Unaware that they were competing for the citation, Chief Soderlin and B. F. Gerard of the River Forest police department twice during 1944 visited each of the public and parochial schools in the village and explained to the children the part they should play in preventing automobile accidents.

River Forest had nine automobile accidents involving pedestrians during the year. None was fatal and no bones were broken. It was considered significant that none of the accidents occurred to children of elementary school age old enough to have been indoctrinated by the school lectures.

Gave 30 Minute Talks

Credit is given the school authorities for having coöperated in the twice a year periods of warning and advice.

Speakers at the schools gave 30 minute talks on the dangers from automobile traffic and emphasized the hazard of crossing the street in the middle of the block and dashing from behind parked cars. In a nutshell, they accepted the slogan used by the railroads, "Stop, look and listen!"

The speakers carried a similar message to meetings of the Lions, Optimist, and Kiwanis clubs in River Forest.

Field Marshal Wilson to Give Address

Robert Black

Many west side residents of Scottish descent will gather at the Stevens hotel Dec. 1 with fellow clansmen of Illinois for the Feast of the Haggis on the 100th anniversary of the Illinois St. Andrew society.

The haggis will be prepared from cuts of sheep mixed with oatmeal and herbs, heavily seasoned, and brewed in the lining of a sheep's stomach until it takes on the characteristic flavor dear to the palates of all true Scotsmen.

The banquet will honor St. Andrew, patron saint of Scotland. As in past years, proceeds will go to the Scottish Old People's home in Riverside, an institution founded and maintained by the society.

Britain's Wilson to Talk

Principal speaker will be Field Marshal Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, supreme allied commander of the Mediterranean theater of operations during the war. His topic will be "War and Peace."

"The Land We Left" will be the subject of an address by Col. George G. Kilpatrick, Canadian clergyman, and director of army education in Canada. A native of Aberdeen, Scotland, he was chaplain of the 3d Canadian division in World War I.

"The Land We Live In" will be the topic of Dr. William A. Irwin of New York City, economist and educational director of the American Bankers association.

Scottish ballads will be sung by Alfred Chigi and Flora MacDonald Shennan. The highland flavor also will be maintained by the society's own bagpipe band directed by Pipe Maj. Robert H. Sim, and a troupe of kilted dancers directed by Mrs. Margaret B. MacDonald. The bagpipers and dancers will form the traditional escort for the serving of the haggis.

Robert Black, 112 N. Kenilworth av., Oak Park, is president. George C. Buik, Maywood, is vice president and chairman of the entertainment committee for the banquet. Serving with him on the committee is Alexander G. Shennan, 1047 Bellforte av., Oak Park, past president of the society.

LAUD MAYWOOD FOR QUICK FUND DRIVE SUCCESS

Maywood is being complimented for having been the first large community in the suburban area to reach its Community and War Fund quota. The goal of $23,800 was reached exactly 51 days after the village-wide campaign started Sept. 20.

Stuart W. Cochrane, chairman of the suburban division of the National War Fund, immediately sent his congratulations to Maywood. Walter B. Eriksen, campaign manager of the Maywood Community and War Fund, commented:

"It is a tribute to Maywood's loyal workers. There were definite obstacles to overcome following the cessation of the war but all did their part to put the drive over."

Maywood's total figure was distributed as follows: residential area, $10,502.90; industrial division including Hines and Vaughan hospitals, $5,970.92; business sections, $2,988; miscellaneous, $760, and credits from Maywood citizens going to other communities, $3,598.60. Receipts still coming in will go to the National War Fund.

Members of Maywood's campaign committee include Nels G. Lundgren, Charles H. Beach, Mrs. Frank Hinman, Sidney Rosset, and the Rev. J. S. Ekstrom. Earl T. Martin was in charge of the industrial division. Herbert H. Koch directed the business division.

List Other Leaders

Captains in the residential area included W. W. Harrell, Ray McEvoy, Vernon Kent, Delton Waby, Sidney Rosset, Fred Bowen, Mrs. A. J. Knopf, Harry Hickman, and Eugene Lysen.

Fund directors have decided to hold an appreciation party for the 500 workers and their leaders. Thru the courtesy of the Rev. Martin E. Muzik, one of the directors, the party will be held early in December in the social rooms of St. Eulalia church.

SCOUTS TO HOLD CLINIC TODAY IN RIVERSIDE HALL

National Aid to Direct Two Sessions

A senior Scouting clinic under supervision of George Chronic, national director, will be held this afternoon and evening in Riverside town hall. Chronic will be aided by Otto Nimtz, regional Scout executive serving Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

Invited to attend the meeting are all leaders of Boy Scout troops, Sea Scout ships, air patrol squadrons, explorer posts, commissioners, and committee chairmen of the West Suburban council. The council also will have as guests interested Scouters from the surrounding Boy Scout councils.

Two Make Arrangements

Paul A. Anderson of Riverside and R. L. Douglas of Bedford Park are serving on a special committee arranging for the meeting.

Opportunities for Scouts and Cubs in the West Suburban council to help in reëstablishing Scouting in the war torn countries thru a World Friendship fund are being offered each troop and pack during Thanksgiving week.

Unit leaders have been invited by President John D. Burlie and R. C. Brown, chairman of the World Friendship fund committee, to take part in the project by providing a collection box for volunteer contributions at meetings. From the West Suburban council office in La Grange the funds will be transmitted to the national council.

Scouting Goes Underground

It is explained the war drove Scouting underground in many countries. Meeting places were bombed or burned, Scout handbooks were destroyed, uniforms were forbidden, and camping and hikes abolished.

The World Friendship fund has been set up to bring Scouting back to the boys of Greece, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, Holland, Poland, France, the Philippines, China, and other countries where the movement had been banned.

NEWSPAPERS GET IMMEDIATE ACTION

VET SITS DOWN TO THE DINNER OF HIS DREAMS

Friends Tender Vito a Hero's Welcome

A hero's welcome greeted Pvt. Vito Rizzo, 21, 835 Taylor st., when he returned from the army. Winner of the bronze star medal, the infantryman's combat badge, the Purple Heart, six battle stars, the Presidential citation, and the croix de guerre, Vito was honored by his relatives and friends with a banquet at which all his favorite foods were served. These included spaghetti, fried chicken, green salads, milk, and Italian bread.

"It was the thought of a feast like this that kept me going during all those days when I ate K-rations in foxholes," said Vito as he helped himself to the chicken. "The army," he said emphatically, "was never like this."

Fights in Africa

Vito, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Rizzo, entered the army 2½ years ago. Transferred overseas in November, 1943, he went to Casablanca, then to Oran, where he joined the 36th division. He took part in three major invasions: Salerno, Anzio beachhead, and southern France. He also participated in drives thru France and Germany and was in Austria when the European war ended.

Vito earned the bronze star medal and the Purple Heart for heroic action in France last December. While on a detail handling ammunition, he and a comrade were subjected to a heavy artillery barrage and both were wounded. Despite the pain of his wound, Vito immediately went to the aid of his comrade.

Takes Man to Aid

As shells burst around him, he removed the injured soldier to a place of greater safety and administered first aid. Altho hampered by his wound, he assisted the man to an aid station. Then, before accepting first aid for himself, he went back and carried out the task to which he had been assigned.

Vito received his discharge from the army Nov. 8. "O, man, America looks good to me!" he said. "When I was fighting in Italy I kept hoping for the day I'd see Rome. All my life I'd wanted to see it. But when I actually got there I was disappointed. Nothing I ever saw in Europe looked half as good to me as my first glimpse of Chicago when I stepped off the train."

Vito hopes to resume his career as a professional boxer which was interrupted when he entered the army. He began fighting professionally at 16, winning his first bout at White City in 1940.

Called from Denver

In September, 1942, he went to New York City, where he fought in the Coliseum. Later he went on to White Plains, N. Y., and Denver, Colo. At that point his draft board summoned him.

Vito hopes to be champion in the lightweight class some day. "Boxing is in my blood and has been since I was 11," he said. "I had my first practice standing in front of a big mirror boxing with my own image."

Vito plans to take it easy for a few weeks and then get back into training. "When I'm back in the ring with a sparring partner I'll really feel at home," he said.

Vito's favorite foods, including spaghetti, and fried chicken, were served at the feast. His aunts, uncles, and cousins joined the family in the celebration. MARZANO SONS' SAFETY HERALDS DAY OF THANKS

BY AGNES LYNCH

Great preparations for Thanksgiving are going on these days in the Marzano household, 1111 S. Hamilton av. An enormous turkey, roasted to a golden brown, and filled with savory stuffing; candied sweet potatoes; scarlet cranberries, mincemeat pies, and all the goodies of the holiday season will be a feast for the eyes and palates of the family.

The delicacies, however, will be merely symbols of the deep gratitude in the hearts of the family group as they celebrate the first peacetime Thanksgiving since Pearl Harbor. For two of the Marzano boys who served in the army during the war have returned to civilian life, a third is expected home soon from Japan, and a fourth is safe in England.

Loses Foot at Anzio

"This will be the happiest Thanksgiving of my life," Vito Marzano, father of the boys, said recently. "I can't express my thanks that they are all alive. I only hope that the other two boys will be back soon so that the family circle will be complete. This will be a sad Thanksgiving for some, tho," he said. "My heart goes out to the people who lost their boys. We had a taste of what they must be feeling during all the months when we worried about our own."

The first of the Marzano sons to enter service was Daniel, 27, eldest of 10 children. Inducted in August, 1943, he went overseas the following December. As a member of the 45th division of the 5th Army, he participated in the Italian campaign. During the assault on the Anzio beachhead he lost a foot, and has since provided with an artificial one. He speaks modestly of the Purple Heart awarded him for his loss.

Holds Purple Heart, Cluster

In August, 1944 he returned to civilian life and is now employed as a sheet metal worker. He lives in Cicero with his wife and son, Billy, 2.

The Purple Heart has also been awarded Pvt. Joseph, 24, who was released from the army Nov. 2. Joseph was wounded twice, the first time July 4, 1944, while the battle for Normandy was in progress.

After being hospitalized 115 days, he rejoined his outfit, the 79th infantry division, and participated in the drive on Germany. After crossing the Rhine he was wounded a second time last April.

Recalls Last Thanksgiving

After his two years in the army civilian life looks better than ever to Joseph. The father of two children, Patricia, 6, and Louis, 2, he plans to return soon to his pre-war job in the spraying department of a ventilator manufacturing company.

"I'm surely happy to be able to spend this Thanksgiving at home," he said. "Last year I spent Thanksgiving in an army sector near Strasbourg. We made an attack about 1 o'clock in the afternoon. We weren't thinking about eating turkey then. We were giving it out with lead."

In addition to the Purple Heart awards, Joseph also has been presented with the combat infantryman's badge, the good conduct medal, the Presidential citation, four battle stars, the victory medal, and the French cross of Lorraine.

In time to bring added joy to the Thanksgiving celebration, a box of clothes arrived last week from Corp. William, 22, who served with the 81st [Wildcat] division in the Pacific. When last heard from, William was in Japan, but the family look upon the box as an indication that he will soon be on his way to the United States. He also has been awarded the Purple Heart, having been wounded during the assault on the Palau islands.

James in England

The fourth Marzano boy to enter service is Pvt. James, 19, who was inducted in February, 1944. A member of the engineering corps, he served with the 76th division of the 3d army. He participated in three major campaigns and was wounded during action in Germany. At present he is on duty in England.

In addition to the four who saw military service, the Marzanos have three other sons. They are John, 21; Leonard, 17; and Anthony, 4. They also have three daughters: Rosemarie, 15; Louise, 13; and Anna, 10.

"Thanksgiving will be a great day this year," said Mrs. Marzano, her dark eyes dancing as she bustled around the kitchen. "When I think of how I used to look at the boys' empty chairs during the war and wondered if my sons ever would come back, it seems as if I can't ever be grateful enough now that the danger is past and they are all safe."

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Nov. 19

Unless the ground is so frozen that it cannot be dug or plowed, it is not too late to do this important fall work. Leaving the soil upturned or rough all winter kills many insect pests that lie dormant. Thru the action of frost mellowness it will be possible to work in the garden earlier next spring.

One has only to cite last season's experience to realize that continuous rains make it practically impossible to spade early and get the seed in the ground.

Protecting plants with a mulch may be done now if the ground is frozen. Practically any material will suffice such as straw that is free from weed seeds, marsh hay, decayed manure, or partially decayed manure, peat moss, glass wool, excelsior, sawdust, or anything of a similar nature.

Sawdust or corn cobs, shredded, will not make the soil acid if used in limited quantities. This is true of sawdust especially. Leaves from hardwood trees do not decay as quickly as those from soft woods.

Place some twiggy brush over plants that have persistent foliage and follow with hardwood leaves. The brush serves as an umbrella to keep the leaves from smothering the leaves of the plants.

Tuesday, Nov. 20

Plant lily bulbs as soon as received for they must not be allowed to lie around exposed to the air or they will lose much of their vigor.

Burn all remains of the garden and take all garden furniture inside for repairs or painting. Drain water from the hose and hang it up on a peg in a cool place.

See that covering material is ready to cover the coldframe in which plants have been heeled-in for protection. Cut down all peony and garden chrysanthemum stems.

Wednesday, Nov. 21

Shrubs may be looked over anytime for pruning, but the gardener should know that if the very early shrubs are pruned during winter some of the flower buds will be destroyed. These are shrubs like the goldenbell, bridal wreath, cornelian cherry, sweet shrub, deutzia, flowering currant, house hydrangea, lilac, and climbing rose.

When shrubs become unsightly from age, cut them to the ground for they will send out new growth and be the better for such severe cutting. Prune the above list after flowering. This work can be delayed until spring.

Do not prune shrubs to an even height by cutting flat on top. By pruning a little each season, a good shape can be maintained.

Thursday, Nov. 22

There must be a reason for pruning, altho it should be intelligently undertaken. We prune for several reasons, chief among which is to renew the wood. Unless this is done, the plant will become clogged with old wood that fails to flower abundantly.

New wood produces a profusion of flowers and new wood is most attractive.

Sometimes it is easier to rid plants of scales by pruning out the infested wood than by spraying. Dogwood and lilacs are susceptible to such attacks. The suckers that grow around the base of lilacs should be kept removed at all times, for they take much of the plant's strength away from desirable growths.

Shrubs grow in a bushy form when pruned. Shrubs and trees should be examined each season which will make it necessary to remove only a minimum of wood.

Friday, Nov. 23

Planning the entire yard should be continued all winter, if necessary, or until the final plan is acceptable.

The beauty of gardening lies in the fact that changes may be made yearly to suit the whim of the gardener. He will want to plant new kinds and discard those that have been grown over a long period of time.

Planting masses of one kind is always effective, in fact a great many kinds usually give a spotty appearance and especially in border planting. It is best to repeat cerain kinds for best results.

The experience of last season, when it rained so abundantly, showed that many gardeners planted their tomatoes entirely too early with the result that plants needed to be replaced as many as three times and which, plus the attack of a virus disease, caused disaster.

Tomatoes should not be planted until after danger from frost has passed or late in May or early June. Start the seed of the tomatoes about six weeks before planting out time, or eight weeks if sown in a frame.

Saturday, Nov. 24

House plants will occupy the attention of the gardener from this time on. They must not be neglected. The desertlike atmosphere to be found in so many overheated rooms cannot be productive of luxuriant plants.

When the art of watering is once learned much difficulty will be eliminated. The home gardener must learn from experience. If a plant fails to do well, remove it to another room where conditions may be better.

Syringe the plants occasionally to remove dust that may have filled the breathing pores [stomata] and hindered proper functioning. If a plant is in poor condition, lack of water or overwatering may be the cause. Feed plants when they are in active growth, but they must not be starved, a condition indicated by small leaves, weak growth, few flowers. When a plant has become overgrown cut it back or discard it and obtain a young vigorous specimen.

Buy a few new kinds to add interest to the collection. Remember that plants should not be expected to flower continuously. Keep flowering plants well watered.

HOMES HEATED UNIFORMLY BY RADIANT PANELS

BY LOUISE BARGELT

One of the most discussed features of building construction is radiant panel heating. If you are planning a new home the benefits of this type of heating will be of interest to you.

It is a system which provides healthful and uniform warmth from completely concealed heating.

Since many of tomorrow's homes will be built without basements it should be noted at once that this radiant panel heating can be installed in any type home, modern or traditional, basementless or with a full basement. Not only will there be no radiators, grilles, or pipes with this heating, there also will be no cold floors, no "cold spots" or "hot spots."

Whether the coils are placed in the floor or the ceiling, all the surfaces are warmed by the absorbtion of radiant heat rays from the main radiating panel.

Rugs Make No Difference

One of the first questions which comes to the layman's mind is: "Won't floor coverings affect the operation of such a system and lessen its efficiency, especially if the pipe coils are in the floor? "No," since whatever insulating effect they may have is so light as to be ignored.

Radiant panel heating reverses the process of our conventional systems as we have known them for a long time. Instead of heating the air in the room, and letting this air wam floors, walls, and ceilings, this system affords large areas of mildly heated floor, ceiling, and walls, thus supplying an over-all warmth to the house interior.

Less Dust Gathers

Furthermore with this large area, low temperature heating surfaces there is comparatively slight air movement and less chance for the deposit of dust and dirt.

As for costs of installation and operation, it is claimed this type system usually comes within the percentage of cost allotted to the heating plant, and that in many actual installations the operating cost has been shown to be often as much as 25 per cent less.

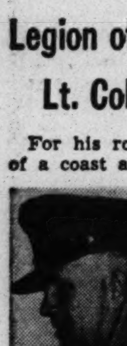
LAUD OAK PARK ENGINEER FOR JOB IN PANAMA

Legion of Merit Given to Lt. Col. Barton Juell

For his role in the development of a coast artillery training center said to be one of the largest outside continental United States, and for the successfully training personnel from South American armies and navies, the Legion of Merit was awarded recently to Lt. Col. Barton Juell, 12 Washington blvd., Oak Park.



Col. Juell

The decoration was presented to Col. Juell in Panama by Lt. Gen. Brett, former commanding general of the Panama Canal department and Caribbean defense command, during a military review at Albrook field in the Canal Zone.

Laud "Meritorious Conduct"

In the citation accompanying the award Col. Juell was praised for "exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services" as commandant of the Panama coast artillery command training center from Dec. 21, 1942, to Aug. 18, 1945.

"Without the outstanding efforts of Col. Juell and the men working under him," the citation said, "the splendid results of the command as a research center and proving ground for anti-aircraft and harbor defense procedure could not have been accomplished."

Joined by Wife and Son

Credit for the expansion of the training center to its present status from "a small and ill equipped plant" was laid largely to Col. Juell's "skilful guidance and initiative."

In civilian life Col. Juell was a gas design engineer. His wife, Mrs. Dorothy Juell, and his son, John B. Juell, 15, recently joined him in Panama.

WAR MEMORIAL GROUP NAMED FOR GLEN ELLYN

Ideas concerning a memorial to Glen Ellyn's World War II. heroes, deceased and living, were discussed at a recent meeting called by Douglass Pillinger, president of the village, and a committee named. The meeting was attended by more than 40 persons representing organizations.

William Neis told of the Wheaton memorial plan to build a $400,000 hospital at some as yet undecided site and invited Glen Ellyn to join Wheatonites in such a project.

Suggest Other Plans

A community house with clubrooms and an auditorium was suggested by Mrs. Harry Heinz, president of the Glen Ellyn Woman's club.

Mrs. Wayne Meigs of the League of Women Voters spoke for a more adequate community center which could be accomplished by an added wing to the Recreation house in Lake Ellyn park or to the Community house in Memorial park.

Judge Russell Keeney of the American Legion said that in his own opinion a memorial that would promote the Americanism the men have been fighting for was preferable to monuments or statues.

President Names Board

Mrs. C. C. Choyce of the library board spoke for the enlarging of the library building by an added wing that would be a lasting memorial and provide a place to keep the honor roll and the 35 books that have been presented to the library by gold star parents.

From the group, Pillinger appointed a memorial project committee to include Mrs. Heinz, chairman; Mrs. T. J. Maloney, W. W. Hoover, Judge Keeney, M. C. Stephens, Mrs. C. R. Warren, and Dean Gowan C. Williams. Pillinger will serve as an ex-officio member.

AMOS AND ANDY ARE HEADED FOR HEIGHTS AGAIN

Situation Comedy Lends Believability

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Like Ol' Man River, Amos and Andy, that is to say Freeman Gosden and Charlie Correll, jes' keep rollin' along. In fact, they're doing somewhat better than that this fall. Once a national habit as Sam and Henry on W-G-N nearly 20 years ago, they have never been without a sponsor during the intervening decades. And this season with a revamped half hour show, supporting cast of outstanding actors, and plot outlines by Octavus Roy Cohen they appear to be headed for the heights again. Latest Hooper rating reveals that only five comedy shows are ahead of them—Fibber McGee, Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Fred Allen, Charlie McCarthy.

Hattie McDaniel

Situation comedy together with outstanding supporting actors seems to be doing the trick. In the old days Correll and Gosden played all the parts. That put them in a vise from which they have escaped by adding a supporting cast, including several feminine performers, and a slick musical backdrop provided by the Delta Rhythm boys and Lud Gluskin's orchestra.

Play Many Parts

As in the past, Gosden portrays Amos, the Kingfish, Lightnin', Brother Crawford, Flukey Harris, and Frederick Montgomery Gwindell. Correll, besides doing Andy, takes the part of Henry Van Porter.

Buxom Hattie McDaniel, who won an Academy award for her work in "Gone With the Wind," puts a lot of zing into the show as Sadie Simpson, Andy's landlady. Ernestine Wade plays Sapphire, the redoubtable wife of the Kingfish; Lillian Randolph, who plays the part of Birdie, the Great Gildersleeve's maid, bobs up occasionally as Madame Queen, and Madeline Lee as Miss Blue.

The show is given a lot of savor by Lou Lubin of the old time minstrel team of Swor and Lubin as Shorty, the barber, and Jim Baskette, as Gabby Gibson, the lawyer whom Andy and the Kingfish find they need ever more frequently.

Extras Now and Then

From time to time extra characters are introduced. A few weeks ago a big bruiser dubbed Butch Jordan bobbed up as Andy's nemesis. He was played by Ernest Whitman, well know radio and film actor, who had a distinguished career on Broadway, too. He had a big part in "The Last Mile." In the movies he was featured in "Cabin in the Sky," and "Jesse James."

Seems to this observer that dropping famous guests has improved the show. They didn't always fit into the A. A. groove.

What has helped the show most, besides excellent character delineation, has been the toning down of the scripts leading to more believability. Of course, it doesn't hurt them to be right ahead of Fibber McGee and Bob Hope on NBC.

ATOMIC TALKS TO BE AIRED ON WBBM-CBS

A series of four talks by scientists who have done research in atomic energy will be heard during the intermission periods of the New York Philharmonic broadcasts, aired over WBBM-CBS Sundays at 2 p. m. beginning Dec. 2. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker. Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra and chorus. The music includes "There Is a Land of Fancy," "Love for a Year," "Love Is Like the Rose," and "Gypsy Love." Dramatic leads will be taken by Sondra Gair, Laurette Fillbrandt, William Everett, and John Barclay.

Eleanor Steber Sings on Sunday Evening Hour

Eleanor Steber, Metropolitan opera soprano, and Reginald Stewart, conductor of the Baltimore Symphony orchestra, will be guests on the Sunday Evening hour over WLS-ABC at 7 o'clock tonight. Miss Steber will sing the "Ah, Fors'e Lui" aria from Verdi's "La Traviata," Rimsky-Korsakoff's "The Rose Enslaves the Nightingale," an aria from Nicolai's "Merry Wives of Windsor," and Nevin's "Wynken, Blynken, and Nod." GOOD MANNERS DRIVE SUCCESS IN KELVYN PARK

Pupils Learn Value of Courtesy

Kelvyn Park High school can look thru a 27 year history to the time when it opened as a grammar school in 1918, was converted into a junior high school in 1925, and was made a senior high school in 1933. Saturday morning this northwest side high school will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow program over W-G-N.

Rose A. Pesta

Set in a residential neighborhood, adjoining a nine acre park at Wrightwood and Kostner avs., Kelvyn's teachers regard it as a typical melting pot school. Surveys show that two-thirds of the students' fathers were born in America but the remaining one-third was born in 24 different countries, with Norway, Germany, and Poland predominating.

4,000 Graduats in 12 Years

Miss Rose A. Pesta, principal, has handed diplomas to more than 4,000 graduates during the last 12 years. When people ask how many of these alumni have attained fame or prominence, Miss Pesta is quick to point out that the students left school during the time when the depression or the war was thwarting youthful ambitions. A service flag hanging in the auditorium pays tribute to the 725 men and women who entered military service and the 31 who were killed.

A citizenship campaign, fostered by the student council and the 64 teachers, is attempting to set up a code of good citizenship as a guide to the 1,859 students in their daily life. Regular division room discussions aim at improving conditions in the lunchroom, library, lavatories, and assemblies and at athletic contests.

Board Cars in Order

One result of the campaign can be seen nightly when the student body heads for the Fullerton av. street cars. Formerly a shoving, pushing crowd waited for the first car. Now, under a plan conceived by Ralph Roy, 2838 McLean av., and Edward Wood, 3534 Paris av., an orderly system of boarding the cars has been arranged.

Two shifts of eight boys each see that their fellow students cross on the green light and line up in twos on the safety island. One boy carries a coin changer so that every one may have the exact fare ready. Another checks on whether each student is holding his surface lines' identification card.

Using this system it has been found that 77 passengers can board the car per minute. Formerly five to eight minutes were lost while students fumbled for their fares or identification cards.

Add to Honor Roll

Another citizenship project has succeeded in getting students to remain in the grandstands during football games. Formerly it was the custom to walk on the playing field between halves and before and after the game.

The Citizens of Tomorrow show will be recorded in the auditorium, 4343 Wrightwood av., Wednesday afternoon, and broadcasts at 9:30 a. m. Saturday. Philip Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE will place the names of Audrey Eggers, 2729 N. Leavitt st., and Peter J. Weiland Jr. of Portage, Wis., on the program's honor roll. Audrey has been on Kelvyn's superior honor role for the last five semesters and has been neither absent nor tardy during that period. Peter, a senior at Central Catholic High, Portage, Wis., is also an honor student and was a member of the football, basketball, and tennis teams.

Choral Club to Sing

Music for the program will be provided by the school's star entertainer, Harriet Smolinski, 3408 N. Harding av., a violinist, who will play "Scène de Ballet." The Girls Choral club, under direction of Florence T. Love, will sing "Thanks Be to God," "This Is My Country," and "Go, Kelvyn Park."

Shirley Ann Holter, 2622 N. Major av., will read the air edition of interscholastic news. Six students who will participate in a history-music quiz are Harry Beckner, Dorothy Davidson, Shirley Holter, Lillian Hyman, Margaret Ozog, and Leonard Stensland.

A color guard consisting of Keith Hertsgaar, William Knuth, Charles Franklin, Ronald Jansley, and Lloyd Munson will post the colors. Students who will lead in cheers are Jacqueline Fisher, Evelyn Maher, Betty Frisch, Dolores Dabe, and Doris Coutts.

This broadcast will be Kelvyn's second appearance on the Citizens of Tomorrow.

SARON LUTHERAN CONFIRMANDS TO MEET TODAY

Annual reunion for confirmands of the Saron Evangelical Lutheran church, 2900 Shakespeare av., will be held at 4:30 p. m. today at the church. Speaker will be the Rev. Theodore E. Matson. James Kraakevik, violinist, and the Saron choir will provide music. Roll call and election of officers will be followed by refreshments. Arrangement committee members are B. A. Nelson, Arthur P. Larson, Irene E. Wick, Doris Christell, Helen Seberg, and Earl Olson.

This Family, Like Many Others, Knows New Meaning for Word 'Thanks'

That official looking document looks much like a school diploma to Marian Martinesi, 9, but to cousin Dominick Croce, 24, 727 N. Homan av., its a first class ticket to civilan life after four years of navy service. Thanksgiving day, his first holiday at home since the war's beginning, will have double meaning for his mother, Mrs. Dora Ventrella.

Since he can't find a civilian suit to his liking, Dominick may have to pre-empt clothes from cousin Hugh Martinesi, 718 N. Troy st., who has been out of the army long enough to acquire a wardrobe. Jack Croce, 4442 Iowa st., another cousin, can smile at wardrobe problems for he's stationed at Navy pier, where navy blues are standard.

Five cousins, besides neighbor Richard Makowka (right), form their own grandstand at the brodacasts of important football games. Dominick's brother, Hugo, in photograph on top of radio, may be home for next Thanksgiving to swell the crowd. Cousins (from left) are Jack Croce, Pvt. Eugene Adornetto, on furlough from Camp Crowder, Mo.; Joseph Bruno, Hugh Martinesi, and Dominick.

Dominick's mother, Mrs. Dora Ventrella (right), and sister, Esther, shine all silver to their gleaming best for the most meaningful holiday dinner since the war years began.

Wacky, the family pet acquired after Dominick joined the navy, snapped at the unfamiliar bell bottom trousers on the veteran's first day home. Now, Wacky will sit on Dominick's lap, but shies away from that speedometer from a Japanese kamikaze plane and the Japanese currency which Dominick is showing to his stepfather, Giuseppe Ventrella.

Radio's Waves Wash Quiz Kid to Opera Stage

BY JANE GARDNER

When Joan Bishop, 4549 N. Christiana av., was 5 years old her mother took her to the opera, "Aida," and a dream was born in Joan that she, too, was to become an opera star.

Now Joan is 18 years old and the youngest member of the Chicago Opera company chorus. She's had a three year career as music expert on the Quiz Kid radio program. But the greatest thrill was being chosen to sing the bit part of a page in "Rigoletto."

It Means Hard Work

From 5 year old to opera chorus member not only took dreaming but lots of hard work, Joan will admit. Dancing lessons began when she was 3. Piano lessons began at 5, and voice lessons at 14. A tutor supervised the remainder of her education, for she couldn't spare time for the conventional school. When she was recruited for the radio show, life became even more irregular. She traveled from New York City to Hollywood, appeared in motion pictures of the show, and once she and her companions were on Jack Benny's program.

"He gave us each a watch; mine's simply a dream!" Joan said with complete lack of operatic reserve.

In the busy schedule of piano lessons, radio performances, and travel Joan found her dream of singing almost shunted aside as she advanced with piano lessons. After nine years of piano study, however, she took matters into her own hands.

Obeys That Impulse

"One day when they were enrolling new voice students at the school I just had to give in to that impulse," she said. "I enrolled without letting anybody know about it."

The matter of getting a foothold in opera by singing in the chorus occurred to Joan a year ago, but the auditioners learned her correct age and invited her to come back later—in about five years.

This year, however, a shortage in mezzo-sopranos occurred as the chorus was formed and Joan was invited to join. Now, to help discount the theory that opera chorus singing can injure a young voice, she wisely is restraining the impulse to sing at full volume.

Joan has great plans for next year, for in the interim of opera seasons she intends to learn 10 or 12 more operas and concentrate on the bit parts so she'll be ready for opportunity.

The Secret Is Out

"No need to learn the principal roles, yet," she philosophizes with a twinkle. She'll have a lot of memorizing to do, she'll admit, for she learns accompaniment to operas first, and then the singing parts.

Like most youngsters in the bobby socks age, Joan has a favorite singer. At the mere mention of his name she'll forget her poise and operatic surroundings. With hands clasped, and eyes looking heavenward, she has one expressive comment: "O, that man!"

So one imagines the dream beyond the dream is to some day sing with Opera Tenor Jussi Bjorling.

LUTHERAN GIRLS CHOIR WILL GIVE PROGRAM NOV. 28

The all-girl choir of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, 2215 North av., will present "A Little Music, a Little Fun" at 8 p. m. Nov. 28 in the church. Einar Berg and his quartet will be guest artists. Choir soloists will be Miss Ann O'Connell, Miss Borghild Tjernagel, and Miss Ingrid Rummelhof. Director is Miss Alice Jacobson. Roy Agdesteen is organist.

Survives Ill Fated Ship to Greet Family

Dominick Croce is going to spend Thanksgiving at home for the first time in four years. It will be different from Thanksgiving last year when the young motor machinist's mate was aboard the ill-fated destroyer Twiggs off Mindoro in the Philippines.

Last April the Twiggs was the target of a kamikaze plane and had to put in for repairs. On June 16 it took a torpedo and sank within an hour. All officers were killed or disabled. There were 183 casualties in killed, wounded, and missing.

Dominick floated in the water an hour and was rescued.

Will Be Reunited

So it is a grateful family that will sit down together Thursday at 727 N. Homan av., to their turkey and dressing, cranberries, and all the trimmings. Dominick's mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. Giuseppe Ventrella, and his sister Esther will be there. Hugo, his brother, is still in service, a seaman 1st class at Okinawa on an LST.

After three weeks of civilian life Dominick finds the change to home life easy to take. There's that matter of getting all the sleep he wants, sitting around and listening to the radio, and just coming and going as he pleases. Chicago hasn't changed much, he finds, except in two important instances. First, the girls are a lot prettier. Second, he can't get the kind of suit he wants.

Fails to Get Suit

"I had just the right one picked out, a gray flannel job," he mourned. "Then I came back the next day to buy it and it was gone. Another boy just out of service got it."

After the Christmas holidays Dominick is going to think about college and engineering. For the present, however, he and his two cousins, Jack Croce, 4442 Iowa st., and Hugh Martinesi, 718 N. Troy st., are enjoying their homecoming together. Jack is still in the navy, stationed at Navy pier. He returned Sept. 5 from overseas duty. Hugh was discharged from the army several weeks ago.

In exchanging stories Dominick can usually outdo his cousins, at least in the inventory of the nine invasions in which he participated. While aboard the U. S. S. Wilkes and later the Twiggs he took part in invasions at Casablanca, Sicily, Tinian, Saipan, Leyte, Mindoro, Luzon, Iwo, and Okinawa. Six campaign ribbons and six battle stars tell the story.

His best battle souvenir is a speedometer retrieved from the plane of the Jap pilot who crashed on the Twiggs.

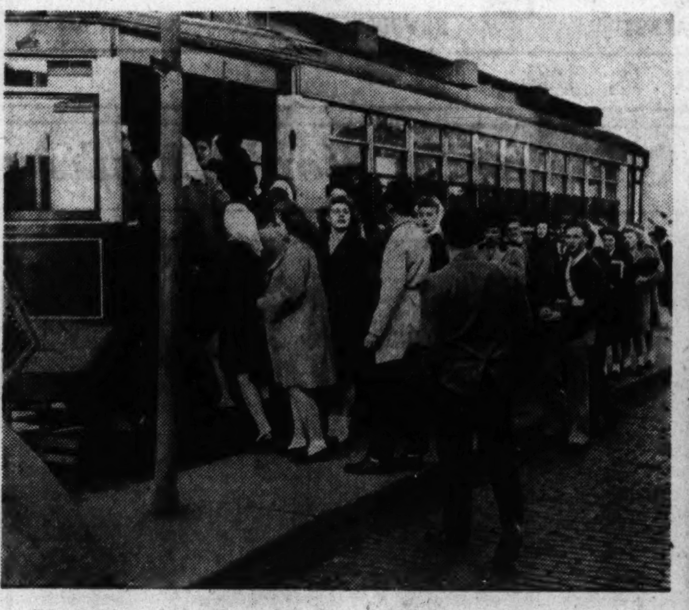
Students Might Tell Adults How to Solve Traffic Rush



The 3:20 rush on the safety island at Fullerton and Kostner avs. used to be a terror for street car conductors and passengers alike. That's when the Kelvyn Park High school students leave for home. Recently a committee devised a system which speeded up the time used in boarding the cars and eliminated the pushing and crowding. One student carries a coin changer so that every one has the exact fare ready. (Story on page 1)

A group of 20 paintings were purchased this fall by Kelvyn Park High school and hung in different classrooms. Every two weeks one of the pictures is established in a place of honor and a story describing the painting appears in the school newspaper. Shirley Holter, art student, points out the beauties of a Renoir while her classmates look on. [TRIBUNE Photos]

Elizabeth Martin and Gloria Dworak are two singers who took part in the annual home talent show at Kelvyn Park High school last Thursday. Proceeds went to the School Children's Aid society.

WHAT'S A LITTLE NOISE TO A MAN FIXING RADIOS?

Four Sets, 3 Street Cars Compete at Once

Three street car lines, adding to the general clatter of Belmont, Elston, and Western avs., are just outside the windows of the Logan Radio laboratories, 2801 Belmont av.—but the building tenant, Nathan H. Colen, doesn't mind the noise.

"I can have four radios going at once and only hear the one on which I'm concentrating, so why should the cars bother me?" he says.

Resembles Safety Island

The small three cornered plot of land on which his shop is located is in the middle of the intersection. It resembles an overgrown safety island with a one and a half story brick building, surrounded by sidewalk. The interior of the shop measures 8 feet by 10 feet by 9 feet.

"But I'll have plenty of room since I'm going to install cabinets for radio parts, and I'll only stock midget radios," he points out.

Likes Goldfish Existence

The tenant is completely satisfied with his location, however, even tho plate glass windows on all sides force him into a goldfish bowl existence. He has a telephone, lavatory, electricity, and even a 5 foot storage space in the attic. He repairs radios on a 56 inch long table, and has a 6 foot counter over which to meet the public.

But before other enterprising business men begin thinking of finding another large safety island on which to set up shop, it is best to point out that the Logan Square Radio laboratories has a complete monopoly on safety island sites. In fact, 2801 Belmont av., for all its appearance to the contrary, is not really a safety island but is privately owned.

Realtor Discovers Error

William H. Loehde, real estate operator at 2617 Lincoln av., has owned the property since 1913, but it took 10 years of litigation with the city to prove it, he will tell you. His partner, Enoch J. Price, "found" the area in 1913 despite the fact that it had been paved over as a street right of way.

The city had purchased the right of way in 1880 from George H. Lee, but in the transaction the triangle measuring 25½ feet by 18½ feet by 17½ feet created by the three way intersection was not purchased. Price noted the unusual width of the streets at that point, had the area surveyed, discovered the error, and promptly contacted executors of the Lee estate and bought the triangle for $6,500, Loehde said. After losing the suit, the city had to provide the new owners with utilities for the triangular brick building that was constructed.

The sidewalk is another feature of which tenant Colen approves. Each day his wife and daughter, Barbara, 4, come down to the shop for an hour period while he is away. Barbara keeps her doll buggy in the shop, and is allowed to take her dolls out for an airing. With all the safety in the world she strolls on Elston ov., California av., and Belmont av. without crossing a street.

The triangular site of Nathan Colen's radio shop, 2801 Belmont av., can boast three frontages, one each on Belmont, California, and Elston avs., providing an unexcelled view of traffic. The California av. frontage has total property length of 18½ feet, while the Belmont av. side is 17½ feet, and the Elston av. side 25½ feet. The plot resembles an oversize safety island. UNIT EMBLEMS —400 OF THEM— CATCH HIS EYE

Seeks 100 Army Patches to Finish Collection

BY NORMALEE RUGAN

Collecting shoulder patches, a new GI fad which has swept the country with such force that it promises to rival pinups in popularity, is old stuff to non-GI George Sifferle, 18, of 1909 N. Kostner av.

A veteran of three years—that is in collecting military insignia—George has gathered together more than 400 emblems, probably one of the largest assortments in the country. He needs less than 100 patches to finish his army collection. His navy assortment already is completed.

George has started several hobbies, but never went very far with any of the others, he said. His enthusiasm for military insignia has held because he knew the collection could be completed. "If you collect coins, it's an endless job. You could collect all your life and still never get thru," he pointed out.

Put in Large Album

Unlike many collectors—especially those who have gone patch crazy and sewed them on GI coats, jackets, hats, and even blankets—George displays his in a large album.

The emblems are systematically arranged according to divisions, armies, air forces, army corps, service commands. He plans to prepare a booklet on the complete history on each patch. Scrapbook and booklet will be indexed for reference to each other.

George can reel off for hours the history of various divisions during the war. "This hobby has made war news and broadcasts fun for me," he said.

Recently George was elected to the Hobby Hall of Fame, highest award of the Hobby Guild of America. He was one of 40 chosen from 4,000 members in the guild's Insignia Collectors club.

Gets Patches from Many

The hobby began for the Kelvyn Park High junior as a result of several patches sent him by his cousin, Corp. Arthur Schmotzer, 5160 St. Paul av. He came by others thru this brother, Sgt. Howard Sifferle, a draftsman in headquarters in Frankfort, Germany; his cousin, Clifford Lamberty, fireman 1st class of 3423 S. 61st st., or by swapping with army and navy men.

Thru the hobby he has acquired a few war mementos such as money from conquered countries, Japanese letters, and an edition of "Mein Kampf," which was confiscated from the home of the mayor of a captured German village.

The collection includes a few World War I. patches, all of the Australian forces and the United States marine corps and navy, besides army insignia. George's next step will be to obtain emblems from foreign services.

GIVE TABLEAUX WEDNESDAY AT FOREMAN HIGH

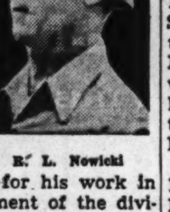
Studens of Foreman High school, 3235 N. Leclaire av., will present a combination Armistice and Thanksgiving program Wednesday morning. Music by the a capella choir, Edward Thompson, vocal soloist, and the orchestra will be interspersed with talks, reading of messages, and three tableaux.

Students reading messages will be Patricia Thrane, Elaine Thompson, Lorraine Swanson, Joyce Gyuing, Warren Durham, Connie Schumaker, Roger Schroll, and Everett Malmgren. Tableaux scenes will symbolize the nations which suffered in the war, soldiers who died on foreign soil, and the united nations.

Directors of the program are Miss Catherine A. Ryan, principal, Miss Muriel Mackay, Miss Helen Meek, and Merritt L. Fossler.

HOMECOMING OF 33D WILL REUNITE TWO NOWICKI BROTHERS

Raymond and Herbert Nowicki, brothers who have been in service two and a half years, soon will meet in their home, 5842 N. Mason av., to compare notes on the European and the Pacific theaters.



R. L. Nowicki

Sgt. Raymond, member of the 33d division who recently arrived in Portland, Ore., was awarded the bronze star medal for his work in the finance department of the division. He had served 15 years with the national guard before it was mobilized into the 33d. In civilian life he was with the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company.

Herbert, discharged from army service last June, was among the first troops to serve in the European theater. He took part in campaigns in Africa, Italy, and France.

HOMES HEATED UNIFORMLY BY RADIANT PANELS

System Unaffected by Floor Coverings

BY LOUISE BARGELT

One of the most discussed features of building construction is radiant panel heating. If you are planning a new home the benefits of this type of heating will be of interest to you.

It is a system which provides healthful and uniform warmth from completely concealed heating.

Since many of tomorrow's homes will be built without basements it should be noted at once that this radiant panel heating can be installed in any type home, modern or traditional, basementless or with a full basement. Not only will there be no radiators, grilles, or pipes with this heating, there also will be no cold floors, no "cold spots" or "hot spots."

Whether the coils are placed in the floor or the ceiling, all the surfaces are warmed by the absorbtion of radiant heat rays from the main radiating panel.

Rugs Make No Difference

One of the first questions which comes to the layman's mind is: "Won't floor coverings affect the operation of such a system and lessen its efficiency, especially if the pipe coils are in the floor? "No," since whatever insulating effect they may have is so light as to be ignored.

Radiant panel heating reverses the process of our conventional systems as we have known them for a long time. Instead of heating the air in the room, and letting this air wam floors, walls, and ceilings, this system affords large areas of mildly heated floor, ceiling, and walls, thus supplying an over-all warmth to the house interior.

Less Dust Gathers

Furthermore with this large area, low temperature heating surfaces there is comparatively slight air movement and less chance for the deposit of dust and dirt.

As for costs of installation and operation, it is claimed this type system usually comes within the percentage of cost allotted to the heating plant, and that in many actual installations the operating cost has been shown to be often as much as 25 per cent less.

It also has been found that radiant heated rooms have a very small differential in temperature between floor and ceiling.

Over 80 neighborhood actors, some of whom have appeared in past festivals, will take part. Costumes will be duplicated of those worn in Poland in feudal days.

The program will follow the pattern of previous years. Villagers will bring the bounty of the land to the lord and lady of the manor. Each actor will carry fruits, grains, vegetables, or poultry as symbols of the land's fruition.

In another part of the festival a young peasant couple are married and receive the blessing of the lord and lady. Villagers then join in dance, games, and mischievous tricks and the host and hostess set out food and drink for the merrymakers.

NO PHOTO CAN DO CREDIT TO TOJO'S UGLY FACE: YANK

Japanese Premier Tojo, lying in bed at the 43d field hospital in Yokohama, is far from being a humble, frightened war criminal, according to Sgt. Robert J. Rusk, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Rusk, 4950 N. Albany av.

Sgt. Rusk

Since Tojo failed in his suicide attempt Rusk has been one of the many medical attendants sharing in the task of nursing him back to health, Rusk wrote his parents.

Rusk Has Opinions

Soon after Tojo was brought to the hospital, Rusk wrote, he was assigned to administer penicillin to him. While giving him his first treatment Rusk exchanged comments with the guard.

"This guy's even uglier than his pictures," he commented. Tojo claims he cannot understand English.

For an injured man, and especially one who doesn't understand English, Tojo's reaction was violent, Rusk wrote. He gave an angry start and glared at the attendant all during the treatment. The guard then told him that Tojo had given similar evidence of understanding what was being said, Rusk wrote.

"Tojo Is Prize Patient"

"Our building is located in an elementary school building three stories high," Rusk added. "It's a wonderful building for a hospital. Our prize patient is Tojo, and it's a crime that he's getting such wonderful treatment. He has four special nurses caring for him; he's under armed guard, and he lives like a king. His condition is very good, so maybe his trial will be soon," Rusk wrote in a later letter.

Sgt. Rusk's service record includes action in New Guinea, Hollandia, the Philippines, and Luzon. Of his trip from Luzon to his present base he writes: "We were in and out of typhoon all the way, and I've never been so sick in all my life. We were rocking around like a ping-pong ball in the middle of the ocean. I only want one more boat ride, and that's the one that drops anchor in the good old U. S. A."

BETH ITZCHOK IN ALBANY PARK TO GREET VETS

Dr. Preston Bradley will speak on "Power, Use and Misuse" in a welcome home program for war veterans at 8 p. m. Friday in Congregation Beth Itzchok of Albany Park, 4645 N. Drake av.

Preceding the address will be a memorial service for the 10 members of the congregation who lost their lives in the war. Five hundred members were in service.

Cantor Tevele Cohen and the choir will take part in the program and aid in the entertainment and social hour to follow. Rabbi Isaac Siegel is pastor.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Nov. 19

Unless the ground is so frozen that it cannot be dug or plowed, it is not too late to do this important fall work. Leaving the soil upturned or rough all winter kills many insect pests that lie dormant. Thru the action of frost mellowness it will be possible to work in the garden earlier next spring.

One has only to cite last season's experience to realize that continuous rains make it practically impossible to spade early and get the seed in the ground.

Protecting plants with a mulch may be done now if the ground is frozen. Practically any material will suffice such as straw that is free from weed seeds, marsh hay, decayed manure, or partially decayed manure, peat moss, glass wool, excelsior, sawdust, or anything of a similar nature.

Sawdust or corn cobs, shredded, will not make the soil acid if used in limited quantities. This is true of sawdust especially. Leaves from hardwood trees do not decay as quickly as those from soft woods.

Place some twiggy brush over plants that have persistent foliage and follow with hardwood leaves. The brush serves as an umbrella to keep the leaves from smothering the leaves of the plants.

Tuesday, Nov. 20

Plant lily bulbs as soon as received for they must not be allowed to lie around exposed to the air or they will lose much of their vigor.

Burn all remains of the garden and take all garden furniture inside for repairs or painting. Drain water from the hose and hang it up on a peg in a cool place.

See that covering material is ready to cover the coldframe in which plants have been heeled-in for protection. Cut down all peony and garden chrysanthemum stems.

Wednesday, Nov. 21

Shrubs may be looked over anytime for pruning, but the gardener should know that if the very early shrubs are pruned during winter, some of the flower buds will be destroyed. These are shrubs like the goldenbell, bridal wreath, cornelian cherry, sweet shrub, deutzia, flowering currant, house hydrangea, lilac, and climbing rose.

When shrubs become unsightly from age, cut them to the ground for they will send out new growth and be the better for such severe cutting. Prune the above list after flowering. This work can be delayed until spring.

Do not prune shrubs to an even height by cutting flat on top. By pruning a little each season, a good shape can be maintained.

Thursday, Nov. 22

There must be a reason for pruning, altho it should be intelligently undertaken. We prune for several reasons, chief among which is to renew the wood. Unless this is done, the plant will become clogged with old wood that fails to flower abundantly.

New wood produces a profusion of flowers and new wood is most attractive.

Sometimes it is easier to rid plants of scales by pruning out the infested wood than by spraying. Dogwood and lilacs are susceptible to such attacks. The suckers that grow around the base of lilacs should be kept removed at all times, for they take much of the plant's strength away from desirable growths.

Shrubs grow in a bushy form when pruned. Shrubs and trees should be examined each season which will make it necessary to remove only a minimum of wood.

Friday, Nov. 23

Planning the entire yard should be continued all winter, if necessary, or until the final plan is acceptable.

The beauty of gardening lies in the fact that changes may be made yearly to suit the whim of the gardener. He will want to plant new kinds and discard those that have been grown over a long period of time.

Planting masses of one kind is always effective, in fact a great many kinds usually give a spotty appearance and especially in border planting. It is best to repeat cerain kinds for best results.

The experience of last season, when it rained so abundantly, showed that many gardeners planted their tomatoes entirely too early with the result that plants needed to be replaced as many as three times and which, plus the attack of a virus disease, caused disaster.

Tomatoes should not be planted until after danger from frost has passed or late in May or early June. Start the seed of the tomatoes about six weeks before planting out time, or eight weeks if sown in a frame.

Saturday, Nov. 24

House plants will occupy the attention of the gardener from this time on. They must not be neglected. The desertlike atmosphere to be found in so many overheated rooms cannot be productive of luxuriant plants.

When the art of watering is once learned much difficulty will be eliminated. The home gardener must learn from experience. If a plant fails to do well, remove it to another room where conditions may be better.

Syringe the plants occasionally to remove dust that may have filled the breathing pores [stomata] and hindered proper functioning. If a plant is in poor condition, lack of water or overwatering may be the cause. Feed plants when they are in active growth, but they must not be starved, a condition indicated by small leaves, weak growth, few flowers. When a plant has become overgrown cut it back or discard it and obtain a young vigorous specimen.

Buy a few new kinds to add interest to the collection. Remember that plants should not be expected to flower continuously. Keep flowering plants well watered.

FAMILY TEAM IN FUND DRIVE GETS RESULTS

Fred Fox, 2746 Fullerton av., only needed to look about his family group to assure himself of a winning team for his work as a captain of the Community and War Fund campaign.

With the aid of his two sons, a daughter-in-law, and her family, $825 toward the community goal of $850 has been solicited from small businesses and in house to house campaigning, in the neighborhood.

His son, Sheldon, 14, was first to enlist and was followed by another son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Fox, 2600 N. Kedzie av. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hochberger, 3529 Belden av., parents of Mrs. Leslie Fox, were next to join and brought their daughters, Estelle, 15, and Lenora, 17, into the work.

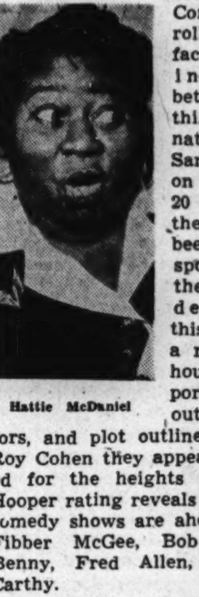
AMOS AND ANDY ARE HEADED FOR HEIGHTS AGAIN

Situation Comedy Lends Believability

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Like Ol' Man River, Amos and Andy, that is to say Freeman Gosden and Charlie Correll, jes' keep rollin' along. In fact, they're doing somewhat better than that this fall. Once a national habit as Sam and Henry on W-G-N nearly 20 years ago, they have never been without a sponsor during the intervening decades. And this season with a revamped half hour show, supporting cast of outstanding actors, and plot outlines by Octavus Roy Cohen they appear to be headed for the heights again. Latest Hooper rating reveals that only five comedy shows are ahead of them—Fibber McGee, Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Fred Allen, Charlie McCarthy.



Hattie McDaniel

Situation comedy together with outstanding supporting actors seems to be doing the trick. In the old days Correll and Gosden played all the parts. That put them in a vise from which they have escaped by adding a supporting cast, including several feminine performers, and a slick musical backdrop provided by the Delta Rhythm boys and Lud Gluskin's orchestra.

Play Many Parts

As in the past, Gosden portrays Amos, the Kingfish, Lightnin', Brother Crawford, Flukey Harris, and Frederick Montgomery Gwindell. Correll, besides doing Andy, takes the part of Henry Van Porter.

Buxom Hattie McDaniel, who won an Academy award for her work in "Gone With the Wind," puts a lot of zing into the show as Sadie Simpson, Andy's landlady. Ernestine Wade plays Sapphire, the redoubtable wife of the Kingfish; Lillian Randolph, who plays the part of Birdie, the Great Gildersleeve's maid, bobs up occasionally as Madame Queen, and Madeline Lee as Miss Blue.

The show is given a lot of savor by Lou Lubin of the old time minstrel team of Swor and Lubin as Shorty, the barber, and Jim Baskette, as Gabby Gibson, the lawyer whom Andy and the Kingfish find they need ever more frequently.

Extras Now and Then

From time to time extra characters are introduced. A few weeks ago a big bruiser dubbed Butch Jordan bobbed up as Andy's nemesis. He was played by Ernest Whitman, well know radio and film actor, who had a distinguished career on Broadway, too. He had a big part in "The Last Mile." In the movies he was featured in "Cabin in the Sky," and "Jesse James."

Seems to this observer that dropping famous guests has improved the show. They didn't always fit into the A. A. groove.

What has helped the show most, besides excellent character delineation, has been the toning down of the scripts leading to more believability. Of course, it doesn't hurt them to be right ahead of Fibber McGee and Bob Hope on NBC.

MASSEY JOINS NBC TRIBUTE TO LINCOLN TODAY

In honor of the 82d anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg address tomorrow, Raymond Massey will read the adress on the Harvest of Stars program over WMAQ-NBC at 1 p. m. today. The entire program will be devoted to the memory of Lincoln.

Turkey Coming

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker. Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra and chorus. The music includes "There Is a Land of Fancy," "Love for a Year," "Love Is Like the Rose," and "Gypsy Love." Dramatic leads will be taken by Sondra Gair, Laurette Fillbrandt, William Everett, and John Barclay.

Eleanor Steber Sings on Sunday Evening Hour

Eleanor Steber, Metropolitan opera soprano, and Reginald Stewart, conductor of the Baltimore Symphony orchestra, will be guests on the Sunday Evening hour over WLS-ABC at 7 o'clock tonight. Stewart will direct the Bach-Wood Prelude in E major, a group of English folk songs, and other classical selections.

Harriet Smolinski, violinist, will be the student star entertainer. Florence T. Love is to direct the Girls' Choral club.

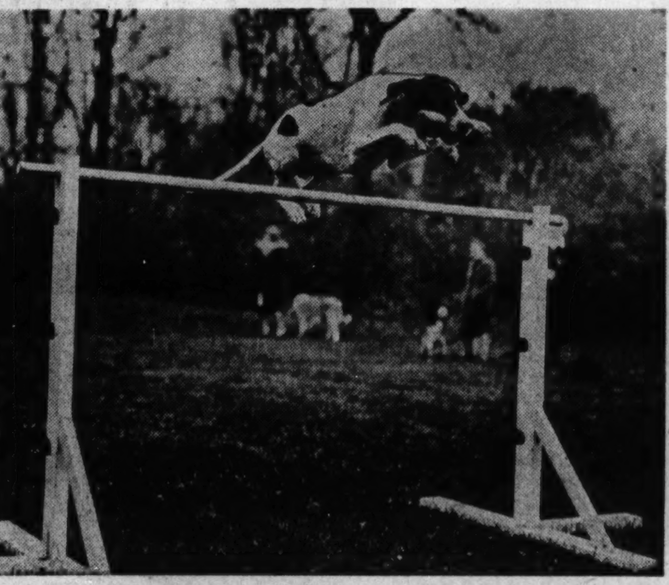
Laddie is one dog that likes this school business says his mistress, Miss Ruth Fritz, 1658 W. 105th pl. "All I have to say is, 'Laddie we're going to school'," she continued, "and he brings his collar and leash." Laddie, tho he's 3 years old, has attended school only a short while and will take part only in simpler trials. Members and nonmembers will show their animals from Chicago and suburbs.



Earl Grange's English pointer, Pete, shows he easily can retrieve over a high jump as his master hopes he will demonstrate to judges at the show. Grange, who lives at 11239 Longwood dr., uses the dogs for hunting.

Keep Hands in Pockets to Save Money

Eighteen right-handed men, gathered in Saenger hall in Tinley Park for their nightly convivial meeting, founded the Left-Handed Social club.

The reasons: [a] they wanted to have a dance, [b] they wanted means of financing the dance, [c] what quicker method of raising cash is there than fining a man for using his right hand during a left-handed club session?

Thus was the club started in March, 1943. Altho its guiding principle—having fun—has been maintained, the club has expanded its activities now to include civic and patriotic activities. Its membership has grown to 75.

Mourn Lack of Funds

Originator of the idea, as far as can be ascertained from several charter members, seems to have been Charles Hollwedel, proprietor of the hall, commiserating silently but efficiently with his fellow men on their lack of the wherewithal to throw a party.

Aside from the financial angle, Hollwedel pointed out the practical value—that of making the members ambidexterous.

Tough on Eyebrows

There were probably a few singed eyebrows, he recalled, as the match in the left hand erred in its aim to light a cigaret, and, too, some refreshment dribbled down the weskit. And there was some talk of an engrossed scroll to the iron-nerved man who could manipulate both the lighted smoke and the filled glass at the same time with his left hand.

Financially, however, the venture was a success. In less than five weeks the club had enough fines from thoughtless right handers to have the dance, Stemm recalled.

Other men who fostered the idea back in 1943 were Larry Carlsen, George Denner, Elmer and Edwin Feigel, George Ginder, Edwin and Emil Juergens, Herman Lehmann, Arthur Linsted, Marcus Monson, Frank Mancke, Edwin Meyer, Harry Piepenbrink, Lawrence Peterson, and Herbert Schmadeke.

The club was incorporated last July with the provision that six social affairs will be held each year. Admission is charged to one affair, the next is free. "Make it and spend it" is the slogan, Stemm said.

Tell of Civic Aid

Among its extracurricular activities ahe contributions to the war fund, Boy Scouts, Tinley Park Memorial fund, and taking charge of the entertainment at the recent centennial celebration in the suburb.

Stemm, who is Tinley Park's mayor and a trustee of the club, said they hoped to erect a Christmas tree in the triangular space in front of Vogt's department store in Tinley Park. In the tradition of the club, the ornaments should be hung with the left hand, Stemm said.

Officers are George Pekarek, president; Marcus Monson, vice president; George Denner, secretary, and Edwin Juergens. George Ginder, Hollwedel, and Stemm are trustees.

PARISH MARKS 40TH YEAR BY SINGING THANKS

500 Families Are in Church Group

St. Joseph parish in Chicago Heights will observe the 40th anniversary of its founding with a high mass of Thanksgiving at 11:45 a. m. today. The mass will be sung by the Rev. John Peterson, pastor, and the sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Richard Podgorski, assistant pastor.

In the fall of 1905, the Rev. Francis Grzes sang the first mass of the new Catholic parish in the suburb in a little frame building at 15th st. and Shields av. About 60 families were numbered in the parish, and the frame building served as church and school combined. The building, remodeled and redecorated, now is used as the convent.

Has Seven Room School

The church now counts more than 500 families in the parish and has a seven room school, including a kindergarten added two years ago.

Father Grzes, who died recently in St. Louis, served the parish 13 years. Under his supervision the present church and school buildings were begun. They were completed in October, 1914.

Four pastors have served the parish since Father Grzes left. The Rev. Wenclaus Warakanski was pastor from 1918 to 1928. He was succeeded by the Rev. Doberstein who served until 1938 when the Rev. Alois Szczerkowski came to St. Joseph's parish, and was pastor seven years. The Rev. John Peterson then became pastor, having formerly served at the parish of Five Holy Martyrs, 4327 S. Richmond st.

Church, School Decorated

Under Father Peterson's pastorate, the parish debt of $13,000 was paid off last year, and, in observance of the 40th anniversary celebration, the church and school have been redecorated and a new chapel added to the convent. A grotto is being constructed in Mount Calvary, the parish owned cemetery.

As part of the celebration, the parish has purchased a $5,000 victory bond, and the school children a $200 bond.

DOGGONE! EVERY DOG HAS ITS DAY AND THIS IS IT

The old maxim "every dog has its day," seems to be true. For today is certainly that day, at least at Tuley park fieldhouse, 91st st. and South Park av., where the South Side All-Breed dog club is holding its first obedience training show.

Not that the dogs themselves care a sniff about the whole business. To them it's merely a case of performing on command and possibly receiving a dog biscuit, or not performing and being in disgrace for days to come. It's the owners who are taking it seriously, and they have been frantically putting their pooches thru the paces ever since entries were signed, sealed, and delivered to Mrs. William Zielke, 4317 41st st., president.

Hope Judges Will Understand

However, the pups do seem to sense something is going on, owners agree. But whether it's that certain tone in the boss' voice that means business; the gleam in his eye as he mutters wildly of professional judges, keen competition, attractive premiums; or just the tenseness proud dog owners feel at the opportunity to show off Fido, is hard to say.

Every master is convinced his dog presents a special problem, and no doubt is praying inwardly that the judges will be understanding. There's the sleek, handsome Isis, a German shepherd, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. H. D. McCullough, 1642 E. 85th st. The only trouble with Isis is that she's just a big puppy ready to play at the drop of a hat. She seems to know her folks are sold on her, and tho the McCulloughs know she can perform, they sometimes have trouble proving it. "Part of the excitement of the show for us," laughed McCullough, "is, will Isis be 'in the mood' or not."

No Restriction on Size

Participating in the show will be big dogs, medium sized dogs, and little dogs, and one of the littlest is the fluffy black schipperke, belonging to Mrs. Louise Blood, 2336 W. 112th st. Rhip is the size of a half grown puppy, but can heel, stay put, and even jump a little with the best of them. Besides which he doesn't seem to have much temperament, always seems willing to perform on his mistress' command. "He's been going to school 10 months, learning his obedience tricks," said Mrs. Blood. "Now he'll have an opportunity to show if he's learned anything."

Judging at the show will begin at 10 a. m. While many of the dogs will be strangers, others will be old school pals, having attended the club's obedience school Friday nights in the fieldhouse.

Other club officers include Walter Carlson, 2019 W. 82d st., vice president; James Lezatte, 7049 Vincennes av., treasurer; Mrs. Leo Kushner, 1708 E. 68th st., secretary, and William Zielke, director of training.

FIRST OF THREE 50TH WEDDINGS TO BE OBSERVED

Each Couple Member of Same Church

The open house celebration today in the home of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Hardlannert, 15413 Vine av., in Harvey, will start off a trio of golden anniversary observances by three couples who have been members of the Federated church in Harvey for more than 30 years. The three couples, Mr. and Mrs. Hardlannert, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Figenbaum, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Miller, will be honored soon at special services in the church.

The Hardlannerts came to Harvey 43 years ago and joined the church the following year. In addition to their celebration today, they will hold a family dinner in the Oak Park Arms hotel in Oak Park Thursday.

Deacon of Church

Hardlannert has been a deacon in the church for 41 years and still teaches a Sunday school class. Until the last two years, Mrs. Hardlannert also took an active part in the church activities, being president of the ladies' aid society and a church trustee. She is also a charter member of the Harvey Woman's club and a member of the Monday Reading club.

The couple has three daughters, Mrs. Paul B. Paulsen, Harvey; Mrs. V. B. Hays, Richmond Heights, Mo.; Mrs. Walter J. Rabe, Oak Park, and a son, William J. Hardlannert Jr. of Harvey. They also have five grandchildren, Mrs. Dorothy Hays Brown, Knoxville, Tenn.; William B. Hays, in the navy; Kenneth E. Hays, Richmond Hights, Mo., and Walter and Caryl Rabe, Oak Park.

In Harvey Since 1910

Mr. and Mrs. Figenbaum were married Nov. 27, 1895, in Janesville, Wis., and moved to Harvey in 1910. Since Figenbaum's retirement from the Buda company, the couple has resided in Tampa, Fla. They will hold their celebration Nov. 25, with a family dinner, and on Nov. 27, with an open house in the home of one of their daughters, Mrs. Eldon J. McClure, 10838 Calumet av. Their other daughter is Mrs. Ralph B. Bergstrand, 15706 Marshfield av., Harvey. Their son, Donald, was killed in World War I. They also have a grandchild, Nancy Lynn McClure.

Figenbaum is a member of the Masonic lodge and Mrs. Figenbaum a charter member of the Harvey Women's club. She was also president of the woman's society of the church and charter member of the Monday Reading club.

Plan December Fete

Mr. and Mrs. Miller became members of the church in 1895. Miller, son of W. H. Miller, founder of the Bank of Harvey, was cashier there for 25 years.

Mrs. Miller was kindergarten teacher in Harvey and Pullman and organized the Girls club of the church 40 years ago. She also organized the Monday Reading club in 1932 and the Book Lovers club in 1934. She is a charter member of the Harvey Woman's club. They will have open house Dec. 23.

HOMES HEATED UNIFORMLY BY RADIANT PANELS

Floor Coverings Fail to Affect System

BY LOUISE BARGELT

One of the most discussed features of building construction is radiant panel heating. If you are planning a new home the benefits of this type of heating will be of interest to you.

It is a system which provides healthful and uniform warmth from completely concealed heating.

Since many of tomorrow's homes will be built without basements it should be noted at once that this radiant panel heating can be installed in any type home, modern or traditional, basementless or with a full basement. Not only will there be no radiators, grilles, or pipes with this heating, there also will be no cold floors, no "cold spots" or "hot spots."

Whether the coils are placed in the floor or the ceiling, all the surfaces are warmed by the absorbtion of radiant heat rays from the main radiating panel.

Rugs Make No Difference

One of the first questions which comes to the layman's mind is: "Won't floor coverings affect the operation of such a system and lessen its efficiency, especially if the pipe coils are in the floor? "No," since whatever insulating effect they may have is so light as to be ignored.

Radiant panel heating reverses the process of our conventional systems as we have known them for a long time. Instead of heating the air in the room, and letting this air wam floors, walls, and ceilings, this system affords large areas of mildly heated floor, ceiling, and walls, thus supplying an over-all warmth to the house interior.

Less Dust Gathers

Furthermore with this large area, low temperature heating surfaces there is comparatively slight air movement and less chance for the deposit of dust and dirt.

As for costs of installation and operation, it is claimed this type system usually comes within the percentage of cost allotted to the heating plant, and that in many actual installations the operating cost has been shown to be often as much as 25 per cent less.

AMOS AND ANDY ARE HEADED FOR HEIGHTS AGAIN

BY LARRY WOLTERS

Hattie McDaniel

Like Ol' Man River, Amos and Andy, that is to say Freeman Gosden and Charlie Correll, jes' keep rollin' along. In fact, they're doing somewhat better than that this fall. Once a national habit as Sam and Henry on W-G-N nearly 20 years ago, they have never been without a sponsor during the intervening decades. And this season with a revamped half hour show, supporting cast of outstanding actors, and plot outlines by Octavus Roy Cohen they appear to be headed for the heights again. Latest Hooper rating reveals that only five comedy shows are ahead of them—Fibber McGee, Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Fred Allen, Charlie McCarthy.

Situation comedy together with outstanding supporting actors seems to be doing the trick. In the old days Correll and Gosden played all the parts. That put them in a vise from which they have escaped by adding a supporting cast, including several feminine performers, and a slick musical backdrop provided by the Delta Rhythm boys and Lud Gluskin's orchestra.

Play Many Parts

As in the past, Gosden portrays Amos, the Kingfish, Lightnin', Brother Crawford, Flukey Harris, and Frederick Montgomery Gwindell. Correll, besides doing Andy, takes the part of Henry Van Porter.

Buxom Hattie McDaniel, who won an Academy award for her work in "Gone With the Wind," puts a lot of zing into the show as Sadie Simpson, Andy's landlady. Ernestine Wade plays Sapphire, the redoubtable wife of the Kingfish; Lillian Randolph, who plays the part of Birdie, the Great Gildersleeve's maid, bobs up occasionally as Madame Queen, and Madeline Lee as Miss Blue.

The show is given a lot of savor by Lou Lubin of the old time minstrel team of Swor and Lubin as Shorty, the barber, and Jim Baskette, as Gabby Gibson, the lawyer whom Andy and the Kingfish find they need ever more frequently.

Extras Now and Then

From time to time extra characters are introduced. A few weeks ago a big bruiser dubbed Butch Jordan bobbed up as Andy's nemesis. He was played by Ernest Whitman, well know radio and film actor, who had a distinguished career on Broadway, too. He had a big part in "The Last Mile." In the movies he was featured in "Cabin in the Sky," and "Jesse James."

Seems to this observer that dropping famous guests has improved the show. They didn't always fit into the A. A. groove.

What has helped the show most, besides excellent character delineation, has been the toning down of the scripts leading to more believability. Of course, it doesn't hurt them to be right ahead of Fibber McGee and Bob Hope on NBC.

Turkey Coming

Sgt. Robert Kluever of the quartermaster corps turns over a turkey, a small portion of the 25 million pounds of fowl released from army duty for civilian celebration this holiday season, to Eloise Kummer, star of W-G-N's Judith Andrews, Modern Homemaker.

AIR 'GYPSY LOVE' NEXT ON W-G-N THEATER OF AIR

Franz Lehar's "Gypsy Love" will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N and Mutual from the stage of Medinah temple before 4,500 guests at 9 p. m. next Saturday. Marion Claire will sing the leading role of Zorika, a noble woman; Morton Bowe, as Jozsi, a gypsy violinist, and Bruce Foote as Fedor, Zorika's fiance. The scene is laid in old Rumania.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker. Henry Weber will conduct the orchestra and chorus. The music includes "There Is a Land of Fancy," "Love for a Year," "Love Is Like the Rose," and "Gypsy Love." Dramatic leads will be taken by Sondra Gair, Laurette Fillbrandt, William Everett, and John Barclay.

Ballet Theater Announces Its Season's Repertory

22 Offerings Listed, Seven of Them New

By Claudia Cassidy

Ballet Theater has given in to the the clamoring customers who demand to know what is being danced during the 17 performances starting at the Civic Opera house Christmas night, and here is a chart with repertory to spread out when you plan your balletic shopping. Definite among the leading dancers are Alicia Markova, Anton Dolin, André Eglevsky, Nora Kaye, John Kriza, Alicia Alonso, Janet Reed, Lucia Chase, Dimitri Romanoff, and Michael Kidd. Sadly among the missing are Antony Tudor and Hugh Laing, and with them Mr. Tudor's "Pillar of Fire," the reason being that they have other balletic fish to fry. Mr. Tudor has been working on ballets for "The Day Before Spring," opening in New York this week, and Mr. Laing will dance them with the Ballet Russe's Mary Ellen Moylan. You might try sueing the producer, John C. Wilson, for grand larceny.

Nora Kaye

Andre Eglevsky

But ballet has a way of surviving calamities, major and minor. Ballet Theater is bringing us what looks like a good season, with 22 ballets, seven of them classed as new, tho two actually are revivals. "Firebird," created by Fokine to Stravinsky's fabulous score back in Diaghileff days and danced then by Nijinsky and Karsavina, was revived here in the early days of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo for Massine and Danilova. The current production is by Adolf Bolm, with new settings by Marc Chagall. And true to the whimsical mood of things theatrical, "Apollo," which now has George Balanchine's choreography to Stravinsky's score, was created by Bolm in 1928 as "Apollon Musagète" and later taken over by Diaghileff in the Balanchine version and danced by Šerge Lifar. But Bolm not only brought the work to life and danced it with Ruth Page, he even had the music commissioned by that valiant angel of chamber music, Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge.

ON THE MUSIC HORIZON

Three of the stars on music's immediate horizon—left to right: Fritz Kreisler, who plays his only violin recital of the season next Sunday afternoon; Raya Garbousova, cello soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra Thursday evening and Friday afternoon, and Leon Fleisher, gifted young pianist who makes his downtown debut Friday evening. All the concerts are in Orchestra hall.

The new works are "Undertow," choreographed by Antony Tudor on an idea suggested by John Van Druten, with music by William Schuman and décor by Raymond Breinen; "Interplay," choreographed by Jerome Robbins, with music by Morton Gould and décor by Oliver Smith; "On Stage," Michael Kidd's backstage ballet to music by Norman Dello Joio, décor by Oliver Smith and costumes by Alvin Colt; "Gift of the Magi," based on the O. Henry story by Simon Semenoff, music by Lukas Foss, décor by Raoul Pene du Bois; "Graziana," John Taras' ballet in classic style to music of Mozart, with décor by Nicolas de Molas.

Perhaps not all of you are indefatigable ballet fans and you may want a quick light thrown on what to expect from the maze of other titles about to be cast out for your selection. "Giselle" is best described by its most hackneyed nickname as the "Hamlet" of ballet. A girl loves unwisely, goes insane and dies, to lure her lover to destruction in one of the most eerily lovely scenes in all ballet, particularly when Alicia Markova is the Giselle and Anton Dolin the Albrecht, as they will be. Dolin recreated the ballet after Coralli, and the music is by Adolfe Adam.

"Swan Lake" and "Les Sylphides" are the white ballets of classic fame, the former to Tschaikowsky's sumptuous score and staged by Dolin after Petipa, the latter Fokine's misty re-creation of a Dégas dream to Chopin. "Princess Aurora" is Ballet Theater's version of "Aurora's Wedding," a series of divertissements to Tschaikowsky's music, with costumes by Karinska after Bakst. This "after" business in ballet means somebody does the best he can to remember what it was in the beginning.

"Bluebeard" and "Helen of Troy" are opera bouffe ballets to Offenbach scores, and the first is Fokine's with Dolin, the second bears the stamp of David Lichine. "Le Spectre de la Rose" was Nijinsky's great solo success, and Eglevsky will be dancing it this time to Weber's "Invitation to the Dance." "Fancy Free" is Jerome Robbins' lighthearted ballet of three sailors and three girls, with music by Leonard Bernstein and fun by all. "Tally-Ho" is Agnes de Mille's droll flirtation with Gluck, probably rearranged and cut since last season. "Peter and the Wolf" is Prokofieff's music visualized by Bolm and told by a narrator. "Lilac Garden" is Tudor's nostalgic memory evoked by Chausson's "Poème." "Fair at Sorochinsk" is Lichine's Russian tale after Gogol to Moussorgsky. "Petrouchka" is Fokine's famous design for the Stravinsky score, and "Graduation Ball" is amusing high jinks in a boarding schools, set by David Lichine to Johann Strauss.

Conductors will be Jascha Horenstein and Mois Zlatin, with Daniel Saidenberg as a guest conductor. Formerly our first cellist with the Chicago Symphony and founder of the Saidenberg Symphonietta, Mr. Saidenberg distinguished himself in ballet last season by conducting "Fancy Free" without rehearsal. He has been busy recently with a Bach concert for the New Friends of Music, and will play quintets with the Budapest quartet.

Three theaters are changing tenants this week. "The Student Prince" closes at the Studebaker tonight and tomorrow night brings the Theater Guild production of Philip Barry's "Foolish Notion," with Tallulah Bankhead, Donald Cook, and John Emery in leading roles. The title comes from Robert Burns' "O wad some power the giftie gie us to see oursels as ithers see us. It wad frae monie a blunder free us, an' foolish notion." Also due tomorrow night, having ousted "The Winter's Tale" from the Blackstone, is Edmund Goulding's melodrama, "The Ryan Girl," with June Havoc and Edmund Lowe. Tuesday evening replaces Chicago Opera echoes at the Civic Opera house with a revival of Sigmund Romberg's "The Desert Song," with Walter Cassel and Dorothy Sandlin singing the leading roles.

Edmund Lowe

Thanksgiving matinées will be played Thursday by "The Voice of the Turtle," at the Selwyn; "Dear Ruth," at the Harris; "Anna Lucasta," at the Civic, "The Desert Song," at the Civic Opera house, and "The Ryan Girl," at the Blackstone.

Add little theater performances: A group called The Players presents "Adam's Evening," a three act farce, at the Peoples auditorium, 2457 W. Chicago av., this evening at 5 o'clock and 8 o'clock. The Chicago Group Theater, Inc., 640 N. State st., will present "Seventh Heaven," starting Dec. 8.

"Carmen Jones" announces Jan. 5 as its closing date at the Erlanger, which will mean an engagement of 19 weeks. The show then goes to Milwaukee, Detroit, and St. Louis and then east, where return engagements will be played in Philadelphia and Boston. Billy Rose is still considering a London engagement as well as a possible Canadian tour and a return to the west coast.

"The B.O.W.S." A Vivid Account of Cornell Troupe Overseas

ONCE I wrote of Katharine Cornell's troupe in "No Time for Comedy" that Margalo Gillmore was miscast as the other woman, and Cornell rushed to her defense in that lovely warm voice that bewitches audiences, saying, "O, Margalo knows she isn't just right for the part, but she's such wonderful company we made her come along. I don't know what we would do without her." After reading "The B. O. W. S." [Harcourt, Brace, $2.50], Miss Gillmore's account of six months overseas with the American Theater Wing unit of Cornell's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" [Stars and Stripes cut it down to four letters spelling what actors love], I would like to echo that remark with variations. Margalo is just right for the part, she is wonderful company, I am glad she went along, and I don't know what we would have done without her.

For this unpretentious little book takes you backstage in a gallant overseas venture, and with loyalty, wit, and tenderness it tells you more about what war is like than many an expert's volume. Miss Gillmore has persuasive perception and a wry sense of humor when it comes to telling a story, and Patricia Collinge, to whom she told it, can write. They let you share the triumph that came of Cornell's decision to give the soldiers her best, the invalid Elizabeth Barrett who loved and ran away with Robert Browning [played by Brian Aherne] in the best loved success of her rich career, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

It wasn't, you remember, a popular decision. The play was full length, it carried 10 times the usual amount of scenery, and 17 actors instead of the customary seven. It was Victorian romance with tender love scenes brass hats thought soldiers would jeer off the stage, and it made straight for Italy where those same soldiers were supposed to wreck any performance reckless enough to mention that sunny land, which kept cropping up in Besier's play. Finally a group banded together to bring a breath of home to the homesick found itself briefed by a major who said, "It is your duty to make every man who leaves the theater better able to turn a knife in the guts of a German."

Altogether, it was an unnerved bunch of actors that first night at Santa Maria's gay little Teatro Garibaldi, where about the only reassuring omen was Caruso's signature scrawled on a dressing room wall. Guthrie McClintic was the luckless soul who had to mention Italy first, and the result so devastated him that he made his exit with glazed eyes, hissing to his anxious cast, finger to lip, "Absoluto silencio!" Thereby proving the contention of Bill Noon, the stage manager, that any one can speak Italian. Mr. Noon got superb results with such backstage linguistic marvels as "El ropo, pronto!"

An Audience Is Born

But Katharine Cornell was firmly ensconced on that green brocade sofa with wedges under its front legs to keep it from sliding down the raked stage, and theater magic is where you find it. Gradually the uproar out front lessened, interest perked up, the soldiers reassembled after intermission, and an audience was born. When the show was over it got an ovation and the actors rushed about in the way of actors immemorial, chanting, "Darling, they loved us!" Except McKay Morris, who played the fearful elder Barrett. He chanted blissfully, "They hissed me, God bless them!"

And they loved it, those soldiers for whom "The Barretts" trouped right up to the edge of the terrifying battle of the bulge. No one could quite understand this popularity in the face of such dire predictions until suddenly Cornell told Gen. Eisenhower, "Why, it's just a perfectly plain story with a hero and heroine and an ogre, and it has love and excitement and suspense." She had the instinct first and the explanation last, which is the best of all ways to proceed, if you really belong in show business.

Apparently all the "Barretts" belonged, from the veterans to pretty young Betty Brewer, who fell in love on the way over and was married in Florence in a riot of flowers and tears and borrowed wedding gown. They trouped in the fullest sense of that honorable term, in hospitals, in theaters, at the front, behind the lines. They played in uniform when their costumes were stuck on a Corsican reef and Cornell drank her porter not from a silver tankard but from a lily cup, with a cleaning tissue in lieu of her lace handkerchief. And they made many valuable discoveries such as [a] Aachen teaches you not to count your teaspoons and doilies and [b] the secret of Gertrude Stein's style is that Alice B. Toklas can't type.

An "Upholstered Mouse" Is Flush

For Elizabeth Barrett's devoted dog, Flush, they could not have a cocker spaniel because of weight restrictions, so they substituted a Yorkshire terrier, described by Miss Gillmore as "delicate as air, a lion in endurance," and by less poetic soldiers as "an upholstered mouse." Brenda Forbes—you remember, the maid with the skimming walk that always set audiences laughing—constituted herself Flush's adoring retinue and was so afraid English law would take her charge for a civilian he sailed home wearing a Paris jacket with a lace kerchief in its pocket, his six months' overseas bar, his 9th and 5th army patches, his U. S. O. insignia, his American Theater Wing pin, and his dog tag. Even then some obtuse official took him for a Yorkshire terrier.

But then Flush probably would have been glad to miss that boat along with the rest of the company. Their time was up, their citations won, their friends made forever, but they didn't really want to go home, not after they found how much they were needed. Reluctantly they saw the last performances slip by and finally they were saying farewell at Reims, where Bill Noon, who had not found the French language quite such a pushover, scored one memorable triumph. He was smoking backstage when a French fireman went into an imitation of a scenic holocaust, ending with an accusatory "Pffft!" Whereupon Mr. Noon took out his lighter, ran the flame casually up a fireproofed curtain and said, "American scenery. Pas pffft!"

But then it was over, and much as they wanted to, they couldn't say "Pas pffft!" So they boarded the last train as slowly as possible, and Cornell, who had been striding up and down the station platform, was last of all. Finally she got on and Margalo said, "All right, Kit?". And Kit nodded, saying, "But up to the very last minute I wanted the telephone to ring and some one to ask us to stay."

Event Devoted to Composer's Ballet Music

By Albert Goldberg

Paul Hindemith

For once an eminent composer will be appreciated in his lifetime—and what is more pertinent, in Chicago—when in celebration of the 50th birthday of Paul Hindemith, which occurred last Friday, the entire program of the third in the Harry Zelzer Saturday night concert series at Orchestra hall on Dec. 15, will be devoted to a concert of that composer's ballet music, with Hindemith himself conducting a chamber orchestra of 30 players from the ranks of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. This event will replace the dance program originally scheduled for Argentinita and company, canceled by the recent death of the famous Spanish dancer. Recognition of the Hindemith anniversary already has been made here in two University of Chicago chamber music concerts, and in New York three concerts are being given in a two day Hindemith festival.

Three of the four works to be performed here represent Hindemith's important contributions to the modern ballet, and two of these scores have not been heard before in Chicago either in concert or in the theater. The first is "Hérodiade" which was commissioned by the Coolidge Foundation of the Library of Congress for performance by Martha Graham and her dance group.

That, however, is only part of the tale. The original inspiration of "Hérodiade" was a dramatic work of the same title by the French symbolistic poet, Stephané Mallarmé, which goes "The Voice of the Turtle" one better in having only two characters. One of these is an actress, the other her attendant, and the action takes place as the actress is about to step upon the stage to play the character of Herodias. Hindemith's method of writing a ballet score for this poetic play probably was the most extraordinary ever employed by a composer in the history of music, for without any intention of using the text either as a vocal line or as recitation, in composing the instrumental score he followed to the last syllable the exact rhythms of Mallarmé's French verse. After accomplishing this unparalleled feat, the composer's dismay may be surmised when he discovered that the choreography devised by Martha Graham for his score was based upon an entirely original invention of her own, and paid not the slightest attention to the Mallarmé text Hindemith had so laboriously translated into terms of instrumental music.

IN 'DESERT SONG'

Jean Bartel and Jack Goode in a scene from "The Desert Song," Edwin Lester's revival of Sigmund Romberg's operetta, due at the Civic Opera house Tuesday evening for an engagement of three weeks. [Reed Photo]

Mr. Hindemith's personal opinion of this procedure never has been publicly stated, but an inkling of his emotions may be gleaned from the fact that he declined to attend the first performance of the Graham ballet in Washington. The forthcoming concert will mark the first time the composer himself has conducted his score, and probably will signalize the first concert performance of the work.

The second ballet on this program will be "The Four Temperaments," a score originally commissioned by George Balanchine, but not yet utilized by him as the basis for a ballet, since he believes the nature of the music would result in a work too similar to "Danses Concertantes," one of his more recent choreographic creations to the music of Stravinsky.

"The Four Temperaments" was first sketched by Hindemith as a ballet project without any definite plot idea in mind. As the work progressed the music fell easily into absolute patterns, and the composer explains the odd title by saying, "I enjoyed, without thinking of the stage and dancing, the idea of expressing different moods of melancholic, sanguine, phlegmatic and choleric persons,"—incidentally, divisions of human temperament noted by numerous classical authors. The composition is scored for piano solo and string orchestra, and is in the form of a theme and variations, with three themes in three distinct sections, and each variation dividing into three sections. The solo part here will be performed by a young New York pianist, Jane Carlson.

The third ballet score will be "Nobilissima Visione," one of the suites taken from the ballet presented in America under the title "Saint Francis," danced and choreographed by Massine and presented here frequently by the Ballet Russe. The score has not been played here before in concert form, but the final number of the suite, the Passacaglia, was conducted by George Szell at Ravinia in 1942 and played later at Orchestra hall under Hans Lange's direction.

The only non-balletic composition on the Zelzer program will be the song cycle, "Die Junge Magd," for mezzo-soprano, string quartet, clarinet and flue, to be sung by Margery Mayer, young Chicago mezzo who has appeared in several major roles this season with the Chicago Opera company. "Die Junge Magd" is an early work of Hindemith, having been published in 1922, and consists of a setting of six poems by the German expressionistic poet, Georg Trakl. Miss Mayer has sung the cycle here previously at a University of Chicago chamber concert, and the first performance here was given by the Illinois Symphonic Ensemble at a Kimball hall concert in 1941 under Leo Kopp's direction with Bettina Bjorksten as soloist.

Chuck Foster Returns to Blackhawk Cafe Dec. 19

Gordon Back as La Salle's Singing Star

By Will Davidson

On Dec. 19 the Blackhawk restaurant will switch from Cooling system to a Foster pace in its music. In less strained terms, Chuck Foster returns, to replace Harry Cool, who has been a sensation in the room since he and his band made their debut there last summer.

Richard Gordon [Seymour photo]

In the meantime, the Blackhawk carries on its show starring the very funny and likeable Joey Rardin, Jeanne Shirley's beauty and songs, Harry's personable and sigh provoking singing, and the acrobatics of Beth Farrell. On next Wednesday night the dancing Rossi sisters will replace Miss Farrell.

'DEAR RUTH' COMPLICATIONS

[Sketch by Ben Cohen]

The La Salle hotel has brought Richard Gordon back to his old spot as the singing star of its American room shows. Dick returned Friday, to co-star with Florian Za Bach and his orchestra, and the dance team, Zarco and Beryl. On next Friday night a new dance team, Lydia and Joresco, will join Gordon and Za Bach.

The Vine Gardens will bring in a new show on Dec. 14, starring Gus Van, and featuring Marvin Boone, dancing emcee; Jules and Joanne Walton, the highly popular dance team, and Myra Jean, contortionist.

Tomorrow Lynn Shirley, dancer, replaces another attractive girl tapster in the Chez Paree show, Dixie Roberts. Incidentally, that tremendous Chez show has been held over another week, thru Dec. 20.

Just a week or so ago I reviewed a book on learning French. I thought it a very good book, capable of giving an earnest and competent student a working knowledge of the language. But it didn't do me a bit of good when I went to hear Jean Sablon at his opening in the Mayfair room of the Blackstone hotel.

Mr. Sablon is a most charming fellow, with a rich and pleasing voice which he controls with exquisite ease and deft versatility. He speaks very good English, with a delightful accent, but for purposes of his business he chooses to use French almost exclusively.

There is, of course, nothing wrong with that so long as his audiences are satisfied. According to reports, not all of them have been, and the reason probably is that most of us like to recognize something about the songs our cafe entertainers are singing. In that, of course, we are a little stupid, for there are very few lyrics that are worth listening to—but listen we do.

I would be sorry to see Mr. Sablon, who after all DOES lapse into English for at least one number each show, lower the quality of his performance by becoming cheaply commercial. Yet I think he would have happier results if he gave his repertory just a little bit more of that commercial touch.

Enough of that. Hearing him sing "J'Attendrai," "Ma Mie" [Not to be confused with Al Jolson's trademark], "Le Fiacre," and so on, is a pleasure indeed. His "Symphonie" has more than artistic appeal for it is something of a theme song of liberation.

Ernie Heckser's orchestra is rounding into splendid shape, and big Bob Kirk continues to be its singing star.

It is good to see Emil Vandas back in front of his Edgewater Beach hotel orchestra, and to hear the good, rich music he has trained the boys to play. Emil is very popular with the Beach crowds, and he always plays an excellent show, as well as dance tunes.

The current Dorothy Hild production is one of the best in months, featuring as it does the always hilarious ventriloquism of Senor Wences, and the most unusual ballroom acrobatics of the Del Martins. Senor Wences, you probably remember, carries on two and three way conversations with a most varied collection of dummies. He probably has the most original of the ventriloquist acts.

The Del Martins—two men and a very beautiful girl—approach gymnastics with the easy grace of a ballroom trio. Their handstands, their lifts, their balancing turns are excellent, and smooth as a languid stream in the summer woods.

From the Vandas band come Red Hodson for a trumpet novelty and Nancy Evans, the lovely girl with the rangy voice. The Song Stylists coöperate with Miss Hild's dancing line in several numbers.

Boswelling the Bistros:

A note from Mardoni and Louise, the fun making magicians and mind readers, reveals that since they left the Blackhawk restaurant about four months ago they have been playing in Los Angeles, at the Biltmore Bowl. They expect to return to the midwest soon. Mardoni, you know, flies his own plane. . . . The 51 Hundred club is featuring two new acts, tap dancing Isabelle Johnson and the Florence Sullivan line, who came in a week ago. Jan Murray, comedian, and the singing trio of Day, Dawn, and Dusk, are holdover favorites. . . . I like the tag line of that band leader in New York—Syd Strange: "The name is STRANGE, but the FACE is familiar." . . . Viola Diana Derx, 18 year old waitress at the Hotel Knickerbocker, now is a singing star, Diane, all because Earle, the popular pianist at the hotel's smart cocktail lounge, discovered her excellent voice. . . . Newcomer in the city's current comedy lineup is B. S. Pulley, who is making them laugh at the Brown Derby.

OLSEN'S SINGER

Now that George Olsen is back in the Empire room of the Palmer House Judith Blair, his petite singer, is again charming her host of admirers.

Willie Shore is beginning to get some of the awards he has so richly earned by his unflagging efforts to assist all charitable projects, and his intense interest in giving the service men the laughs they deserve. . . . Harry Miller, until recently a lieutenant commander in the navy, and now once again a top rank publicist, is as proud a father as ever you've seen. A 7 pound 3 ounce boy was born last Thursday, and if Harry proves to be as good a pa as he is p. a., Mrs. Miller won't need to worry about her son's upbringing.

If the interim government of France does decide to honor its president and war hero with a marble monument, it will probably be referred to as De Gaulle stone.

Science Talent Search On in High Schools

By The Rev. John Evans

The Westinghouse Electric corporation is sponsoring its fifth annual Science Talent search thruout the nation's 27,000 high schools to discover the 40 students of the highest scientific potentiality. Entrants will compete for $11,000 in scholarships and the competition is a hard road. The selectees are chosen for their scholastic record, aptitude, ability, and prowess in extra-curricular activities.

Accompanied by a statement from the teacher on the above qualifications will be an essay by the student on "My Scientific Project," the subject prescribed by the corporation from its office, 40 Wall st., New York City. The local school test will last three hours, then 40 students will be named as delegates to attend a five day Science Talent institute to be held in March in Washington, D. C.

Two four-year Westinghouse science grand scholarships of $2,400 each will be granted to a boy and a girl and eight of $400 each during the institute and an additional $3,000 may be distributed at the discretion of the judges, who will interview the competitors after the final tests.

"The chief purpose of the search is to find young persons with creative ability in the sciences, rather than those possessing a fund of scientific knowledge," said Watson Davis, director of the Science Clubs of America, which is conducting the search.

Dr. Leon O. Jacobson, assistant professor of medicine at the University of Chicago, has been appointed associate dean of the university's division of biological sciences, President Ernest C. Colwell announced last week. Dr. R. Wendell Harrison is dean of the division. Dr. Jacobson, author of several books on biological pathology, became a member of the university's staff in 1941.

Dean Roland T. Lakey of Wayne university college of pharmacy recently stated that 8,500 pharmacists, men or women, will be needed in the immediate future, even after the 8,000 at present in uniform shall have returned to the profession. Figures released by the American Foundation for Pharmaceutical Education show that between 1940 and 1945 over 5,000 retail pharmacies closed up, also that in pharmacy colleges enrollment had dropped from a normal figure of 8,000 to 2,700 for the first quarter of last year.

"To fill all the available jobs in the pharmaceutical field, only 200 to 300 graduates will be available each year in the immediate future," Dean Lakey said. "Unless this figure can be substantially increased the ability of the industry adequately to serve the health needs of the nation will be seriously impaired."

Col. Clifford C. Gregg, director of the Chicago Natural History museum, has announced that Dr. Ruth Marshall, professor of biology at Rockford college, and Dr. Julian A. Steyermark, curator of the museum's herbarium, have been elected to the honorary membership classification of "Contributors." Persons whose gifts in funds or materials for collection range from $1,000 to $100,000 are elected Contributors by the board of trustees. Posthumously elected a Contributor was Judge R. Magoon Barnes of Lacon, Ill., who bequeathed a collection of 39,000 birds' eggs.

A Little About the Movies on City's Screens

"The Spanish Main." Paul Henreid as a swashbuckling buccaneer, Maureen O'Hara as a captive bride, and Binnie Barnes in the role of a pirate lady will lure the adventurer thru this exciting technicolor story of the colorful days when pirates roamed the Carribean. Palace.

"The Great John L." It's Bing Crosby's first production which stars Greg McClure, a newcomer; Linda Darnell, Barbara Britton, and Otto Krueger. Tinged with a taste of romance it is the film biography of the former champion, John L. Sullivan. Oriental.

"On Approval." Starring Beatrice Lillie and Clive Brook, the film deals with an American heiress in England who becomes engaged and gets involved in a hilarious situation when she suggests that she and her prospective bridegroom test their forthcoming marriage for approval. World Playhouse.

"Radio Stars on Parade." A stack of your radio favorites are featured in this comedy picture. And there's a snappy little plot to introduce such personalities as Frances Langford, Don Wilson, Skinnay Ennis, Ralph Edwards, together with comedians Wally Brown and Alan Carney. Palace.

"Duffy's Tavern." If you've heard the fun making in "Duffy's Tavern" on the radio, then you'll know what to expect when you see Archie [Ed Gardner] and his guest stars on the screen. Bing Crosby, Betty Hutton, Alan Ladd, Dorothy Lamour, and Paulette Goddard are among Archie's friends. Chicago.

"This Love of Ours." Merle Oberon and Charles Korvin are married in Paris, but the young husband, believing his wife unfaithful, deserts her. Years later they are reunited to present the dramatic highlight in this love story. Palace.

"Junior Miss." Confusion and excitement in the Graves household is caused by that junior miss, Peggy Ann Garner, whose efforts to soothe family problems only seem to make things worse. Mona Freeman, Allyn Joslyn, and Faye Marlowe have leading roles. United Artists.

"First Yank Into Tokyo." An American army officer, born and brought up in Japan, is selected for an espionage mission, and has his features changed by plastic surgery. The officer steals secret Japanese documents. Tom Neal and Barbara Hale co-star. Woods.

"Her Highness and the Bellboy." Two leading ladies and two leading men smoothly run the drama, action, comedy, and love interest in this film. There's Robert Walker, the bellboy; Hedy Lamarr, the princess, with June Allyson and Warner Anderson. Apollo.

"Abbott and Costello in Hollywood." Bud and Lou in their newest film perform their antics right on the M. G. M. lot in Hollywood, and there you'll find the theme of the story. McVickers. Riviera.

"State Fair." A musical with all the fun and merriment found in state fairs plus plenty of romance. The leading players who sing, woo, and win blue ribbons are Dana Andrews, Jeanne Crain, Dick Haymes, and Vivian Blaine. Roosevelt.

Drama Notes

"Suds in Your Eyes," Jack Kirkland's dramatization of the book by Mary Lasswell, has announced its intention to visit us during the holidays, but names neither date nor theater.

The Canterbury Players will present Rachel Crothers' "Susan and God" at Curtiss hall, Fine Arts Building, the evening of Dec. 9, and "Double Door" at the same theater Jan. 13.

New York's "The Voice of the Turtle" will have an entirely different cast from the famous first when John Beal replaces Elliott Nugent Jan. 5. Mr. Beal is just out of the army. He spent three years in the army air forces transport command.

"Anna Lucasta" estimates a $2,000,000 bond sale for its special matinée at the Civic theater Sunday, Dec. 2.

Edwin Lester, producer of "Song of Norway" and "The Desert Song," and general director of the San Francisco and Los Angeles Civic Light Opera associations, will hold auditions for singers at the Civic Opera house Wednesday morning, starting at 11 o'clock. Requests for auditions should be made by letter to Mr. Lester, stating the applicant's voice, personality, age, musicianship, and training. The age bracket for girls is 18 to 25; for men, 18 to 30.

Yehudi Menuhin has succumbed to the movies and is in London to do a film based on the life of Paganini. He said he would combine business with "the pleasure of playing for the troops in Europe."

When John Van Druten's "The Mermaids Singing" makes its imminent bow on Broadway it will be Mr. Van Druten's third on New York display. The others are "The Voice of the Turtle" and "I Remember Mama."

Remember Claiborne Foster? She will appear in Lulu Vollmer's "And Shadows Fall," starring Marjorie Rambeau. The producer is Howard Lang and the show is scheduled to open eastern tryouts Dec. 22.

AT THE WOODS

Barbara Hale, who comes from Illinois, has the role of an army nurse in "The First Yank Into Tokyo." At the Woods.

Vaudeville

Chicago theater. The stage show holds over for the second week, headed by Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra. Singers Skip Nelson, Fats Daniels, and the sultry Betty George, plus the trumpeting of Bobby Hackett, three-time "Down Beat" poll winner, are featured performers with the orchestra. Sharing the bill are Glenn Miller's Modernaires, starring Paula Kelly, in "Autumn Serenade" and "Coffee 5, Doughnuts 5." Comedy is supplied by Professor Backwards, "Dean of Laughology," and dancing is assigned to Tucker and Tremaine.

Glenn Gray

Oriental theater. Johnnie Johnston, new vocal star with the billing of "That Old Black Magic Boy Himself," tops the bill. Also appearing prominently in the stage show are Lionel Kaye, "The Daffy Auctioneer"; Bobby Lane and Claire in "Fighting for the Funnies"; and Monroe and Grant in "Just Bouncing Around." Ray Lang and his orchestra provide the music.

Regal theater. Benny Carter, "America's Amazing Man of Music," headlines the stage revue, co-featured with the Deep River Boys, new song recording group. Also listed are "Pigmeat" Markham, recently starred on the Andrews Sisters radio program, and Holmes and Jean.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Five concerts and three conductors make up the Chicago Symphony orchestra's schedule for the coming week. Monday night's Milwaukee concert, the third in the series, will be conducted by Désiré Defauw, with Raya Garbousova as cello soloist. The program will be a duplicate of that to be played at the Thursday-Friday concerts here: Berlioz' overture, "Le Carnaval Romain," "Haydn's Concerto for Violoncello in D major, Prokofieff's "Summer Day," and Brahms' Second Symphony. The Prokofieff work is new, being a chamber orchestration of a set of children's pieces, originally written for piano.

Rudolph Ganz

Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 will see a repetition of the first program of the Young People's series, with Rudolph Ganz conducting his new "Four Symphonic Demonstration Pieces," the overture to Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," and Sibelius' "Finlandia." Mayne Miller, 12 year old pianist, will again be the soloist, playing a movement of Haydn's D major concerto.

Saturday night's "Pop" concert will be conducted by Hans Lange, and will bring forward Alois Trnka from the ranks of the orchestra's cellists to play Saint-Saëns' Concerto for cello in A minor. The orchestral program lists the overture to Weber's "Der Freischutz," Mozart's "Jupiter" symphony, Smetana's "The Moldau," and Tschaikowsky's "Capriccio Italien."

Herman Felber, the new director of the University Symphony orchestra, will conduct, George Howerton will be the general director, and Edward Crowley the stage director.

He will play the Sibelius concerto in D minor, Bach's Sonata No. 1 in G minor, for unaccompanied violin, Beethoven's Cavatina in E flat, Mozart's Rondo in G major, two Slavonic Dances by Dvorak and Kreisler's own "Gypsy Caprice." Carl Lamson as usual will be at the piano.

Bruce Foote, baritone, will be guest soloist at the Thanksgiving choral service at the Fourth Presbyterian church, tonight at 8. Mr. Foote will sing Eric De Lamarter's Solo Cantata for baritone, and the choir, under the direction of Barrett Spach, will sing Everett Titcomb's "Victory Te Deum," Elgar's Forty-eighth Psalm, and anthems by Wood, Nikolsky, and Schvedoff. Mr. Spach will open the series with Seth Bingham's Toccata on "Leonie" as an organ solo.

Art Tatum, blind Negro jazz pianist, will give the recital at Orchestra hall on Monday at 8:30, which it was necessary to postpone last week when bad weather prevented the pianist from flying here to fill the engagement.

THE OLD AND NEW IN CHRISTMAS STORIES

War's Hasty Wedding Is Story Theme

"REPENT IN HASTE," by John P. Marquand. [Little, Brown, $1.50.]

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

In a novelette, little longer than a short story, John Marquand has written one of the most poignant stories of the war. Its poignancy is heightened by the fact that it records its sadly characteristic tale with complete dispassionateness, and also by the fact that the tale's two young protagonists are themselves not only inarticulate but uprooted. It is the story of one of those sudden war marriages.

James Boyden of East Orange, N. J., in training at Pensacola, Fla., went to a Saturday night dance at the U. S. O. "with no premonition that anything extraordinary would happen. He was simply down there at the dance and some one had introduced him to a little blonde who was quite a cute little trick."

But something very extraordinary did happen, and "Boysie," as Daisy, the cute little trick, called him, forgot all about the girl in East Orange that he had known all his life and thought he was in love with, and Daisy forgot the boy in the Pacific that she was engaged to, and Boysie and Daisy got married. They had a few months together and then Lt. James Boyden [j. g.] was sent out to the Pacific and Daisy lived in a little apartment in East Orange and had a baby and couldn't seem to get along with her husband's family, or take care of the baby or forget the boy she had been engaged to before she met Boysie so casually.

"Repent in Haste" is told by a war correspondent [of Mr. Marquand's generation] who happened upon Boysie casually now and again in the South Pacific. He carried a message from Boysie to East Orange and was the fated bearer of a message back from East Orange. Boysie took the news which the older man had agonized over having to give him with, "The hell you say. O, boy. Well, Wilco—Out," and then added "Poor kid. If I had been around—but I wasn't around. Poor kid. . . . Just remember it's happening all the time. Kids get mixed up in a war, I guess—particularly around an airstrip. It's the atmosphere, I guess," almost echoing Daisy's own words. And, finally, "It's just as tho it had happened to some other kid. It was so long ago, do you see? Some other kid, not me. So much keeps happening. They really run you ragged in this war."

Mr. Marquand has managed in his tale of Boysie and Daisy to tell the story of all of the young and bewildered. Perhaps after this war has had its perspective some writer as near to this time and its emotions as F. Scott Fitzgerald was to the psychology of the period of "The Beautiful and the Damned" and of "Flappers and Philosophers" will tell the story of "The Young and Bewildered," tell it from the inside instead of, as Mr. Marquand has told it, the outside.

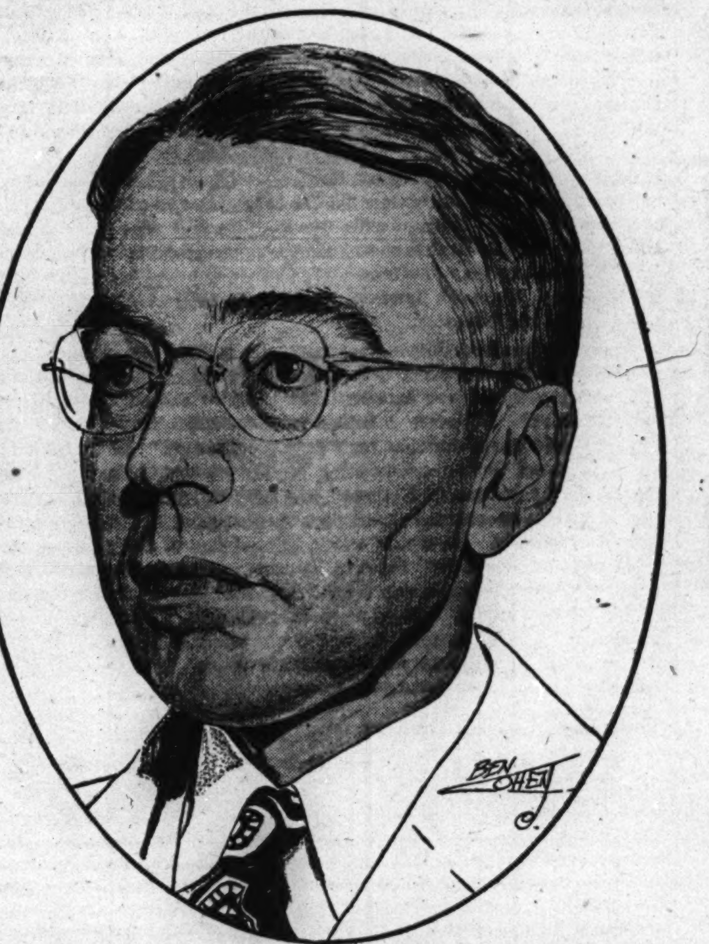
But until that book is written "Repent in Haste" can well serve as the mouthpiece for the generation uprooted and emotionally insecure which is the war's. "Repent in Haste" is not merely a story of a marriage that didn't work. It is also the story of a generation's insecurity. It is also, tho more by implication than by actual telling, the story of actual war, of its demand that its participants never give too much of themselves to another human being, its demand that the battle must go on no matter what or who is lost.



Edward Wagenknecht, whose new anthology, "The Fireside Book of Christmas Stories," is reviewed on this page by Kelsey Guilfoil.

Randall Does Superb Work in New Lincoln Biography

"LINCOLN THE PRESIDENT, Springfield to Gettysburg," by James G. Randall. [Dodd, Mead, 2 volumes, $7.50.]

Reviewed by Avery Craven

This is a superb piece of historical work. To a field in which the public has been amazingly tolerant of uncritical writing, it brings sound scholarship, mature judgment, and complete objectivity. Out of its pages a convincing Lincoln emerges—a man, not a myth, and all the more admirable for that reason. These volumes are absolutely "required reading."

It is not an easy thing to write about Lincoln in a calm, critical way. It is even more difficult to reach conclusions which do not fit popular conceptions of a national idol. Yet Prof. Randall has done both of these things and done them in a way that carries conviction without stirring resentment. His researches have been so thoro and his method of presenting both sides of every issue is so frank and so forceful that his conclusions automatically compel respect. And he does reach conclusions—conclusions which, in many cases, shatter long held opinions.

In the first place Prof. Randall does not believe that the Civil war was an "irrepressible conflict" into which a helpless people were thrust. It was, instead, the result of blundering of self-seeking, of fanaticism and distortion, of drifting and deliberate plotting. All of guilt was not one side; all of right was not on the other.

James G. Randall

Nor is he willing to view Stephen A. Douglas as merely a foil for the more virtuous Lincoln. He finds the two men much closer together in their thinking than has been supposed, and Lincoln not above distorting Douglas' position on various issues for the sake of political gain. That was the case in the "House Divided" speech; that was the case, more than once, in the great debates of 1858, which, by the way, are bluntly designated "a canvass" in which both participants were engaged in sparring for popular effect and party advantage.

Equally revolutionary is Prof. Randall's treatment of the Ann Rutledge engagement and Lincoln's attitude toward Mary Todd. He seriously questions whether Lincoln was ever more than a good friend of Ann Rutledge or that he nearly lost his mind at the time of her death.

Randall's defense of George B. McClellan against the radicals is, perhaps, the most brilliant part of his work. With consummate skill he marshals his facts to show that McClellan's plans were sound and his failures largely due to the intrigues of Stanton, Chase, and the other "Jacobins" who had determined to destroy him. Given the right support, McClellan might have crushed Lee in 1862. Foiled and belittled at every turn, he did give the North an army and won the great decision at Antietam which made possible the Emancipation Proclamation and saved the army's morale.

These are but a few of the highlights in Randall's splendid volumes. There is, in addition, a well balanced treatment of the Sumter episode, an equally fine discussion of the Gettysburg Address, and, above all, the best study of Lincoln's problems in dealing with mounting criticism and intrigue that has yet been made. The final picture is that of a "conservative liberal" who kept his purposes clear and his hands clean in guiding a nation thru its greatest trial.

Wagenknecht Collection Is a Volume to Be Treasured

"THE FIRESIDE BOOK OF CHRISTMAS STORIES," edited by Edward Wagenknecht. [Bobbs-Merrill, $3.50.]

Reviewed by Kelsey Guilfoil

Christmas stories are plentiful. They are a staple of the publishing business; popular magazines would not think of putting out their December issues without at least one Christmas tale in each; book publishers persistently tempt buyers with new editions of the old favorites, and in many homes the custom prevails of reading aloud some beloved story in the family circle on Christmas eve.

In all this aggregation of stories which have been written since Christmas became something more than just a religious festival there are relatively few which deserve reprinting and rereading. That Edward Wagenknecht has found enough of them to make a book of more than 650 pages is evidence of his industry in reading and appraising the work of other writers. He must have read mountains of stories to sift out this many.

To tell the truth, even the stories of Dr. Wagenknecht's selection show a repetition of ideas and themes. Many of them are in the reminiscent vein: The Christmas at home or Christmas of my childhood theme recurs oftener than I care to read it, and of course explanations of Santa Claus are numerous.

But "The Gift of the Magi" is not in this book. This too-famous story of O. Henry's is a nearly perfect exposition of the spirit of giving. But it bobs up in every anthology. It doesn't deserve it, because, like all O. Henry stories, it's a bit on the artificial side, and we may be grateful to Editor Wagenknecht that he spared us this and some others.

What he has done is to collect the stories which touch some aspect or phase of Christmas observance, and give us the best he could find under each heading. Thus we have "Christmas Is Christ," stories of a purely religious nature, including Henry Van Dyke's "The Other Wise Man," and one by John Evans, religion editor of THE TRIBUNE.

The second division is "Christmas Is Santa Claus," stories new and old on this theme, including Clement C. Moore's story in verse which most of us remember by its opening line, "'Twas the night before Christmas . . ." Then there is "Christmas Is Dickens," where one finds Dickens' "A Christmas Carol," of course, and other tales in the same tradition. The fourth and last section contains "Christmas Is Home," which, in spite of its repetitiousness, reminds us that Christmas is the great day of homes and families.

This principle of selection has enabled the editor to give some point to his choices, and yet it excludes little of the Christmas literature that is worth saving. Even "The Birds' Christmas Carol" is here, with enough tales more modern and less sugary to more than balance it.

The collection makes a perfect Christmas gift and a most welcome addition to the home library. The Book of the Month club members who receive it as a dividend are favored as well as the people who buy it in the shops, for it is something worth owning.

Illustrations by Wallace Morgan make an ideal accompaniment for the spirit of the stories, and the binding and format are substantial and beautiful.

Henry James Boom Aided by 2 Books

"THE QUESTION OF HENRY JAMES," edited by F. W. Dupee. [Holt, $3.75.]

"THE BOSTONIANS," by Henry James. [Dial, $3.]

Reviewed by Joe Lee Davis

Here are two substantial products of the current Henry James boom. Their impact ought to keep it rolling along. One is an anthology of 25 essays on the master written between 1879 and 1944, with W. H. Auden's poem, "At the Grave of Henry James," and Lyon Richardson's bibliography from the American Writers series thrown in for good measure. The other, with an introduction by Philip Rahv, is a reprint of a major James novel that appeared in 1886, that he regretfully omitted from the New York edition of his work, and that has long been unobtainable save on the rare book market.

Mr. Dupee has chosen his essays wisely. They afford at once a survey of James' reputation and a many-angled commentary on his vast achievement. The case against James is best represented by T. W. Higginson's strictures on his earlier facile profusion, Max Beerbohm's parody of his later preciosity, and Andre Gide's note on his French cooking. Feeblest of his belittlers are the mighty Parrington and the highly touted Van Wyck Brooks. Stuart Sherman's 1917 appraisal of his "aesthetic idealism" linking him with Irving, Hawthorne, Poe, and Pater holds up surprisingly well.

Provocative and original pieces are Edna Kenton's demonstration that James is a "dispatriated" rather than an "expatriate" writer, Constance Rourke's analysis of his humor and comedy, Morton Zabel's exposition of his importance for modern poetry, Jacques Barzun's sifting of his bizarre uses of melodrama, and William Troy's suggestions about looking closely at his symbols. Upon re-reading, such well-known advocates as T. S. Eliot, Edmund Wilson, R. P. Blackmur, and F. O. Matthiessen are a bit prolix and oversubtle.

In "The Bostonians" James really lets himself go. He brings a skeptical young Mississippi intellectual to the transcendental and abolitionist capital in the period after the Civil war, manipulates him to achieve sustained satire of the faddism of its declining culture, and places him in suspenseful conflict with a fashionable relative whose feminism is a mask for a will-to-power with Lesbian overtones. Here is a fluent effortless vigor instead of the later economy and indirection.

Language Learning in Simplified Form

"1,000 WORDS AND PHRASES, Essential French," by Ernst Wallenberg. [Essential books, $2.50.]

Second in a series that will also include German and Italian, this learn-a-language text is ingeniously devised to give the novice a working knowledge of another language. It uses the same method of teaching essential words and phrases featured in the Spanish book, and should provide considerable help for the serious student. DAVID WAITE

Children's Book Awards Are Given at New York Meeting

By Harry Hansen

NEW YORK opened its Children's Book week with an extraordinary array of talent at the second annual luncheon arranged by the Children's Book council, which coördinates the children's book activities of dozens of organizations. It took place in the large ballroom of Hotel Astor, where the book and author luncheons are held, and seemed very much like them, with Irita Van Doren as chairman. Frederic G. Melcher was the guest of honor this time and didn't have to speak. The important talks were by Dorothy Canfield Fisher, who announced the awards of the Child Study Association of America; Louis Adamic, author of "A Nation of Nations," and Mary Margaret McBride, who transferred her hour to the ballroom in order to interview Ruthie Dushkin, one of the quiz kids, who had come on from Chicago with her mother, and who gave an excellent account of herself. Ruthie was asked to name her favorite reading, but she said that with so many authors present it would be hardly fair for her to pick out one. She said, however, that Louisa May Alcott and Mark Twain were among her favorites.

Dorothy Canfield Fisher goodnaturedly scolded the business of giving prizes when no prizes were deserved, adding quickly that in this instance, however, the award was excellent. It went to Florence Means for "The Moved-Outers." Honorary mention went to John Tunis for "A City for Lincoln" and Jesse Jackson for "Call Me Charlie." Louis Adamic made an impassioned speech condemning history as taught in the schools. As readers of "A Nation of Nations" will find out, Mr. Adamic believes that the work of nationalities other than Anglo-Saxon has been minimized in American history. He wants wider recognition of the complex immigration that built America. He said he believed those who write, edit, and publish children's books can help bring this about. While wider recognition of our mixed backgrounds is only just, experience shows that minorities themselves tend to lose their identity in American life after the original immigrants complete their lives. The second generation usually goes in for complete conformity.

Frederic G. Melcher Honored

The Association of Children's Books Editors gave a luncheon for Frederic G. Melcher at the Park Lane to commemorate his 50 years in the book business. This will about wind up the festivities and convince Fred that it's time to start on the 51st. Doris Pattee gave Mr. Melcher a unique copy of a book that had been bound up for him and contained a number of works, and Helen Dean Fish presented him with a library to which each publisher had contributed four books, making 154 in all. Each book that had been awarded a John Newbery medal or a Caldecott prize was in the collection. A special bookplate had been drawn for the set.

First publication of Holiday, the new Philadelphia magazine, will take place in February. It will deal wholly with travel.

Norton's Death Is Mourned

The death of Warder W. Norton, at the early age of 55, has saddened the publishing world considerably, for Norton realized an ideal that few publishers have been able to afford. He published books that appealed to the intelligence and that were not designed merely to sell a huge number of copies for profit. Himself a man of culture, he published only books of which he approved, and his business remained small enough for him to supervise every part of it.

Now and then, to his great surprise, he had a best-seller on his hands. He initiated Dr. Victor O. Heiser's account of his medical research in "An American Doctor's Odyssey," and was as amazed as any one when the public began to reach for it, and it set the pace for a whole series of books by doctors. It gave the Norton firm substantial underpinnings and even led Norton to build himself a house, with the remark that this was the house Heiser built. Similarly an unexpected sale greeted "Mathematics for the Millions," and uncovered a large number of readers whose hobby was mathematics.

Many of the Norton titles took time to sell widely, but he kept them in print over a term of years. He caught the behaviorist movement in psychology when it began and published such writers as Bertrand Russell and Sigmund Freud. There was never a meretricious title on his list. And as a personality he was generous, courteous, and never critical or harsh in his judgment of authors or publishers. I always had the impression, when talking to him, that he had never lost the spark of intelligent enthusiasm.

Ballyhoo for Books Deplored

Some authors are so afraid that their books will be hidden under a bushel that they begin hectic publicity campaigns to popularize their writings. For instance, the husband of Nancy Bruff, determined that her novel should not be lost in the shuffle, hired Russell Birdwell Associates at a fancy sum to work on her book. I have seen some of the "releases" sent to editors and can think of no more mistaken start. The idea seemed to be that Miss Bruff ought to be publicized as the author of a daring job reminiscent of "Forever Amber," and that the public falls hard for that sort of thing. I should think that any young woman seriously interested in writing would try to dissociate herself as much as possible from such utter trash as "Forever Amber."

Another big ballyhoo is behind "Daisy Kenyon," which, like "The Walsh Girls" of last year, started off with a roll of drums by John Chamberlain. Bewildered admirers of John's writings were of the opinion that his service in Washington had completely unsettled his literary judgment. Reports from the Boston Book fair, managed by Alice Dixon Bond, the capable literary editor of the Boston Herald, describe an extraordinary contretemps when John Mason Brown, who was presiding at an authors' meeting introduced Elizabeth Janeway as Kate Greenaway. The author was equal to the occasion and made capital of the mistake, but a great many of the audience left feeling they had heard Kate Greenaway. A few days after the fair complaint was lodged with the management that in the report Miss Janeway had not been sufficiently featured. If only the girls had written novels you could go to town about, the situation would not be so funny.

Puerto Rico Clamors for Better Rule

"DYNAMITE ON OUR DOORSTEP: Puerto Rican Paradox," by Wenzell Brown. [Greenberg, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Wilton M. Krogman

So we Americans can scream loudly about [other people's] colonial policies? So we Americans are the "big brothers" of our island "little people?" So we Americans, by word and deed, are good disciples of democracy? Read this book and find out why many Puerto Ricans have referred to us in vigorous four-letter adjectives.

We took Puerto Rico in 1898 and gave it a native assembly plus two congressional committees [senate and house] and an elected resident commissioner. The two committees have members elected by rotational seniority rather than ability or interest. There has been and is no apparent central policy. Puerto Rico feels neglected and rejected.

There are two million Puerto Ricans, 85 per cent of whom are said to be mixed [Spanish, Negro, Indian]; 65 per cent of Puerto Ricans are jibaros, or "agricultural workers who possess no land of their own." These jibaros have flocked to the national party of Campos and the Popular party of Marin. The latter has the slogan: Pan-Tierra-Libertad [bread, land, liberty]. The Popular party has given them a certain dignity and some hope. The National party has rallied them by hatred of the Americans.

Puerto Rico has importance beyond its sugar and rum. Here a social program is under way: Land is being redistributed—six sugar corporations owned 75 per cent of the land when the party began; the Puerto Ricans are building their own industries; coöperative enterprise is fostering a highly socialized pattern of living. Puerto Rico is an American responsibility. So far we've muffed it completely, and Latin America is watching and wondering.

Brown writes well and entertainingly—even dramatically. He suggests that we remove Puerto Rico from our own political sphere, and then warns, "If Americans are going to wait for signs of affection and appreciation before they handle the problems of Puerto Rico, the solution will forever be postponed."

Tale of an Indian Boy Living on Boat

"LITTLE BOAT BOY," by Jean Bothwell. [Harcourt, Brace, $2.]

Hafiz, who lives with his parents, brother, and sister, in a mat boat on a lake in India, is an energetic but reflective little boy who dreams of going to school. The author does a deft job of portraying the characteristics and customs of the inhabitants of the mountainous province of Kashmir, and her affection for them, based on personal experience, lends a realistic charm. If there is any fault in the book's 252 pages of large, clear type, it is that the action proceeds too leisurely.

BOOKS ALIVE

by Vincent Starrett

IT IS a gruesome story that Thomas Yoseloff tells in the last pages of "A Fellow of Infinite Jest" [Prentice-Hall], his popular and very readable biography of the Rev. Laurence Sterne. The author of "Tristram Shandy" and "A Sentimental Journey Through France and Italy" died alone in his London lodgings, March 18, 1768, and was buried in grounds belonging to St. George's church, in Hanover sq. Shortly after the interment the gossips of London heard a strange rumor. It was whispered that Sterne's grave had been violated by ghouls and that the body had been sold for dissecting purposes to Cambridge university, where as a young man he had studied.

As fresh corpses were then difficult to obtain for such a purpose, the professor of anatomy invited a number of friends to witness the ceremonies, and one of these was a man who had known Sterne in his lifetime. When the dissection was nearly completed—the story ran—this man uncovered the face of the specimen and recognized his friend. Not unnaturally he fainted.

It is a good news story, only a century and a half old, and so practically virginal for a book column. It has the quality of good fiction, too, being the sort of thing that Sterne himself might have dreamed up for his "Tristram." Either way, it is a satisfyingly Shandean conclusion for the Reverend Laurence, and probably will persist to the end of literature.

It is certain, however, that body snatching was a recognized if illegal profession of the time, and Sterne's grave was well out in the suburbs, where ghouls operated with considerable impunity. If his body did come to this end, the biographer thinks, the fact would never have been publicly admitted. Garrick apparently believed the story and gave up his plan to mark the grave with a stone; it remained unmarked for 20 years. Then two Freemasons, believing Sterne to have been a brother spirit, erected a headstone engraved with a long eulogy in verse and the "commonplace lament"—in the words of Mr. Yoseloff "—"Alas, poor Yorick!"

Shakespeare's Line Fits

Why commonplace? Sterne called himself Yorick in "Tristram Shandy" and the "Sentimental Journey," after the king's jester whose skull furnished Hamlet with one of his most famous speeches. It is an extraordinary coincidence that his own skull should have suffered the post-mortem adventure recorded of it, if the dissection story is true. The verses may have been dull, but it was imaginative and fitting that his popular pseudonym should have been so aptly associated with that of his prototype in the Shakespearean mythos.

Incidentally, it is asserted that Sterne's books—he was an ardent reader and purchaser of books—brought £400 after his death. This statement is made elsewhere and seems to be the accepted figure, but perhaps it should be checked. Two thousand dollars would be a large sum for a scholar's library to bring at that time. The books fetched only £80, according to Charles Whibley, in his introduction to the facsimile reprint of a unique catalog of Sterne's library [London, 1930]. This is $400, closer to the probabilities, and suggests a possible error in somebody's understanding of an earlier authority.

Fabulous Book Prices

Jerome Kern, the popular composer, who died recently, was one of the spectacular book collectors of our day. He started to collect books about 1915, says Carl L. Cannon, in "American Book Collectors and Collecting," and was "shrewd enough to seek the best advice possible." His sale in 1929 came at a time when public confidence in high prices and the business future was unlimited and, as a result, the sale was the sensation of the decade. Almost as much interest was aroused in Europe as in America and books "made" the headlines and the magazines.

Not all the comment on the Kern sale was favorable. An editorial in World's Work, presumably written by Barton Currie, was particularly caustic. "Is the book collecting game degenerating into a new phase of 20th century finance?" it asked, and pointed the inquiry by quoting some incredible price rises in first editions and manuscript material. One New York bookseller asserted that items he had sold Kern within seven or eight years had brought $345,000 more than they had cost the composer.

High Prices Harmful

"In retrospect," says Mr. Cannon, "the book trade was inclined to the belief that the prices established at the Kern sale did more harm than good. As has happened more than once at similar auctions a great many of the books were sold on credit and the full amounts bid were never collected, thus unfortunately establishing an inflated valuation for many."

During the uproar about the prices brought by the Kern treasures Robert Benchley wrote a dialog between the shades of various departed authors who were reported to have met hurriedly at their club when word of the sale was received. In the skit each writer tries to draw attention to the princely sums fetched by his books or manuscripts, and in the politest manner to discomfit those writers whose works brought less than his own. The piece was called "Do I Hear Twenty Thousand?"

Commenting on my Barrie-Housman anecdote in a recent column [Nov. 4], Wallace Streeter sends me a delightful personal reminiscence.

"In July, 1937, I was in Kirriemuir, Scotland, a couple of weeks after Barrie was buried in the little cemetery on the outskirts of that town. I visited his birthplace, one of a block-long group of plaster 'row-houses,' and the caretaker showed me thru. As I was leaving she brought out her most treasured memento, a portrait of Barrie that he had presented to her a year or two earlier. It bore the following modest inscription: 'To Mrs. Thompson of the Tenements, from J. M. Barrie, late of the same."

"Circus of Dr. Lao" Reprinted

Fantasy fans will welcome the return to print of Charles G. Finney's "Circus of Dr. Lao," with all the original Artzybasheff illustrations. Out of print for 10 years, and in constant demand, it was one of Ben Abramson's first cares as a publisher to put it back on the market. There are those who do not hesitate to place it beside "Gulliver's Travels" as one of the great satires of literature. I might add that it is kin, at times, to Voltaire's vulgar, fantastic, exhilarating "Candide," but no such explicit moral as Candide's "Let us cultivate our garden" emerges from its pages. It appears to mean a great many things, among them that life is a curious spectacle in which it is possible to find many and various meanings.

Decoration by Lois Fisher for "Fresh from the Hills."

Marge Lyon Is at Home in the Hills

"FRESH FROM THE HILLS," by Marguerite Lyon. [Bobbs-Merrill, $3.]

Reviewed by Gail Compton

Marge of Sunrise Mountain farm finally has gone home. She has forsaken her efforts to earn a living as a copy writer in a Chicago advertising agency and has settled for good on the 40 acre farm in the Ozarks where she and the "Jedge" used to spend their vacations.

Marge Lyon

Marge finds quite a difference between vacationing on the farm and living there as a real country hillbilly housewife. The perverse wood stove, the slop jar, the drains that won't work and a multitude of other inconveniences lead her to adopt a coat of arms consisting of a map, a cookstove and a churn on a field of chicken feed sacks.

Back again, in the new book, are all the characters readers have learned to love who appeared in Marge's other books and in her weekly column in the CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE. Some of the yarns are reprinted from the Tribune series but there are many new adventures and new personalities to meet. There is the priceless pie social at which Marge ends up sharing her pie with Rounder—a gentleman who spent considerable time in a city in Kansas called Leavenworth for his addiction to making moonshine.

Incidentally Rounder pops out with some remarkable recipes for making moonshine and even one method of producing a potable with the kick of a mountain mule by stuffing a pumpkin with sugar and allowing it to ferment under the bed.

You'll enjoy the meeting of the women's club to which the men are invited, the story of the man who farms with worms, the live stock sale, and many other social gatherings of the mountain folk. There are characters "in them thar mountains" that would bring a chuckle from an oak stump.

If you like eating or cooking don't ever start to read "Fresh from the Hills" before supper. Marge recounts some of the most mouth watering recipes for hillbilly cooking and describes meals that will send you stumbling to the kitchen. You'll find out, and probably for the first time, what a good dish of "greens" consists of and how it should be prepared.

"Fresh from the Hills" has a delightfully clear air about it that makes it charming reading and brings a breath of the mountains into a book world filled to overflowing with the stench of war and the mumblings of psychoneurotics. Here are some real people to meet and know and it bodes well for the reader that Marge finally has gone home to stay. It will mean we haven't heard the last of the Trask Colonial Dames, Wormy Jim, the Jedge and Rounder.

When Diplomacy Wore Buckskins and Moccasins

"CONRAD WEISER," by Paul A. W. Wallace. [University of Pennsylvania Press, $5.]

Gift of phrase and a sense of humor, coupled with diligent scholarship, have enabled Mrs. Wallace to turn out 575 pages of good history and of good reading on Conrad Weiser [1696-1760], Pennsylvania's great and gifted liaison man with the Indians. Because his nominal title was only that of provincial interpreter, Weiser's hand in guiding the province's Indian policy so as to keep on good terms with the Iroquois has received less attention in general histories than it deserves.

Mr. Wallace presents not only every important and available fact about Weiser's life but also ample background information about persons and groups with whom Weiser dealt and events in which he figured. He quotes at length from Weiser's own colorful reports and from other contemporary documents with their quaint capricious spellings [which the author refers to as "skirmishing orthography"]. This book deserves especial attention from any one interested in Indians, Pennsylvania Germans, politics, religion—or just plain entertainment.

LAURENCE T. HERON

Tale of an Irish Beauty Who Fights for a Cause

"BRIGHT STAR OR DARK," by Ruth Peabody Harnden. [Whittlesey House, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Kenneth Horan

Excitement is added to the calmest situation if the heroine is Irish, and, like pudding founded on brandy, it becomes a potent mixture.

Ruth Harnden

Kingsley Blake is one of those beautiful, dark haired creatures who abound, since the beginning of time, in the fens and dells of the Emerald Isle, fierce in her loyalties, bitter in her hates. She's Erin personified, and undergoes enough discipline in her emotional life to weaken any other woman, but the ardor of her spirit is not changed. Intolerant and brilliant, she behaves exactly as Irish women have since Deirdre crept out of her tree.

Her particular anger is, of course, against the English, and the fact that she falls in love with a calm New Englander does not change the martyrdom that awaits her, the curse and the glory of her people. Inevitably this Irish lovely lands in the arms of the law, for she has trafficked with the enemy in her blind determination to save her country single handed.

The quality of place and people is here. Dublin is the background, with its O'Connell bridge, its fish and chip shops, its pubs, its Trinity college, and its environs so green and beautiful that they are like fairyland. Against this panorama moves the figure of the Irish girl and her fight for her country's independence, and that of her ancient grandmother who betrays her because she, too, is fighting for a cause, and of the young American who has to watch her tragic battle.

This is actually the portrait of a people, particularly effective because the author knows them so well. Despite its high emotional content, this book bears all the marks of authenticity, for it springs from a close knowledge of modern Ireland and the ancient loves and hates that steal across it, bearing friend and foe in their stormy wake.

THE Murder Chart

BY DREXEL DRAKE

ENTRY	PERFORMANCE	PAYOFF
"THE MAN WHO ASKED WHY," by Jessica Ryan. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.]	Naive curiosity about death of young drug addict projected Gregory Pavlov, Russian language professor, into role of detective in subsequent murder that brought to crisis dramatic crisscross of lives begun generation earlier in Poland and entangling San Francisco households of symphony maestro and prominent politician.	Delightfully undemonstrative murder sleuth. Plot deeply dramatic, puzzle ingeniously intricate, yet narrative has quiet charm and droll sense of humor. Proneness to distended dialog, but interest holds tenaciously.
"THE DEAD LIE STILL," by William L. Stuart. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.]	Sam Talbot, prominent crayon artist with flair for hard boiled detective work, set spectacular and slaughterous pace for New York police and FBI in following difficult and hazardous trail to lair of murderous sabotage ring. His sketches were infallible identifications.	Crisp originality and prolific inventiveness in this first novel. Except for being a bit psychic in planning his moves, here is clever addition to tough sleuths. Fast, colorful and thrilling.
"UP TO THE HILT," by Anne Rowe. [Mill, $2.]	Thru no fault of Jane Applebee, literary agent, her apartment became scene of series of murders, beginning with that of her most popular woman author. Much misguided romance had to be uncovered before murders could be connected and surprise culprit exposed.	Moderately puzzling for pastime, but people in story aren't too lifelike, and police work doesn't seem exactly on the beam.
"PUZZLE IN PORCELAIN," by Robin Grey. [Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $2.50.]	Unpopular and boorish resident of Virginia community, who tried to promote social position by sinister methods, died apparently from rattlesnake bite, but ingenious repair man proved against odds and opposition that it was murder.	Tale is woven to exploit extraordinarily conceived device for committing concealed murder, but plot and characters are shallow, and unraveling isn't convincing.
"FOUR PAST FOUR," by Roy Vickers. [Jefferson House, $2.]	Clare Charters, famous actress, telephoned James Segrove, Scotland Yard detective, that burglar had just shot and killed her husband. Yet, 20 minutes later, Segrove actually heard shot that killed the husband. It called for masterful crime reconstruction to account for that 20 minutes and exonerate actress.	Excellently written yarn of meticulous and brilliant detective job that clears up deeply baffling puzzle.

YEARS ago, when Vincent Starrett, MacKinlay Kantor, and others [including the conductor of this column] were turning out occasional yarns for a Chicago detective magazine, the most frequent contributor was M. M. Musselman. . . . A one time City News Bureau reporter, Mr. Musselman went from here to New York, where he did radio dramas, and from there to Hollywood, where, of course, he wrote scenarios. [His latest job was the continuity for "Tangier," starring Maria Montez]. . . . Last week he came back to his old stamping grounds, this time to help celebrate the publication of his new book, "Wheels in His Head" [Whittlesey House]. . . . It's the biography of his father, who lived in Oak Park for 20 years or so, and who was something of a mechanical genius. . . . Dorothy Roth, midwestern manager for Whittlesey, gave a party for the visiting author Wednesday at Jacques'.

Chicago also played host last week to a raft of book publishers, including Bennett Cerf, head of Random House; Franklin Watts, president [naturally!] of Franklin Watts, Inc., and John O'Connor of Grosset & Dunlap. . . . And a lot of executives of the Curtis Publishing company, which is entering the business thru the medium of Bantam Books. . . . Authors were running all over the place. . . . Dr. J. G. Randall autographed copies of his "Lincoln the President" yesterday at the Abraham Lincoln book shop, and this was followed by a dinner in his honor at the University club. . . . Rose Oller Harbaugh was giving so many autographing parties at Marshall Field's that we almost lost count. . . . Marge Lyon ["Fresh from the Hills"], Florence Marvyne Bauer ["Behold Your King"], and Peggy Lesser, juvenile editor for Doubleday Doran, were the guests. . . . Tomorrow afternoon Edward Wagenknecht will show up at the Field store to sign copies of "Fireside Book of Christmas Stories." . . . On the following day Flight Officer David G. Yesterday afternoon Marguerite Henry was at Carson Pirie Scott's Hobby Horse book shop to autograph her "Justin Morgan Had a Horse."

In the three years this section has been published, nothing else has attracted so much attentiton as last Sunday's Children's Book number. . . . The phone calls and the letters began pouring in Monday morning, and they continued all week. . . . Most of the readers wanted to know how they could get. on heavy paper suitable for framing, copies of Elizabeth Orton Jones' remarkable painting that appeared in full color on the cover. . . . Calls came from schools, libraries, bookshops, and individuals. . . . Other readers commented on the articles by Paul Engle, Phil Stong, Agatha Shea, Arthur Frederic Otis, and the rest of the contributors. . . . The general opinion seemed to be that Mr. Engle had approached juvenile books from an entirely new angle—the viewpoint of the child himself—and that some smart publisher would do well to sign up the Iowa poet for a book on the subject. . . . Meanwhile, the original of Miss Jones' illustration had gone on display at Carson's.

I can make you a MASTER OF ENGLISH
give me only 15 minutes a day

THE mastery of English is one of the greatest assets in the business world. It gives you a tremendous advantage over others who lack it.

Words are most valuable tools. To those who know how to use them skilfully go rich rewards—money, power, position. For words are the foundation of all thought, all speech, and all writing. You think in words, and it is impossible to think in words you do not possess.

To broaden your thinking and strengthen the power of your mind you must first increase your vocabulary. A limited vocabulary usually means limited thought, limited power, and limited authority.

People judge your mental ability by your use of English. If your language is stiff and stilted, if your speech is slovenly, if you make obvious mistakes in grammar and pronunciation, you are under a serious handicap. If your speech is clear and precise, your expressions varied and interesting, you are recognized as a person of culture and ability.

The BIG JOBS usually go to men who are able to express themselves in fluent, convincing, clear-cut English. People have confidence in such men—but never in those who are always groping for words and whose thoughts are hazy and indistinct.

A PERSONAL PLAN FOR SUCCESS

As we all know, right now business and industry are working at top speed—planning to take advantage of the opportunities that lie ahead for peacetime America. Are you planning, too? Are you, personally, going to be ready to take your place in the coming era? STORY OF INDIAN BOY ARTIST

"SPIN A SILVER DOLLAR," by Alberta Hannum. [Viking, $3.75.]

Reviewed by Will Davidson

If only for the full color reproductions of the paintings by an amazing Indian boy, Beatien Yazz, Mrs. Hannum's report of four years at an Indian trading post would be a book of the year. But the boy's paintings also serve as illustrations for the story, in which he plays a prominent role, and that story is charmingly told.

Alberta Hannum

Mrs. Hannum writes warmly about the experience of Bill and Sally Lippincott in buying an old trading post at Wide Ruins, on the Navaho Indian reservation in northeastern Arizona. They were fresh out of the University of Chicago and had spent the summer doing anthropological work in Canon de Chelly. There they had begun their education in the irresistible appeal of the Arizona Indian country and in the equally magnetic effect of the Navaho personality and custom.

At Wide Ruins the Lippincotts were responsible for two major contributions to art—a revival of the old, beautiful ways of weaving rugs, and the development of the almost miraculous talent of Little No Shirt, as Beatien Yazz was known. They discovered his talent by accident, encouraged it by wise and patient understanding. When the war ended their four year stay in paradise Beatien Yazz had become something of a celebrity, and had achieved an awareness of art that augured well for his future. His present is beautifully demonstrated in the magnificent color illustrations. Mrs. Hannum has written quietly and understandingly, and she extracts in full measure the inherent beauty of Arizona and of the Indian culture.

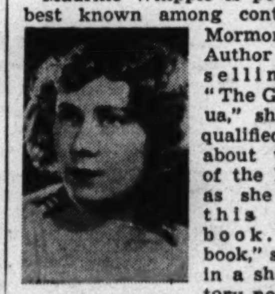
Panorama of Utah's Many Attractions

"THIS IS THE PLACE: UTAH," by Maurine Whipple. [Knopf, $5.]

Reviewed by August Derleth



Maurine Whipple

Maurine Whipple is perhaps the best known among contemporary Mormon writers. Author of a best selling novel, "The Giant Joshua," she is well qualified to write about the Utah of the Mormons, as she does in this attractive book. "This book," she writes in a short prefatory note, "is to serve the reader in the nature of a visit to Zion. When you are a tourist, if you are any good at all, you stop to question every Tom, Dick, and Harry. That's just what I am letting you do in this book—ask questions and get them answered."

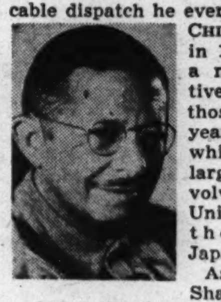
Miss Whipple's plan is good, her principle sound. Her book is an informative, rambling travelog thru Mormon country, past and present, with paragraphs on the natural beauty of Utah as well as on Mormon costumes, something about the Navaho Indians and the gentiles of Utah—all now Americans, without the onetime cleavages. Text has been supplemented by pictures—over a hundred of them, some in full color, and by maps.

Miss Whipple has made no attempt to write a comprehensive book. She has set out quite frankly to give her readers the feeling and the color of Utah, to set down some cogent information about the people of her native state. No quarrel with either her intention or her performance is possible. In "This Is the Place: Utah" she succeeds admirably in doing precisely what she has set out to do; the book leaves you knowing Utah and its people more intimately than ever before.

China Viewed Thru Eyes of Old Hand in Far East

"MY 25 YEARS IN CHINA," by John B. Powell. [Macmillan, $3.50.]

Reviewed by George J. Scharschug



John B. Powell

Mr. Powell, who wrote the first cable dispatch he ever filed for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in 1917, presents a most informative review of those critical years in China which figured so largely in the involvement of the United States in the war with Japan.

As editor of the Shanghai Weekly, published for Americans, correspondent of THE TRIBUNE for 20 years and for other newspapers, this Missouri-bred man writes with experience and of contacts which few, if any, other Americans ever enjoyed. His statements bear the mark of authority because at all times he appears to have followed closely the code of the newspaper man. This is: Seek facts and do not fear to go to the highest sources for information or confirmation.

From the opening chapters to the final one, in which Mr. Powell discusses the future of China, there is lots of meat and much interesting reading. Perhaps no chapters are more vital than those covering the last two years of the first World war and the days of the so-called peace-making and reorientation of world affairs, which followed.

Mr. Powell was in Peking, now again called Peiping, in 1917, when the Japanese presented their second ultimatum to China for acceptance of the 21 demands. He obtained the first story of this ultimatum, which set off a series of incidents, reminiscent, so far as the United States is concerned, of present day developments.

There was the Lansing-Ishii pact, in which the United States recognized the "special position" of Japan in Shantung and Manchuria. To the Chinese this looked like repudiation of President Wilson's 14 points so far as China was concerned.

As revealed later by Robert Lansing, then secretary of state, in his memoirs, this agreement, as well as many later developments were due to the secret diplomatic moves of the allies prior to America's entrance into the war. These moves included secret agreements under which they consented to Japan's permanent control of China's Shanghai's province and the former German islands in the Pacific, which the Japanese had seized at the beginning of the war. The Lansing-Ishii agreement was later abrogated by the senate.

Americans in those days were stirred by Japan's control of the Marshalls, Carolines, and Marianas, which formed a barrier between the United States and the Philippines. Many of them were also upset by Japan's occupation of Shantung, which violated our Chinese Open Door policy.

The agitation led to the naval limitation conference, in which the United States agreed to junk a large part of the fleet, the nine power treaty and Japan's withdrawal of her troops from Shantung and Siberia, but failed to curb Japanese ambitions. This was proved a few years later, when on Sept. 18, 1931, Japan occupied Mukden, Manchuria, which Mr. Powell correctly styles the "real start of World War II."

But the fourth shows how YOU can fit such information into your life—make it work for you—help bring you success and happiness. Here are the four types of reading and what they do:

1. A good daily paper brings you the news of the past twenty-four hours in terse dispatches.
2. A good weekly, like Time or Newsweek, crisply summarizes and interprets the news for you.
3. A good monthly survey, like Reader's Digest, keeps you posted on the important articles in the magazines.
4. A new kind of monthly magazine—YOUR LIFE—helps to solve your personal problems—brings you real inspiration and guidance in solving perplexities of marriage, money, jobs and health.

Each of these types of reading fills for you a very definite need. At the left are the titles of some of the articles that have already appeared in YOUR LIFE. These titles show you, better than anything we could say, the sort of help this unusual magazine is giving to thousands of enthusiastic readers.

These articles are written by top-flight specialists. The names of some of them are given in the panel to the left. Each month writers like these contribute 30 original feature articles. The authors who write for YOUR LIFE know what they are talking about. They say it clearly, frankly, without beating about the bush or pulling punches for the sake of the Mrs. Grundys. Unification of Germany Is Surveyed

"FEDERALISM AND REGIONALISM IN GERMANY: THE DIVISION OF PRUSSIA," by Arnold Brecht. [Oxford University Press. $2.50.]

Reviewed by Dr. Melchior Palyi

The uninspiring title notwithstanding, this is a fine little book, presented on a dignified and elegant plane. The short historical survey of shifting relationships between the federation that was the German reich and its constituent parts is especially instructive.

Bismarck, while keeping the appearance of state sovereignties, concentrated all real power in Prussia. The Weimar republic carried the forced unification a great deal further. The resulting hodge-podge of conflicting administrative setups helped to weaken the young republic. Dr. Brecht, a former high official of the reich and a student of repute, ably summarizes the federation headaches of Weimar, Germany, and the projects to cure them.

How did the Germans try to solve the problems of controling power delegations and subsidy distributions; avoiding the duplication of authorities; combining centralization of power with administrative decentralization; eliminating "inconveniences" due to the extension of federal into state activities? How was Prussia to be divided, to make her bulk less heavy? Such discussions fill the majority of pages.

They are dealt with on the level of bureau organization and executive procedure, minimizing the economic and political issues at the root. However, the administrative technicalities, which the author cultivates with the expert's love for details, are as obsolete as Bismarck's reich. The fundamental fact he neglects is that totalitarians, from Robespierre and Napoleon to Stalin and Hitler, strangle every political autonomy and tolerate federations nominally only.

Why then did a democratic Germany follow the unification path? Was it because of socialistic impulses which loomed so large? How did this process affect the coherence of the republic and its resistance against dictatorship? We learn almost nothing on the vital issue: The affinity between managed economy and burocratic centralization.

What Dr. Brecht offers is a meager attempt, by implication, to give the republican burocracy of the reich a clean bill of health. The real trends of political events slip, so to speak, thru his expert legalistic fingers.

Pleasant Story of Cascade Mountains

"LAST MOUNTAINS: THE STORY OF THE CASCADES," by Robert Ormond Case and Victoria Case. [Doubleday, Doran, $2.75.]

History, natural history, and unnatural history make up the 236 pleasant pages which the Cases have written about the mountains that split Washington and Oregon, as it were, into two worlds. The authors touch on each important point—the shenanigans of the explorers, the hardships of the 1843 migration, the geology of the Cascade range, the legends of the Indians, and the remarkable food hunting habits of the splinter cat. Whether your interest is mankind or mountains, this account of the last range which the Oregon pioneers had to cross is good reading.

LAURENCE T. HERON

A NOVELIST'S VERSION OF A JAP DEFEAT

"CHALLENGE AT CHANGSHA," by Paul Hughes. [Macmillan, $2.50.]

Reviewed by Arno L. Bader

In this novel, Mr. Hughes dramatizes the third battle of Changsha, one of the few outstanding victories of the Chinese over the Japanese in the recent war. "Challenge at Changsha" tells in a broadly panoramic way the story of the Japanese attack and the disastrous retreat that followed, bringing into play a large group of characters, and achieving a kind of epic sweep and movement.

Characters from three racial groups furnish various points of view and a variety of action. Gen. Nakahora leads his 4th Japanese infantry in the hundred mile march against the city and we become acquainted with a cross section of his army—with Col. Nogi, who hates the Chinese and wants to be a painter; with Capt. Suzuki, who has an unhappy fluttering in his stomach when he thinks of death; with Corp. Tanaka, who wants to be a sergeant.

Of the Chinese we meet Ho Yang, a scholarly gentleman of the old school, who quotes Confucius and restrains his patriotic son; farmer Ching and his family; a Chinese Communist; a number of privates in the Chinese army, and two beggar children. The Americans include a missionary, a mission hospital nurse, a Flying Tiger, and a broken down doctor who was once an opium addict.

By means of brief, highlighted moments in the lives of individual characters the story is told. In the heat of conflict old ideas and loyalties collapse in dramatic fashion, and the death thins the cast of characters, the novel ends optimistically on a note of triumph for a united China.

Mr. Hughes writes with a good deal of verve and dramatic sense, and excels at fast-paced narrative. The one thing the novel lacks is complete authenticity; the author's orientals—even a few of his Americans—are not entirely convincing.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

College Life of Sort Not Known to Many People

"VOYAGE OF DISCOVERY," by Barbara Corrigan. [Scribner's, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Maureen Daly

"Voyage of Discovery," tho a first novel by a comparatively young author, reads like the work of a writer who has been on the road a long, long time. Rarely does a book manage to combine so many of the strictly sensational aspects of living into a story that says and means absolutely nothing.

This is the story of 18 year old Cornelia Ross' "voyage" thru four years at Pacific State university, a voyage which left her with more than a few emotional and moral barnacles. It is almost impossible to trace the story except to say that young Cornelia had a passionate run-in with a big man on campus, which taught her nothing, a prolonged affair with the editor of the college magazine, which taught her nothing, and a relationship with an art professor which taunted him into divorcing his wife, but, again—taught Cornelia nothing.

In this four year college story there is one pregnancy, one suicide, one homosexual, and one renegade mother, all set against the supposedly collegiate background of rush week parties, senior dances, and lab lectures.

The author manages a limited amount of photographic writing, but completely without perception or conclusion. The "why" of such a book is always a puzzle but it does prove one thing. A mediocre novel, even when padded with sex, is still a mediocre novel.

Maurice Hindus Tells of Cossacks and History

"THE COSSACKS," by Maurice Hindus. [Doubleday, Doran, $3.]

Reviewed by David J. Dallin

Maurice Hindus

The first parts of this book deal with history of the Cossacks, "warriors, and adventurers, rebels and killers, conquerors and crusaders, martyrs and persecutors." Mr. Hindus pictures the Cossack republics of the former centuries, their wars with Poland and Russia, their uprisings and their final incorporation in the empire of the Tsars. It is a part of the history of Russia ably presented, not as a scientific research, but as a fascinating, vivid narrative. The author relates the Cossacks' role in the Russian civil war and their stubborn resistance to the soviet system up to the middle of the 30s.

The rest of the book, which constitutes two thirds of it, deals with "the Cossack of today" and "the Cossack of tomorrow." Mr. Hindus, who had visited the region of the Don Cossacks in 1936, was there again in the summer of 1944. He saw the devastated villages, the destruction in the cities, and heard a multitude of reports about German atrocities.

The indignation against the invaders was enormous; rebuilding and rehabilitation were the only preoccupation of every Cossack, particularly of every local leader. It will take 15 years, he was told, to reconstruct the great port city of Novorossisk; even the acreage of the sown land cannot reach the prewar figures before 1947.

However, as was the case in his former books on Russia, Hindus' approach to the realities of the present time is a peculiar mixture of uncritical tribute and fatherly benevolence. He presents the Cossacks, who violently opposed the collectivization of agriculture, as now convinced of the benefits of the kolkhozes. He grossly overestimates their standard of living on the eve of the war.

The patriotism of the Cossacks, in his narrative, is higher than that of any other nation. Their loyalty and virtues and love for the regime seem to exceed anything known in other countries. This picture is superficial and unconvincing. The reader is puzzled when in the last chapter he reads about the great number of Cossacks who collaborated with the Germans during the occupation, about a Cossack army which fought with the Germans against the Red Army, and about "hundreds of Cossack girls" who fraternized with the Germans and retreated with them. Mr. Hindus gives no explanation of these facts.

He is similarly superficial and unconvincing in his expectations for the near future. There cannot be any freedom in Russia, he maintains, so long as Russian industry does not reach American levels. Sixty million tons of iron and steel a year is, in his eyes, a precondition of Russia's democratization.

But at least one generation will pass before this can be achieved, if ever. In the meantime, the international consequences of the stubborn adherence to the rigid system of soviet policy may once more destroy the new economic achievements. This is the inevitable, tragic inference from an abundantly optimistic book.

Romance Shattered by Parents of Boy

"THE ROBBED HEART," by Clifton Cuthbert. [Fischer, $2.50.]

The story of an independently wealthy youth who becomes an authority on jazz and a close friend of Harlem musicians, this novel starts out as a study of the racial problem involved in his love for a Negro girl, but ends up by being just another boy-meets-girl-parents-break-up-romance yarn.

Behind the irrefutable aims of the peacemakers are the neccessary compromises, the ambiguities, the elaborate system of checks and balances that make the peace or ultimately wreck it. Paul Mowrer watched the weaving of the peace after World War I, saw it grow and saw it warp and disintegrate. As foreign correspondent of the Chicago Daily News for 30 years in Europe he has had an unparalleled view of power politics in France, in the Balkans and in Africa. Few analysts have had such an opportunity to observe at first hand why that peace failed. Few books could be more timely in a year when we must try again to make the peace stick.

Thackeray Papers Are Made Available to Reading Public

"THE LETTERS AND PRIVATE PAPERS OF WILLIAM MAKEPEACE THACKERAY," collected and edited by Gordon N. Ray. Volume I., 1817-1840; Volume II., 1841-1851. [Harvard University Press, $12.50.]

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

This monumental work, to be compiled in four volumes, is far and away the most important addition that has been made to the basic materials for the study of the English novel in many years. It is more important than the vast collection of Dickens letters published in the "Nonesuch Dickens" in 1938 because it contains a much higher percentage of fresh materials.

As long as they lived, Thackeray's daughters, faithful to their father's supposed wishes, refused to allow biographers access to his private papers; consequently there has never been an authorized biography of Thackeray. I cannot imagine any much better news for serious students of English literature than the fact that his granddaughter, Mrs. Richard Fuller, and her brother, have had the wit to perceive "that Thackeray now belongs to literature rather than to his family."

And the service they have thus rendered the illustrious dead is no less precious than their service to the rest of us; for where the truth is withheld, fantastic rumors always flourish. If the Dickens family had had sense enough to be honest long ago about Dickens' friendship with Ellen Terman, we might have been spared the valuable lucubrations of Thomas Wright, Hugh Kingsmill, Gladys Storey, and Edmund Wilson.

W. M. Thackeray

Tho Mr. Ray's edition contains some 1,600 of Thackeray's letters, 100 letters to and about him, and 19 of his diaries and account books, it is not definitive. The war made it impossible to search the British collections; one American collector, moreover, decided that the time had come to present himself once more in his favorite role, the Dog in the Manger. After he gets out of the navy, Mr. Ray expects to explore the English collections — he also promises us a critical biography; as far as the American collector is concerned, we can only pray for an act of God.

Meanwhile a great treasure-trove is here, and it has been magnificently arranged. I do not mean merely that Mr. Ray has been conscientious to reproduce Thackeray's letters exactly as Thackeray wrote them—tho few great collections of correspondence have had so impeccable an editor; his voluminous annotations and his 173 page introduction have combined to make his volumes one of the richest sources of information we have for the Victorian age.

The portraits distributed thruout the two volumes have been wisely chosen; all the line-drawings Thackeray scattered thru his letters have been retained; and there are whole portfolios of pictures from private sources, some of which will be a revelation to those who know Thackeray's draftsmanship only by bad reproductions in cheaply printed editions of his books.

Fresh light is shed on many aspects of Thackeray's life—his wife's illness, his love for Mrs. Brookfield, his quarrel with Dickens, etc.—and on innumerable passages in his novels. The comparatively brief early works which take up so much space in his collected writings—and are so rarely read—take on a new relevance. Naturally, I cannot go into such things here. For one thing, some of the evidence is in Volumes III. and IV.; neither has a reviewer the time and the space at his disposal for such a job. Today I must content myself with an announcement. A book has been published which illuminates the fading colors of some of the greatest novels in the English language as they have never been illuminated before. You and I belong to a generation that can really read Thackeray!

An Italian Mother

Boy Meets Forest Fires in Montana

"SMOKE JUMPER," by Marjorie Hill Allee. [Houghton Mifflin, $2.]

Older boys and girls who like practical adventure will be both entertained and enlightened as they follow 17 year old Bill Herold thru a summer of fire fighting for the forest service in Montana. Bill's thrill over his first smoke jump from an airplane, carrying with him equipment to control fire, and his meeting with a girl and a bear give him two red letter days. The book is well written, with believable characters and action.

SPUNKY THE DONKEY

LEANDER THE GANDER
by
David and Sharon Stearns
$1.00

64 Pages. Four Colors. Spiral Binding. Ages 3-7.

SPUNKY THE DONKEY was quite proud of his great, long ears—at first. But one day in the market place a man (who himself had big ears) laughed at SPUNKY'S ears. And there was Mr. Snitchkin, too, who made life unhappy for SPUNKY.

LEANDER THE GANDER was a most unhappy goose. And all because of his long, rubbery neck. He wished one day that Sneaker, the black cat, might have his long neck while he, in turn, might have Sneaker's short one. And that's exactly what happened!

writes a magnificent new novel in verse
GLORY FOR ME

Vivid drama and imaginative beauty have made MacKinlay Kantor's earlier novels widely loved. They are intensified in GLORY FOR ME by the use of an easy-flowing verse that adds extra emotional impact to its story. Writing of three men who have come home from war—and the women these men come home to—Kantor has achieved a national epic, a novel time may judge to be even greater than Long Remember.

Minor Greatness Is Found in This Story of Paris

"BUBU OF MONTPARNASSE," by Charles-Louis Phillippe. [Avalon, $2.]

This French novel has a strange effect. It is like wandering thru a gallery and coming upon a picture of a person torn by tragedy, wasted by poverty, and wrecked by an odious and horrible disease. One would not want the picture at home, but it is so real in its plainness that it cannot be forgotten.

The book tells the story of a prostitute, period. It is not prurient. It does not blame. It does not forgive. It does not even understand. It merely describes. But it moves the reader.

That is art, and a kind of minor greatness. The book has survived the test of time. It was published in 1900. This is its first appearance in this country. The author seems almost entirely unknown to our literary critics, tho his reputation on the continent is secure.

In his introduction, T. S. Eliot, the English critic, calls this book a symbol of Paris. There may be more to that statement than meets the eye.

JOHN RANDOLPH

THE LITERARY SPOTLIGHT

by Fanny Butcher

MARGE LYON, whose delightful stories of the Ozarks, "Fresh from the Hills," which you read every Sunday in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and have just been published in book form under the same title, spent last Monday afternoon autographing in the book department of Marshall Field & Co. . . . Statisticians declare that she drew the greatest crowd since Kathleen Winsor autographed "Forever Amber" for a flock of admirers [of her comeliness as well as her literary output] . . . Incidentally, the lush Kathleen was in town the other day, lunching at the Pump room with her marine husband, Lt. Robert John Herwig, and a battery of cameramen surrounded the very photogenic pair.

Marge Lyon has recently moved from Sunrise Mountain farm in the Missouri Ozarks . . . the subject of her first book, which grew out of her contributions to "Front Views and Profiles" in THE TRIBUNE. She has gone to Eureka Springs in the Arkansas Ozarks. Thirty or forty visitors ring her front doorbell every week. . . . Sometimes when she is trying to get some work done she has a moment of resentment at their interrupting at 9 o'clock in the morning, she says, but the resentment always gives way to delight, she says, for, she declares, the kind of people who are interested enough in hills and farms and the simple life of the Ozarks to seek her out always turn out to be wonderful. . . . The callers come from all over the country—readers of her books. . . . She says that her husband, "The Jedge," is probably going to be forced to go into the real estate business since he, too, started to write about the Ozarks. . . . He recently had an article in Coronet magazine, his first literary work, and he has been swamped with inquiries about Ozark farms.

Midland Authors Luncheon

Marge Lyon was one of the homecoming members of the Society of Midland Authors at their first luncheon of the year, which was given in honor of a new member, Marshall Field, author of "Freedom is More than a Word." . . . Robert J. Casey, author of "Battle Below" and "This Is Where I Came In," was to have shared honors with Mr. Field, but Bob Casey was out of town on an assignment. . . . A returning member, Comdr. William Montgomery McGovern, still in his dashing uniform, thrilled his fellow writers with intimate reminiscences of his work in the navy.

Comdr. McGovern made off-the-record vivid thumbnail sketches of the men with whom he had worked and whom he thought the greatest in their special fields. . . . Gen. Eisenhower, Gen. Hildring of the civil affairs division, Gen. [Wild Bill] Donovan, Adm. Nimitz; Adm. Spruance, whom he called a great strategist [and Adm. Halsey a great tactician]. . . . Comdr. McGovern is now at work on his autobiography, "on the publication of which," he said, "I shall probably be court-martialed and shot."

The newly elected president of the Society of Midland Authors, Fay-Cooper Cole, took over the reins of the society from its retiring president, Mary Hastings Bradley, who last June told a thrilled audience about her own exciting war time assignments.

Visiting Writers Introduced

Mr. Cole introduced some visitors, among them Garbin Casey from Australia, whose latest book has the title "It's Harder for Girls." . . . Another visitor was Technical Sgt. Max Shulman, author of a very funny book with the inspired title, "Barefoot Boy with Cheek." . . . Another visitor was Capt. Joe Fromm, an American newspaper man in the Indian army. He was on Gen. Auchinleck's staff. . . . Herald Sherman, who wrote the "Adventures of Mark Twain" for the movies and who is now doing research for the dramatization of the life of Jane Addams for the films, recalled what Miss Addams prophetically said before the first World war, "Until all nations live as a family of nations we cannot hope for peace." . . . Mr. Sherman says that he hopes Chicago is chosen for the capital of the united nations.

The Queen and the Slave Boy...

Here is Gautier's unforgettable story of a young slave who gave his very life for one night of ecstacy . . . just one of the tales, told by the greatest story-tellers of all time, that you'll find in the new book . . .

The BEDSIDE TREASURY OF Love

SUPREME STORIES OF ROMANCE, RAPTURE AND TRAGEDY

CLEOPATRA, the most desirable, the most intriguing woman in the world, the queen of a mighty land, the fabulous beauty whose very smile made men weak, longed for but one thing — the perfect lover — a man who was different from the kings and princes, emperors and generals who had known this breathtaking enchantress.

Tired and bored by her indolent round of sybaritic pleasures, weary of the sycophantic love of great rulers, the bewitching Cleopatra finally found the one man who loved her more than life itself.

He was a simple slave boy, lithe and naked. A poor, ignorant youth who had been caught spying on this enticing queen while she frolicked languidly in her golden bath. And yet he captured the most appealing woman in the universe with three simple words — "I love you."

Theophile Gautier, master of love in the French tongue, describes this night of voluptuous splendor in his moving story, One of Cleopatra's Nights.

Fulton Oursler Sr., Editor of The Reader's Digest: "A selection of stories that provides a feast for the heart."

Baltimore News-Post: "Gems of literature are found in this most entertaining volume."

Isherwood Novel Shocks by Its Force and Shrewdness

"PRATER VIOLET," by Christopher Isherwood. [Random House, $2.]

Reviewed by Paul Engle

In the general run of every season's novels, the books that can be described mildly as promising, amusing, interesting, different, or any of the usual dull words reviewers eat for breakfast with a little sugar, there always comes one which shocks by its direct force and its shrewd writing. Such a book is "Prater Violet." Here is the study of a shy English writer caught by a high-paid job writing for the movies, and his relationship to a brilliant refugee Austrian film director. The director, Bergmann, despises the silly story he is filming, with its phoney prince and its traditional sweet flower girl, but he gives it all his sense of timing, of movement, of pace to make it a popular and entertaining movie. There is the first irony—that out of his sense of outrage at filming so ridiculous a thing in a time of the world's burning, he should yet be able to improve and exploit the limited situations.

"Prater Violet" is not merely the story of two men in the films, it is also a slap at the whole film industry, which gave us, in the years of Europe's cataclysms, when the small democracies were collapsing under fascism, for our favorite characters a little girl and a lifeless dummy.

Christopher Isherwood

In a time of long and puffing novels this book is remarkable for its brevity; only the essential moments are included. The pages move like movie film unrolling. Dialogue bears the burden, with only fragments of narration. And it is excellent dialogue, revealing the subtle differences of character with a clean simplicity.

Isherwood has mocked men and women in "Prater Violet," but he has also given them a solid sympathy. Of going home late at night, away from a crowd of people, he writes: "It was that hour of the night at which man's ego almost sleeps. The sense of identity, of possession, of name and address, and telephone number grows very faint. It was the hour at which man shivers, pulls up his coat collar, and thinks, 'I am a traveler. I have no home.'"

Bergmann was a refugee from the once good world of Vienna, homeless in a rented room he knew he would leave. Isherwood [who calls himself by his own name in the book] is homeless as he lives in his own home with his mother and his brother. His body sleeps there, but he wanders over the roofless earth, as much a refugee as Bergmann. "Mother's boy and the comic foreigner," he bitterly describes the two of them.

At the end, Isherwood realizes that the actual lives he and Bergmann had been leading were "more absurd, more of a caricature, than anything in Prater Violet." Isherwood is left in the south of France with a fine girl he knows he will not go on with, and Bergmann leaves with his rescued family for Hollywood.

Thus are there final successes rich in the sense of coming failure. This is an exceptional book, sharp as a rooster's nails and glittering as his feathers and hoarse as his thin tongue, but with his life and strength and affirmation.

"ROUND-UP IN THE RIVER," by Frank C. Robertson. [Dutton, $2.]

Beg Your Pardon

In last Sunday's book section Paul Engle's review of "Glory for Me," by MacKinlay Kantor, quoted these lines from the book:

She shone
More beautiful, more charged with limpid life
Than all the courtesans of history.

Mr. Engle's comment, "She wasn't a courtesan. She was a nice girl in Des Moines," was mistakenly set in italics, making it read as if it were a part of the quoted verse rather than a reviewer's criticism.

THE TRIBUNE regrets this error.

Our Nation's Blending of All Nations

"A NATION OF NATIONS," by Louis Adamic. [Harper, $3.50.]

By Tremaine McDowell

Louis Adamic

If two books ever cried out to be packaged and sold together, they are "A Nation of Nations," by Louis Adamic, and "One Nation," by Wallace Stegner. And the two should go into every home in the United States, to remain there until our literate citizens master the text of each book and the illiterate absorb the meaning of the superb photographs.

The immediacy of the pictorial report on the status of American minorities, compiled by the staff of "Look," and the urgency in the commentary by Stegner make "One Nation" a terrific and tragic book. "A Nation of Nations" is less spectacular, but no less significant. Where young Stegner concentrates on the present, the older Adamic traces, from colonial times to 1945, the history of 23 of the national and racial groups which make us, in Whitman's phrase, "not merely a nation, but a teeming nation of nations." If Stegner assesses America correctly, it is not and perhaps can never be one nation, but Adamic's Americans are and will continue to be one people.

The thesis of "A Nation of Nations" is that "the pattern of the United States is not essentially Anglo-Saxon altho her language is English. Nor is the pattern Anglo-Saxon with a motley addition of darns and patches. The pattern of America is all of a piece; it is a blend of cultures from many lands. . . . Diversity itself is the pattern."

From well-stored notebooks and filing cases, Adamic assembles a vast collection of data: History, anecdote, quotation, famous names of Americans from France, from Africa, from Mexico, from a score of other lands. Each national group is traced thru the colonial period, the Revolution, the building of the republic, and on to our own century and World War II.

Decoration by Alajalov for "Outside Eden," by Isabel Scott Rorick, which Houghton Mifflin will publish this week.

This well-ordered miscellany is too tremendous to be retained by any one memory, but many items will lodge in the reader's mind and the balance are at least sampled in the extensive index. The whole is enlivened by colorful personalia: Molly Pitcher, for example, was really Mary Heis, the daughter of German immigrants; several units in the Northern armies during the Civil war were all-German and their commands were issued in German; the first off the first boat of the American expeditionary force to Europe in 1942 was the son of German immigrants.

The conclusion of the whole matter is this: "The United States is a new civilization, owing a great deal to the Anglo-Saxon strain, owing much to the other elements in its heritage and growth, owing much to the unique qualities of its land between two oceans, the plenitude of its resources, and the skills which we have brought here or have developed here in the last three centuries."

The exciting story of a great fighter and a great citizen!

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt: "I never thought I would read until 2:30 a.m. about fighting or prize fighters. The story of the man himself is what held me . . . This book will not be of interest to boxing fans alone."

Nat Fleischer, Editor of Ring Magazine: "Will meet with the hearty approval of the most ardent fight fan. This book will occupy a prominent place in my boxing library."

Caswell Adams, King Features Syndicate: "Vastly entertaining."

Congressman A. Clayton Powell: "I read until the wee hours of the morning. Written in such a way that you are never conscious of the writing—only the story. This is a great book." $2.00

BOOKMAN'S HOLIDAY

By Delos Avery

WHAT is the magic or the magnetism which, when a book is opened idly, the mind relaxed and receptive, causes certain words—perhaps in the middle of a page, even the middle of a sentence, after a comma—to come suddenly alive and, clamorous for attention, leap forth to meet and hold the eye?

Eight words hailed this bookman in just that way a few midnights ago, and started one of those reveries which are among the large rewards of literacy. Here they are:

. . . and the glory of Europe is extinguished forever . . .

Old words they were, written 155 years ago when, tho false, they had the tang of truth; and now they have that tang again. Are they false again? I closed the book, but kept a finger in the place because after a bit of musing I wanted to read more, and did.

> . . . and the glory of Europe is extinguished forever. Never, never more shall we behold that generous loyalty to rank and sex, that proud submission, that dignified obedience, that subordination of the heart, which kept alive, even in servitude itself, the spirit of an exalted freedom. The unbought grace of life, the cheap defense of nations, the nurse of manly sentiment and heroic enterprise, is gone! It is gone, that sensibility of principle, that chastity of honor, which felt a stain like a wound, which inspired courage, whilst it mitigated ferocity, which ennobled whatever it touched, and under which vice itself lost half its evil, by losing all its grossness. . . . It subdued the fierceness of pride and power; it obliged sovereigns to submit to the soft collar of social esteem, compelled stern authority to submit to elegance. . . . Now all is to be changed. All the pleasing illusions which made power gentle and obedience liberal, which harmonized the different shades of life, and which, by a bland assimilation incorporated into politics the sentiments which beautify and soften private society, are to be dissolved by this new conquering empire of light and reason. All the decent drapery of life is to be rudely torn off. All the superadded ideas, furnished from the wardrobe of a moral imagination, which the heart owns, and the understanding ratifies, as necessary to cover the defects of our naked, shivering nature, and to raise it to dignity in our own estimation, are to be exploded as a ridiculous, absurd, and antiquated fashion.
> On this scheme of things, a king is but a man, a queen is but a woman; a woman is but an animal, and an animal not of the highest order. All homage paid to the sex in general as such, and without distinct views, is to be regarded as romance and folly. . . . On the scheme of this barbarous philosophy, which is the offspring of cold hearts and muddy understandings, and which is as void of solid wisdom as it is destitute of all taste and elegance, laws are to be supported only by their own terrors, and by the concern which each individual may find in them from his own private speculations, or can spare to them from his own private interests. In the groves of their academy, at the end of every vista, you see nothing but the gallows. Nothing is left which engages the affections on the part of the commonwealth.
> On the principles of this mechanistic philosophy, our institutions can never be embodied, if I may use the expression, in persons; so as to create in us love, veneration, admiration, or attachment. But that sort of reason which banishes the affections is incapable of filling their place. These public affections, combined with manners, are required sometimes as supplements, sometimes as correctives, always as aids to law. . . . There ought to be a system of manners in every nation, which a well formed mind would be disposed to relish. To make us love our country, our country ought to be lovely.

It was in 1790, seven years before his death, that Edmund Burke, saddened by the spectacle of violence, bloodshed, hatred, and revolution in the France which he had loved, wrote the paragraphs quoted above. They are only a small part of what he wrote under the following long title: "Reflections on the Revolution in France and on the Proceedings in Certain Societies in London Relative to that Event: In a Letter Intended To Have Been Sent to a Gentleman in Paris."

We are told that after the letter was written it was "kept back upon prudential considerations,"—connected, no doubt, with the security of the gentleman to whom it was addressed. Later, when the danger was less, it was sent.

"The age of chivalry," Burke mourned, "is gone."

TWO ASPECTS OF PACIFIC WAR

"BIG DISTANCE," by Capt. Donald Hough and Capt. Elliott Arnold. [Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $3.]

"A RIBBON AND A STAR: The Third Marines at Bougainville," by John Monks Jr. and John Falter. [Holt, $2.75.]

Reviewed by Walter Simmons

These two books, written by military men, cover differing aspects of the Pacific war, and do it interestingly and well. Both make a worthwhile contribution to history. Both likewise are a little cursed with the public relationsy touch and scarred with the censor's razor.

Captains Hough and Arnold, slick professionals both, have turned out an expertly written commentary on the work of the 5th and 13th air forces in Gen. MacArthur's areas. A fugitive from the Pacific is happy to read about such old friends as the Jolly Rogers [heavy bomb group], the 49th fighter group [to which Bong, McGuire, and other aces belonged], and the 25th liaison squadron [known as the Guinea Short Lines, a fabulous bunch of youngsters who flew tiny hedgehopper planes]. It would be nice if the authors had thought to include something about the 322d troop carrier wing, too, because it was up there with the top notchers.

"Big Distance" spans the area from Australia to the Philippines with bits of history and good stories, beginning with the five P-400s [export version of the P-39] that first brought air power to Guadalcanal, and ending with the last fiery dive of a Jap plane over Luzon.

Monks, who collaborated on "Brother Rat," has turned out a breezy, slangy, meaty job in his account of the 3d marine regiment on Bougainville. It all makes excellent going until too many generals start wandering around with tears in their eyes, bumping into gyrenes with lumps in their throats. John Falter's illustrations are inspired, and true right down to the ground.

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE TO MEN

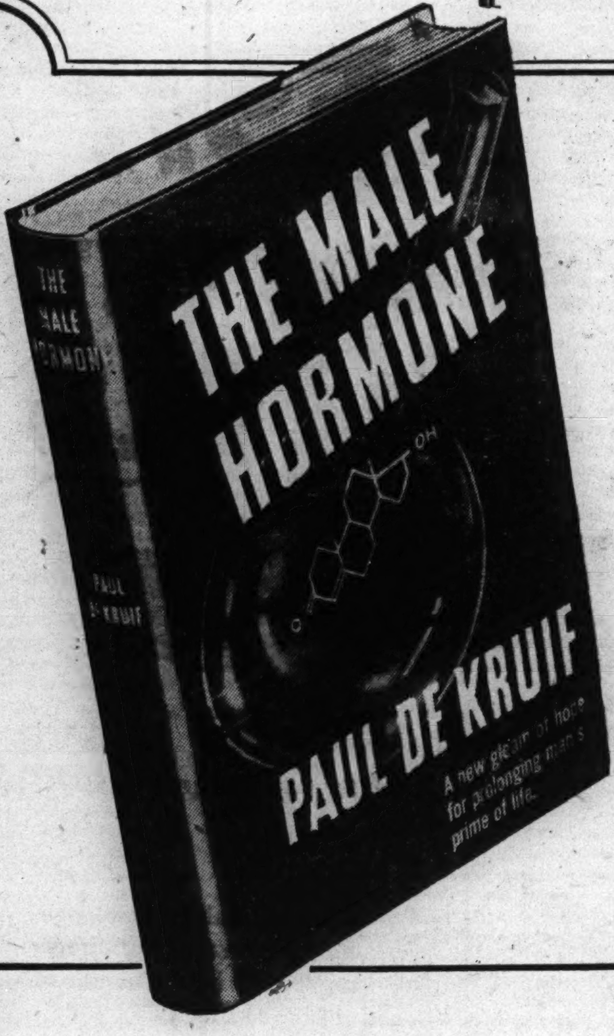
[The Amazing Story of the Male Hormone]



A FEW INTERESTING CASE HISTORIES

Drs. J. E. Howard and S. A. Vest of Johns Hopkins University treated 22 debilitated men with the hormone. All gained weight; their physical vigor and "drive" returned. (Page 107.)

Dr. H. Arndt gave the hormone to 17 men who had various ailments': nervous breakdown, melancholia, blood disease, severe heart pains. In all but one instance remarkable results were produced. (Page 153.)

Dr. G. L. Foss gave the hormone to a debilitated patient. Physical vitality restored after an 18 year lapse. (Page 98.)

Drs. E. P. McCullagh and H. R. Rosmiller treated 6 cases of debilitation with the hormone. Patients became energetic, cheerful human beings. (Page 129.)

Dr. G. Laroche treated men who were severely rheumatic, had arterial disease, suffered intense fatigue after a short working spell. With the male hormone came striking improvement in all cases. (Page 157.)

Dr. M. A. Lesser treated 46 patients who suffered from angina pectoris. Uniformly, the male hormone eased the pains. (Page 168.) These results were confirmed by Dr. L. Hamm (page 170) and by Ohio State University, where 22 out of 23 such cases showed improvement. (Page 171.)

Dr. H. R. Donald gave the hormone to 50 men of middle and old gae; their energy and vitality were renewed. (Page 219.)

Dr. A. Guirdham used the hormone treatment with a 74-year-old man who suffered acute mental depression, inflammation of the pancreas, and hardening of the arteries. The results were astonishing. (Page 178.)

Dr. E. J. O'Brien, whose calf muscles were atrophied and flabby, took hormone treatments. Muscular strength and vigor were renewed. (Page 146.)

Dr. R. J. Douglas raised the total vitality of 58 aging men with the male hormone. (Page 219.)

Dr. W. J. Kearns witnessed the hormone reinvigoration of more than 50 men. (Page 220.)

HAVE you reached the stage of life where your age is beginning to tell? Perhaps you don't like what it is beginning to tell you—of a too sudden loss of energy—of a general feeling of debilitation—of an insidious sapping of the vitality that you so casually took for granted in your younger days.

There is nothing unusual about such middle-age symptoms. Until recently, in fact, science regarded them as inevitable. But now, after years of tireless research, science brings a new gleam of hope to men who face the onrush of advancing years. Now, at last, scientists have captured what only the boldest medical pioneers dared dream about—the male hormone.

What Is the Male Hormone?

The male hormone is a revolutionary medical discovery. For many years scientists suspected that it was the very essence of masculine vigor, that the process of growing old involved a gradual loss of this life-giving substance. So they set out to capture its chemical formula—and to manufacture it synthetically. And finally, after 86 years of failure, they succeeded. Now, at last, the male hormone can be produced in any desired quantity. Now it is available to every man who needs it.

The powers of the male hormone are breath-taking. It raises the total vitality. It can boost muscle power, banish mental fatigue, ease heart pain, restore vigor. Just as chemicals renew worn-out soil, so the male hormone seems to renew to a degree the tissues of aging men.

The Rescue of "Broken Men"

The story behind this discovery is one that will hold you spellbound. You can read all about it in an absorbing new book, entitled THE MALE HORMONE, written by Paul de Kruif, author of Microbe Hunters and Men Against Death. He tells you, in frank and modern language, the dramatic story of the quest for total vitality, of the eventual discovery of the male hormone, of its invigorating effect on burned-out men.

He brings you scores of fascinating, documented case-histories that testify to the power of the male hormone. He shows you how it has restored the vigor of many debilitated men—how it has brought back the "drive" of men supposedly long past their prime—how it has renewed the energy and courage of one man after another. (The panel at the left gives you just an inkling of some of these case-histories.)

Opinions of Doctors. This book is—to quote Dr. H. Liser, Clinical Professor of Medicine at the University of California—"a vibrant, inspiring narrative, scientifically correct and indisputable, yet stranger and more astounding than fiction." And another eminent physician, Dr. William DeKleine, Commissioner of the Michigan Board of Health, says: "It is an adventure in plain speaking . . . a revelation of the living virtues of the male hormone; its powers to transform the waning vitality of men and to prolong their prime of life."

This book is frank, startling, unique. Purely as a human document, it will thrill every adult man or woman. And to men over 35, in particular, it will prove a revelation. If the advancing years now threaten to undermine your vigor, this book will show you new horizons that you never dared even dream about. If you are one of the millions of men who suffer from hormone deficiency, this book holds a promise of renewed vitality and energy.

BAD MEN OF DELIGHT

By FREDERICK R. BECHDOLT

(Copyright: 1945: Frederick R. Bechdolt)

INSTALMENT VI.

THE moonlight and shadows and the silent buildings gave the spot an atmosphere of its own. It was as if it were haunted by memories of bygone activities. Dust-stained travelers, men with revolvers swinging in holsters beside their thighs, booted messengers carrying sawed-off shotguns, a surging crowd of burly miners and a limp figure looking strangely long as it swung from the crossarm overhead. The presence of violence and of bold lives, long since departed, seemed so vivid that these two young moderns found themselves hushing their voices. So it came that their presence here was unsuspected by another modern who was waiting behind a shuttered window within arm's reach of where they stood.

Out in the road the moon's subdued radiance seemed stronger than it was, and when they reached the shadow of the building across the way the darkness seemed dense. It was a long, low shed. Its three walls were of stone and its open side was facing the former street. Harvey's eyes were so slow in adjusting themselves to the contrast of the gloom here that he had lighted a match to look within before he discovered that this end of the shed had recently been enclosed by walls of new, unpainted boards and that the door which he faced was padlocked. The tiny flame revealed the larger space which remained open, and, as they stepped before it there was a rush of air. A swarm of bats flew past them and the match went out. He waited until the fluttering of wings had ceased and struck another.

The stage was standing within. It was one of those old Concords which the Butterfield line had brought into the southwest soon after the Civil war, and later companies had used during the next 20 years. It was facing the street and its long pole was slanting upward, supported by a loop of rawhide which hung from the eaves. The wooden hubs of its wheels were cracked. Its closed body rested on a cradle of thick leather straps instead of springs.

"Years ago when I was a kid," Harvey said, "the town held a Fourth of July celebration. The mines were getting out a lot of ore then and things were booming. They had a long parade with six horses pulling this stage at its head, and a bunch of school girls dressed in white for passengers."

He lighted a third match and Barbara followed him into the shed; he opened the door of the old coach. "My uncle told me that there's a hole in the back seat cushion where the road agent that they lynched turned loose a load of buckshot. Want to see it?"

By way of answer she was climbing in before he finished. He seated himself beside her and the match burned out.

"Last one I've got," he announced. "I reckon we'll have to take my uncle's word for that scar." They settled down on the stiff cushions where passengers had borne the discomfort of rutted dirt roads, and for a few moments the only sound was the faint whisper of wings as an occasional bat returned to its roost in the rafters. Then the stillness was interrupted.

"What's that?" The voice came from the old street. It was a harsh deep bass. A man shot past the stone wall. He halted abruptly in front of the shed. He stood there peering into the darkness, a small man, and his slightness was out of proportion to his big voice. He was crouching as if he was about to leap. One of his arms was extended and the hand rested on the end of the shed wall. The other arm was bent. The elbow was pressing his ribs and the clenched hand looked as white as paper in the moonlight. Its fingers were wrapped around the butt of an automatic pistol.

The moon was well up now and its radiance revealed the pale lines on his pin stripe suit, a fleck of colored feather in his hat band, the gray streaks in his sleek dark hair and a network of wrinkles which made his face look prematurely old. He was turning his head from side to side and he was swinging the muzzle of the weapon in perfect time with the movement as he searched the darkness before him.

Harvey drew Barbara closer to him, he pressed his lips to her ear and whispered, "Sit tight."

He laid his hand on the latch of the coach door and watched the face out there in the moonlight. He had seen its like in cities but it did not belong here. If he had been alone then he would have announced his presence, but the fear which he read in those squirming lines were more alarming than the leveled pistol. He was still hesitating when he heard footfalls and another voice.

"That is bats, Jimmy. The place is lousy with them. Put up your rod and quit squawking."

The little man was backing away from the shed front. He was tucking the weapon into his breast holster. A third voice said:

"Relax. We don't want to wake up the whole town."

Three more men appeared and, like the one who had preceded them, they were marked by their garb as city dwellers. The quartette gathered in a tight huddle and, from the murmur of their voices, one emerged. "This is the place, but where's Leola?"

"If you ask me," it was Jimmy's harsh bass, "I do not go for this place one little bit."

The dark wall of the Stage station across the way was slitted by a narrow oblong of orange lamplight; the slight sound of a closing door followed and the wall became black again. Harvey sucked in his breath sharply as he recognized the woman who was approaching the group in the front of the shed. Her dark blue slacks were badly wrinkled but her makeup was as vivid as it had been when he saw her that afternoon. The huddle dissolved and the four men turned to face her.

"Have you got him?" the man called Jimmy barked.

"Sure." She laughed softly. "I have got him wrapped in oiled paper and tied up for you." Her voice sharpened. "Why did you think I sent for you? And why didn't you bring a brass band along while you were at it? I could hear you gabbling clear across the road with the windows tight shut."

Her figure merged among the others and the huddle tightened again. So for a few minutes and they were talking so quietly that the listeners in the stage coach got nothing but a murmur. Then the group dissolved once more and its members started toward the shed. They halted before it just as Harvey was beginning to think that he and Barbara were about to be discovered.

"This guy Martin that you are working with," one of the men demanded, "Who is he, Leola?" And Jimmy's misplaced bass followed.

"What is his take?"

"It goes two ways," Leola said, "and he gets half. We split the rest. He earned his while you four were at the state road camp. He wanted his own men to handle this and you wouldn't have gotten a thin dime if I hadn't put up a big talk for old time's sake. Now are you satisfied?"

There was a moment of silence, then some one said, "Okay." And she went on:

"He located Henderson's getaway car. It's inside there. All we've got to do is keep a man on watch when we go up the hill."

They were turning away and Harvey thrust his head thru the open window of the old stage coach. He watched them crossing the street. He saw the streak of lamplight as they filed into the doorway of the long stone building. The last black figure detached itself from the line and returned to the shed.

It was the small man with the heavy bass voice. He stood for a few moments looking into the darkness and then he entered the shed and lighted a match.

The flame of the match wavered and the shadows stirred as if they were alive, sometimes they crept as high as the little man's waist. He had turned his back on the old coach. His slight body looked as if some magician had wrought the illusion of cutting it in two, leaving the upper half suspended in midair. There were wide cracks between the pine boards which shut off the enclosed portion of the shed. He was holding the match above his head and he was trying to get a look at the car on the other side of the rough partition.

The flame was eating down close to his fingertips and he swore hoarsely. He dropped the match and he was turning around before he caught the faint rasp of the rusty latch. The door of the old stage coach missed him by a few inches as it swung open. He thrust his hand beneath his coat and he was jerking his pistol from the breast holster.

Harvey was diving out of the coach and his fingers were closing on the little man's wrist before his feet had grounded. His right forearm shot out and the little man's head snapped back so violently that the hat with the fleck of colored feather in its band fell off.

Harvey said, "If you don't drop it, I'll break your arm." The gun thudded on the beaten earth. "Okay, Barbara, pick it up and let's get going."

She was beside him when they came out into the open space which had been a street, and the little man was one step ahead. Harvey was still bending his right arm behind his back and he was stepping high. The black wall across the way was cleft by a streak of yellow light. The prisoner whimpered as the pressure tightened on the bent arm. The streak of lamplight widened to the full width of the doorway and the figure of a man appeared within it. The three of them stood motionless. So for a half minute. Then the door banged shut, the wall was black again and they went on. Excepting for the slight sound of their footfalls the silence of the night was undisturbed until they reached the by-street where they had parked the car.

The pair of drunkards had returned to it and they were sitting on the running board. They had fallen into argument again and they had picked the oldest subject of contention in the world. For some reason, unknown probably even unto themselves, they chose the language of their adopted land for the exposition of their diverse opinions.

"Break it up, you two. Vamos!" The pair rose unsteadily and lurched off into the shadows. Harvey released his hold on the little man's arm. "And you," he said, "you can go, too."

The prisoner turned and confronted him for a moment. There was a malevolence in his face which was so out of keeping with his smallness that it would have been comical if it had not been frightening. He had not said a word since he had been seized, and he went away in silence.

"This town," Harvey growled when he and Barbara had gotten into the car, "used to be a quiet place where you could find a little peace." But Barbara knew what was on his mind. She said:

"Don't go so darned protective. I'm not used to being shielded from the facts that way. He had you scared, and you know it."

Harvey grinned. "Because he was so badly scared himself. There's no one as dangerous as a frightened man when he starts waving a gun around."

"And the rest of them have got you worried," she went on. "Who are they?"

"I wouldn't know, sweet." He slipped his arm around her.

"I saw that woman at the railroad station," she persisted. "She rode over here on the same stage with me."

"She's the one who said a man was trying to drown you, and disappeared right afterward," he acknowledged. "She doesn't belong out here in the sticks, and neither do these four jailbirds who were with her. But I can't figure what they would be up to. Chances are, it doesn't amount to anything."

"So I'm to be a good girl and forget it?"

"For the time being," he said. "I've got this evening—which is nearly over—and tomorrow. After that, maybe you're leaving. And, as far as this bunch is concerned, there's no one here to investigate them anyway, excepting our town marshal. He came out west for his arthritis, and he was runner up for the National Lawn Mowing championship back in 1910. Just to relieve your mind—and my conscience—I'm aiming to let the sheriff's office know about them. And now, let's relax."

This they proceeded to do, and it was several minutes before either of them spoke again. Then Barbara asked:

"When do you get your orders, dear?"

"They're due any day now," he told her.

"You're going back overseas?" she murmured.

"I've got to sew a sergeant's chevrons on my blouse before I report for duty, and they told me I'm likely to go back to my old outfit with a bunch of replacements."

There was another interval of silence and it was longer than the first. And this time he was the one to break it:

"You'll wait for me?"

"You know I will," she promised.

It was nearly an hour after the murder of Martin when they returned to the Antelope Mesa Stage station.

At the moment, the man called Vilas was sitting in his locked room. He was still wearing the grease-stained work clothes of a mechanic and he was awaiting the time when he would make another change. And if Bill Pope had remotely suspected the nature of that next disguise, he would have lost such slight faith in human nature as he possessed. For, besides the garment which Pope was then wearing, it included a long white false moustache which a Hollywood costumer had supplied two years before.

Bill Pope was sitting in a darkened guest cabin. Its number was 14 and it was supposed to be unoccupied. He had drawn his chair to a rear window which commanded a clear view of cabin 16's front door. He was not a man of nerves and for him chivalry was a word which held no meaning. But he was fidgeting while he watched the path out there in the moonlight.

If he had ever owned a conscience, the cold-blooded processes of gaining the confidence of strangers and steering them to backroom crap games had extinguished it years ago. But his slow wits were being bothered by a riddle. There was something wrong with this business tonight. Why it was, he couldn't understand, but the prospective victim didn't seem to fit into the picture. Once the possibility occurred to him that if there had been some mistake, he might have made it. The idea left him sweating.

The Apache porter and man-of-all work who had pinned the DO NOT DISTURB sign on the portieres for Harvey earlier in the evening was enjoying the cool on a bench beside the entrance when the car arrived with the two lovers, and Barbara pressed Harvey's arm.

"He looks as if he'd stepped out of one of those old Remington drawings," she whispered. Harvey chuckled:

"His name is William Wash and he's a friend of mine. When the company opened this place, he was working as a laborer and some brass hat got a look at that face of his. The management offered him a steady job provided he'd put on boot moccasins and wear his shirt outside his pants, with his hair long and a brow band. He wouldn't listen to it until they gave him a written contract and upped their offer by $50 a month."

"He's the nearest thing to perfect I've seen since I came here," Barbara said. "All he lacks is a bow and arrow and a lance."

"He's a good guy," Harvey told her. "And he's a lot more civilized than some of the guests that pay him a dollar to get a snapshot of him. First time I ran across him was six years ago. I wasn't of age then and so I couldn't wear a star, but I was driving Sheriff Doty's car. Bill, here, had hooked up with a Yaqui from down in Sonora by the name of Jack and he was making pretty good side money, running tequila across the line.

"The sheriff and I bumped into their pack train in Skull Canyon one night. It was my first time under fire and it was a pretty good fight, but the only casualties were me and a dead burro. A slug grazed one of my ribs and I didn't even know I'd been hit until it was all over. The Indians got away all right, and a month or so later a deputy arrested Bill down near Naco, but they couldn't hang anything definite on him. So the district attorney called me in and wanted me to identify Bill as one of the men we had tangled with in that fight. He said he could get a conviction for assault with a deadly weapon, which meant anywhere from two to 10 years in prison. Naturally I balked. The way I looked at it, that was between Bill and me. Sheriff Doty's an old cowman and it sort of made a hit with him. And Bill thinks I'm the cat's whiskers."

It had been a long day and a heavy one with Barbara but she dallied to remind him that the Apache porter wasn't the only one who held him in high esteem. And after that William Wash watched them kissing each other good night. He was a man of domestic tastes and he had a sizable family, including three sons who were overseas. It was with unqualified approval that he noted the duration of that kiss.

Harvey watched Barbara into the lounge. When she had disappeared he turned his car and started back toward town. It was, as he had told her, his intention to notify the sheriff of the woman and the four men at the old stage station. Now that Barbara was gone and his time had ceased to be so precious, it occurred to him that perhaps he could pick up some more information concerning them before he made his report.

There were more than a dozen persons in the lounge when Barbara went thru, and most of them were at the other end of the long room. They were clustered around the manager, who was doing his stuff as public relations man. He had a good line. He had acquired most of it from newspaper stories about Bill Pope's Castle, and his audience was listening attentively to a description of the rich furnishings which the man who had killed Brazos was reputed to have gathered from far places.

Barbara was obliged to wait at the counter for the key to her cabin until William Wash happened to glance around thru the open doorway and caught sight of her. The memory of her parting with Harvey was fresh, and she was in the exalted state which lovers attain when they have learned the depth of their emotions for the first time.

She went out of the lounge and started up the path which led to cabin 16. William Wash resumed his seat beside the front door. The manager was returning to the desk.

Several minutes later Bill Pope saw Barbara from the rear window of cabin 14. He waited until she had passed. Then he rose from his chair and went to the wall telephone.

William Wash was thinking it was about time to knock off and go home to his wife when he heard the buzzing of the switchboard which was connected with the guest quarters. The manager was answering the call. His voice held a disturbed note which did not escape the listener. He said:

"Cabin 16?" And William Wash sat bolt upright. "Something wrong, you say?" There wasn't doubt about the manager's feelings. He was alarmed. There was a brief silence. The manager said:

"I'll come at once." And William Wash sprang to his feet.

What Has Gone Before

Barbara Curry is herding sheep in the Utah uplands, struggling to prevent foreclosure of the ranch her father left her. A stranger, a soldier on leave, brings news that she has a benefactor who arranged with him to open an account for her at the local bank. She is to visit Delight to meet her benefactor. About to board a stage for Delight, she is thrilled to have pointed out to her a famous western character, Bill Pope. Bill is sitting in a chauffeur-driven sedan beside a man in a wheel chair. The man recognizes a woman wearing blue slacks and about to enter the stage and orders Pope to follow her and get rid of her. A flash flood engulfs the stage. Pope mistakes Barbara for the woman and attempts to drown her. Harvey Furlong, the stranger, rescues her. As he shows her the town a bullet barely misses her. Pope explains the bullet as a Mexican's careless shot. Harvey arranges for Barbara to stay at the stage station and meet Jim Curry, Barbara's grandfather, formerly known as Brazos. Pope reports to Vilas at the big house on the ridge. An invalid only in public, Vilas follows Martin, his chauffeur. He overhears Leola Burke tell Martin that she and other victims of Vilas are going to seize his fortune. Vilas kills Martin and, believing he is implicating Leola, puts the body in Barbara's cabin.

Patriotic Club Plans a Dinner on Wednesday

By Irene Steyskal

Thanksgiving week brings its Colonial memories. Shades of the gray kirtled goodwives of Plymouth village and the black frocked Pilgrim fathers throng many a Chicago gathering where sons and daughters of these later generations congregate to read a page in American history and renew faith with their forebears.

Wednesday night, the eve of Thanksgiving, will find Illinois members of the Society of Mayflower Decendents gathered with guests in the Blackstone hotel at their 49th banquet. The annual dinner commemorates the anniversary of the signing of the Mayflower compact, that sturdy document which laid the foundation for a country and its Constitution.

Presiding will be the Rev. William Brewster Stoskopf, pastor of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension here. Dr. Stoskopf is governor of the society in Illinois.

The guest speaker for the occasion will be Charles P. Megan, past president of the Chicago Bar association. "Something the Mayflower Brought" will be the title of his talk.

Among officers of the society who plan to attend the banquet are Dean Lake Traxler, deputy governor; the Rev. Walter Pond, secretary; Mrs. Seymour Morris, assistant secretary, whose late husband was one of the founders of the Illinois organization in 1897; John Albert Dawson, the "captain" of the executive group; William McPherson, historian; Dr. Howard Lyle Simmons, the "surgeon," and Maj. Waldo M. Allen, the treasurer.

When Fort Checaugou chapter of the Daughters of American Colonists gathers Saturday morning in the Republic building for a Thanksgiving week meeting, Mrs. Edward G. Snodgrass, who organized the unit 16 years ago, will recount for the members one of her favorite stories, "The Tale of Plymouth Rock."

Mrs. Snodgrass' family wrote its pioneering chapter in Chicago history as well as its earlier page in the Pilgrims' story. Her father was Luther Ensign Race, the first credited teacher in the Austin district. It is for him that Race avenue is named.

Sharing the program at the Checaugou chapter gathering will be Mrs. Ralph Nims, who will talk on "Early Schools." It is recalled that the little schoolhouse in which Schoolmaster Race taught still stands in that community, moved from its original site on Pine st. to Waller av.

Mrs. Francis E. Thornton has arranged the program. Miss Mary Holden, regent of the chapter, will preside.

Chicago writing and book groups, with a happy faculty for providing members and guests with crumpets and cream—and even, upon occasion, with cocktails—at their intellectual feasts, have several literary teas and luncheons planned for the week. Today the local branch of the Catholic Poetry Society of America is gathering its members and friends in the Woman's City club suite in the Fine Arts building for tea and the poetry of Charles Péguy.

The meeting is a starred event on the group's calendar, for the lecture on Péguy and his work will be given by Prof. Frank O'Malley of the University of Notre Dame. Prof. O'Malley's verse and articles are well known to readers of such Catholic publications as the Commonweal.

Miss Nora Cawley will preside at the party, and Miss Mary Catherine Brennan will be in charge of the program. The reception committee will include Miss Alberta Finan, Miss Catherine Ferrell, the Rev. Jeremiah Lehane, chaplain of the society, and Dr. Alexander Pope.

Another party today is the silver tea benefit of the Friends of Literature, which will have the South of the Border setting of Mrs. M. L. Jex's Mexican rooms in her home at 5951 W. Midway pk. Mrs. Jex is the group's vice president and program chairman. An enthusiastic admirer of Mexican arts and crafts, she has

Miss Blanche Hoyt, her sister, Mrs. William T. Bacon Jr., and Mrs. Robert W. Goes (left to right) will be wearing their gayest evening frocks Wednesday night to attend the Chicago Junior League's benefit "Chicago and Southern Ball" at 10 p. m. in the Continental hotel. The party is being given on Thanksgiving eve, the traditional date of the Bachelors and Benedicts parties, which were discontinued during the war years.

Advertising Women Plan Dinner Meet

The 28th anniversary dinner of the Women's Advertising Club of Chicago, set for Tuesday night in the Gold room of the Congress hotel, will bring as guest speaker Mrs. Wilma Libman Bell of New York, promotion director of Mademoiselle magazine. Immediately preceding the dinner, a cocktail party will be given for the speaker by her magazine staff and the women advertising executives of Chicago.

Mrs. Bell will dicuss newest style trends, evaluating the Parisian and other influences in the world fashion picture and the part the Chicago market can play in American fashions. The program was arranged by Mrs. Beulah Carney. Miss Marion Schmidt, who heads the club, will preside.

Another business women's dinner gathering scheduled for Tuesday night is the joint assembly of Chicago chapters of the American Society of Women Accountants and of the American Woman's Society of Certified Public Accountants, to be held in Martin's restaurant, 120 S. La Salle st. Miss Gertrude M. Coogan, financial and economic analyst, will speak.

Miss Laura Loeffler, chapter president of the American Society of Women Accountants, will conduct the meeting which was arranged under the direction of Mrs. Valerie Yudell and Mrs. Grace Keats. Program chairman is Miss Bess Roth.

Tuesday night also will find the La Salle st. Women gathering for a dinner program in Harding's Presidential grill, 109 W. Madison st. This group will hear John W. Newey of the United Air Lines give his views on "What Is Behind and Ahead in Air Transportation."

Jewish Big Sisters Plan Program Meet Tuesday

Following a business session and dessert luncheon at 1 o'clock Tuesday in the Standard club, the Jewish Big Sisters will view a presentation of the play "Short Wait Between Trains" by Ruth Moore. Mrs. Samuel S. Hollender is president of the girl guidance organization.

Mrs. Ralph Ellis has been busy in the league's benefit office, helping with the hundreds of details necessary to insure that Wednesday night's benefit will be a smoothly running one. She recently has taken up figure skating, for which her ermine hat and muff would be de luxe accessories.

Mrs. William Dunshee, a provisional member of the league, and the other young women in that group all are assisting with plans for the ball. It will be the league's first benefit party since 1939.

Mrs. Emma H., Superior, Wis.—Boil a few tart apples in a slightly discolored aluminum kettle or some such acid as sour milk or buttermilk. Then wash well in hot soapy water and chances are the slight discoloration will have vanished.

Kitty H., Chicago—Grease stains under new wallpaper are dangerous as they can spot it. We papered our own walls last summer and we sealed some old, hard to remove grease stains with aluminum paint. Shellac would have done as well.

Mrs. Ed B., Detroit, Mich.—If piano keys have suffered a slight surface discoloration and turned a bit yellowish, I wipe them with a paste made of alchohol and powdered chalk.

Mrs. H. K., Springfield, O.—In winter, after I have washed my windows I wipe them on the inside with a cloth which I have moistened lightly with glycerine. This keeps them from "steaming" so easily, and often rids them entirely of any condensation.

Chicagoans Honor British Air Marshal

By Thalia

To celebrate the 25th anniversary of the founding of the English Speaking Union on Tuesday evening the Chicago chapter gathered for dinner, 300 strong. Most of them had arrived an hour previously for the scheduled reception in honor of the evening's guests of honor, Air Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder and his wife, but that wild weather which was notable even in Chicago's eccentric weather diary had not entirely calmed down and the Tedders' plane was grounded. They missed the reception but reached the dinner, to the delight of every one, for Marshal Tedder proved to be a memorable person, a man of forceful simplicity and irresistible Scotch charm.

In one sense his very presence was a personification of the ideals of the English Speaking Union, "to draw together in the bond of comradeship the English speaking peoples of the world," for Marshal Tedder, as second in command in the great European theater of war, worked harmoniously, intimately, and brilliantly successfully with Gen. Eisenhower.

Much of his delightful and informal talk was devoted to "Ike" as he called him, whom he characterized as "a great gentleman, a great commander, and a great leader able to handle prima donnas." No one could have done the job but "Ike," Marshal Tedder declared. "He had patience, understanding, and decision."

The extremely attractive wife of the air marshal wore the uniform which has endeared her to so many thousand young flyers whom she greeted and cared for between their bombing missions as head of the Malcolm club of the R. A. F. where she worked indefatigably during the war.

The friendly informal note of the evening was struck when James Forgan, who presided, quipped about the extremely slow service in the crowded Florentine room, "The waiters, both of them, are doing the best they can." "Certainly the Tedders can't go back to England thinking we're waited on hand and foot" another guest observed after the marshal had vainly signalled three times that he would like a glass of water. Chauncey McCormick leaped into that breach by taking up the pitcher of water from the table where he and Mrs. McCormick were seated with Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bradley and others.

Mr. Forgan pointed out that the interest of original members of the English Speaking Union had not flagged with the passing of the years, and named among the charter members of the union in the evening's audience Mrs. John Crerar, the evening's official hostess, Mrs. George Cook Adams, Miss Naomi Donnelley, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Ernest Reckitt, and Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell.

At the speaker's table, perennially beautiful, was Gladys High Burney, [Lady Burney] back from England for the first time since the war began. She is visiting her mother, Mrs. Henry High. I shall never forget the picture that she made the evening of the great Victory ball which the Arts club gave at the old Palmer House at the end of the ironically named "last" World war. There was a brilliant pageant of the allies. Ours was the French group.

The beautiful black haired "Bobsy" Fuller, Goodspeed [Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed] who was one of Tuesday evening's guests, was the majestic capped spirit of France. Sheathed in shining armor from her exquisite golden head to her tiny feet, Gladys High was an artist's dream of Joan of Arc. She married soon after that and went to England to live and take a permanent place in English society.

Among the old friends whom she greeted on Tuesday evening was ex-Maj. Graham Aldis whom she had last seen in England, and who with Mrs. Aldis was gleefully celebrating his civilian status. Also greeting old Chicago friends was Maj. William Fellowes who started his army career as a private and has been

Fresh from the Hills . . . . By Marge of Sunrise Mountain Farm . . . . Woman Preacher

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

WATERCRESS green as spring willows grew in the bubbling mountain creek thru which Wayne Moore sloshed his battered flivver. Wayne is Ma Moore's husband and both he and his flivver have to be able to take what comes in the way of roads, for Ma is an Arkansas circuit rider, ordained in the Congregational church. It was the fourth Sunday of the month and Ma had four meetings scheduled for that day: morning service at the Union Y, at Beckwith Sunday school in the afternoon, and by early candlelight she must be back at Olvey, where the Moores have their modest cottage, to preside at young people's meeting and then preach in the little white community church. That is the pattern of Ma's Sundays, for each preaching day is filled with engagements. I was bouncing around in the back seat for I had come over from Eureka Springs to spend the day with the Moores, arriving just in time to see Wayne load a big white picnic hamper and a jar of ice cubes into the back end of the car. Ma had explained:

"After we got home last night, Wayne wrung the neck of that big old white rooster that was eating his head off out there in the pen. And this morning I got up early and fried him and made an apple pie and some potato salad. We'll need a lunch between services."

It was too late to remonstrate that a minister, facing four services and many miles of hill driving, shouldn't double in the kitchen, and anyway Ma had no time for talk. She was hurrying into the bedroom to get into her good blue preaching dress. I looked about the neat little cottage in which Wayne [who works at a furniture store in Harrison] has shelves and nooks for Ma's home grown circulating library. I was puzzled by the low ceiling of the living room, but after a moment discovered that it was not a ceiling at all. It was a quilt stretched on quilting frames that had been drawn up overhead by means of cords attached to staples driven into the boards of the ceiling.

"That's a friendship quilt," called Ma from the bedroom. "It is being made by the women of one of the churches where I preach. Climb up on a chair and you'll see how they have put a family name in the center square of each block, then the names of the parents and all the children are embroidered on other pieces." Obediently, I climbed on a chair to peer over the edge of the frame at the bright scraps and gaily embroidered names. Then when Wayne had brushed his good hat, we were off to our first service.

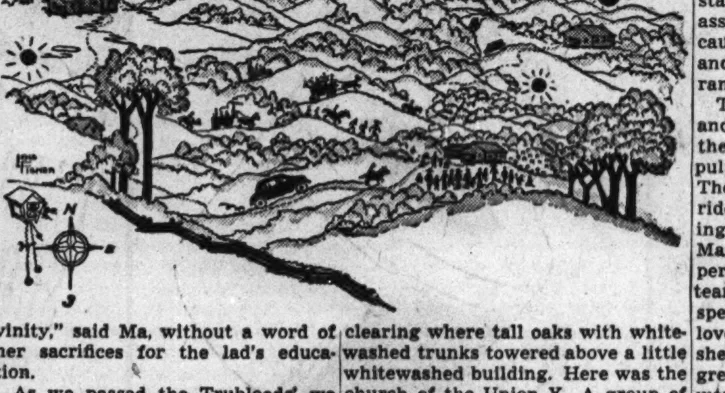
Ma didn't save her voice as we joggled over the narrow rocky roads with flaming sumac and golden hickory lining the way. She pointed to the tiny cabin from which she had taken a lad of almost 13, after their own son had married and gone away. Only Ma Moore could have seen the good in that rugged young individualist, for already he used his share of the family 'eatin' tobacco' which lay on a dresser in that cabin, smoked cigarets, and went on weekend sprees with wildcat likker. Ma began the boy's education by teaching him how to brush his teeth and assuring him that a bath is more than a dunk in the crick on a hot day. From her purse, as we rode along, Ma drew a recent photograph of that beloved foster son, and I saw a handsome young man with deepset thoughtful eyes and a determined chin standing beside a beautiful young bride.

"He was married just after he received his master's degree in divinity," said Ma, without a word of her sacrifices for the lad's education.



As we passed the Trubloods' we saw that middle-aged couple sitting on the front porch looking up the road. We stopped and asked them to go to church with us, but they declined without explanation. None was needed. The war is over now and the Trubloods are living for the return of their two sons, who have been overseas three years. When those boys come down that mountain road, whatever the hour, they will find their father, mother, and Teddy, the big old shepherd dog, waiting for them.

Beyond the Trubloods' the road became rougher. At last it narrowed to a trail thru the woods, eventually meeting another in a broad Y near a clearing where tall oaks with whitewashed trunks towered above a little whitewashed building. Here was the church of the Union Y. A group of men, in clean Sunday clothes, lounged around the trucks outside, while inside women and girls in bright print dresses bustled about, sweeping and dusting. Low unpainted benches stood in three rows with a woodburning box stove in the middle. At the front of the room a taller unpainted table, with boxed-in sides stood ready for the preacher's Bible. Walls and ceilings were lined with untreated pine planks, warm and golden in hue.

Ma Moore was greeted with affection by every one and soon the meeting began. We sang from song books printed with old time shaped notes, triangular do, half-moon re, diamond mi, pennant fa, round sol, and so on thru the scale. In the absence of a musical instrument, the song leader, a tall, broad shouldered man of middle age, gave out with an experimental do-me-sol-do as a prelude to each song. Then he would hit the starting note with such force and assurance that the congregation was caught up in the spell of the song and swept along until the woods rang with music.

The song service over, Ma rose and began to preach. Altho it was the first time I had heard her in the pulpit she seemed strangely familiar. Then I realized that this circuit rider of Arkansas is a living, breathing, chuckling duplicate of the late Marie Dressler. In size, in vibrant personality, in the ability to bring tears or laughter or hold an audience spellbound, Ma Moore is another beloved "Tugboat Annie." No wonder she has long been a leader of congregations in this region where a woman's place is supposed to be the home!

Some of the trials of those years were hinted at in her sermon, for Ma's text was the verse that begins: "Blessed are the peacemakers." Ma is definitely not the sort of peacemaker that turns the other cheek, and I found myself wishing that Gen. MacArthur might have been with us in that little whitewashed church. He would have liked Ma, too!

When the sermon and the handshakings had ended, and we had declined the dinner invitations of a half dozen families, Ma lifted her Bible from the tall table and gave its place to the white hamper which Wayne brought in from the car. "Food for the body, as well as food for the soul," I murmured, watching Ma spread thick slices of her homemade "light bread" with golden butter and cut the warm apple pie into wide triangles. We ate unhurriedly, and then Wayne got the flivver under way and we were off to the next preaching.

After many miles of back country roads, we found trucks, horseback riders, and wagons coming up from the woods trails and lining up with us on the rough road. The wagon, by actual count, held 10. "Coming to church!" said Ma, proudly. Soon we came in sight of a sturdy four-square building standing across the road from a grass grown cemetery. While we waited for the congregation to catch up on its week's visiting, Ma and I wandered thru that country graveyard and she told me tales of the people who lay beneath those headstones, of women who had borne such quaint names as Walsa and Biancy, and of little Allan Ray, whom Ma had loved. At the age of 11, little Allan Ray had sat on a railroad track, so engrossed with the talk of a spell-binding orator that he never heard the frate train which bore down on him and cut off both his slim little legs. Ma preached that funeral sermon as she has preached hundreds of others, and the great heart of her understood when the lad's father asked that the coffin be opened just before it was put into the grave. Ma held the crowd singing while the man knelt and tremblingly felt inside the coffin for those small feet, and only she heard when he arose, breathing a deep sigh, and said:

"I feel better, knowin' that all of Allan Ray is in the box."

Ma told, too, of the times when, like many mountain preachers, she has been obliged to prepare a body for burial, and how her hands have helped other patient, careful fingers line a homemade coffin with cotton and lace edging to make a last resting place for a body that had known little softness in its mortal days.

"I've married 'em and I've buried 'em," said Ma. "I've been coming to this church so long that many of the young folks I baptized in their school days now come here with children of their own. My children, I call them."

Ma's children were out in full force. Fresh faced young girls. Pretty young mothers with squirming youngsters. Young fellows with cowboy belts topping slim blue jeans. Men and women with seamed, tanned faces. Sunday school was held prior to church service, and in the teen-age class in which I landed, freshly gathered chinquapins were passed stealthily from hand to hand as we studied about Joseph asking about his father. Then Ma arose to preach and inattention ceased. The sermon, entirely different from the morning talk, was given with as much vigor and vehemence as if Ma had rested thruout the day. Ostentatious Pharisees seemed to parade thru the church, so great was the power of Ma's words.

After the meeting both Wayne and I were tired, and said so! Indefatigable Ma took the wheel of the flivver and whisked us back to the Trubloods. The returning soldiers had not arrived, but we were invited to the snack of home canned beef, sliced tomatoes, and butterscotch pie that stood waiting for them, as such a snack will wait every day until they come.

The sun was setting behind Boat mountain as we turned off the Yellville road and headed toward Olvey and the Moore home where I had left my car. At home, Ma quickly walked from room to room, gathering up papers and a second Bible, obviously intended for lending purposes, while I tied on a scarf and prepared for my drive home. We left the house together, and I turned my car about and headed up the hill toward the highway, a mile away. Already before me, in the gathering darkness, I could see Ma Moore's light dress as she hurried across the field in the direction of the little white churchhouse for the third and fourth meetings of her busy day. All along that narrow stony road to the highway, I met cars headed toward that same church, and I was very glad. Ma would have a goodly congregation.

Monday morning's mail contained 2,200 gay invitations to the Victory Derby ball to be given for the benefit of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society at the Drake hotel on Dec. 8. They had all been addressed by hand by Mrs. Aldis J. Browne Jr. and her committee, one of the 12 hard working committees of the woman's board, of which Mrs. Jacob Baur is chairman. They are determined to make this year's benefit the biggest of the season and they have realizable dreams that it may be the biggest of all time, for they may start with $75,000.

The Victory Derby ball is sponsored by John J. Keeshin, owner of Sportsman's Park, who prolonged the racing season one extra week for charity and promised the first $75,000 to the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society.

To watch the first day's contributions come in for the society, of which he is the efficient and hard working chairman of the board of trustees, Chauncey McCormick and Mrs. McCormick, who is cochairman of the woman's board, gave a luncheon party at the Sportsman's Park clubhouse on Monday, as did Mr. Keeshin for the women's board. Last week Mrs. McCormick, Mrs. James M. Hopkins and Mrs. A. H. Patterson were joint hostesses at a luncheon in the Arts club at which the long awaited plans for the Victory Derby ball were disclosed. They sound as if the fabulous goal of $100,000 may actually be reached.

The board members whose assignment was the selling of program advertising staged a derby of their own. When Mrs. Frank A. Hiter, chairman, reported the race at the luncheon, Mrs. George Barrett, the board's treasurer was leading with $3,199 worth of advertising to her credit, and the donation for a door prize of a diamond and platinum ring in the shape of a horseshoe, conveniently wearable by either a man or a woman. A close second was Mrs. Thomas J. Fleming, cochairman with Mrs. McCormick. The committee expects to have $20,000 worth of advertising in the largest program in their history.

There will be actual races at the ball with beautiful models [in white satin shorts] riding wooden hobby horses, and a regular pari-mutuel system as one of the evening's features. Other features will be opportunities to come by all sorts of wonderful things. And adding something like $10,000 more will be the returns on the donation books.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, chairman of decorations, reported an additional sizable contribution. She had been successful in getting a State st. department store to contribute all of the decorations. She and Mr. Carpenter are going to New York the last of the month when Mr. Carpenter's new symphony, "The Seven Ages," will be heard for the first time on Nov. 29, presented by the New York Philharmonic orchestra with Artur Rodzinski directing, and broadcast on Sunday afternoon Dec. 2. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter will be back for the Victory Derby ball, however.

The first Victory ball of the season, given by the Arden Shore association which also offers wonderful constructive help to underprivileged children netted $30,000 it was announced recently. And the financial results of the famous St. Luke's benefit fashion show were also announced this week by Mrs. Walter Wolf, president of the woman's board of St. Luke's hospital.

It actually topped all previous shows in receipts. But taxes nipped off some $4,300 and the net of $38,147 didn't reach the record—1929's $40,000. Many lives will be saved and made happier and more useful thru that afternoon of glamor, for the returns are used for support of the hospital's free clinics.

The annual Thanksgiving silver teas sponsored by the woman's board of the Presbyterian hospital will be held this year in 50 Presbyterian churches and in the homes of some of the members of the woman's board, among whom are many of Chicago's most public spirited women. Tho there is no Presbyterian church in Winnetka, a very active group of women on the North Shore interested in the hospital last year organized an auxiliary. Tomorrow at the Hubbard Woods home of their oldest member, Mrs. Robert Stuart they will have a smart silver tea party.

A huge silver bowl in the hall will receive the contributions of members and their guests toward the fund which provides linen for the hospital, and free layettes for indigent mothers. Incidentally, the hospital was indirectly the original of that famous cartoon of a father writing a check at a desk while his wife bathes the baby and saying "One more instalment and he's ours." Maternity care on the instalment plan was inaugurated by the Presbyterian hospital in 1931 and today about 500 babies are financed that way each year.

Mrs. Robert Stuart has had a long and generous association with the hospital and she is properly an honorary member of the woman's board. Her son R. Douglas Stuart is now vice president of the hospital and her daughter-in-law vice president of the woman's board. Her granddaughter, Mrs. Barrett Scudder is an active worker on the board. Assisting Mrs. Stuart as hostess tomorrow will be Mrs. Stuyvesant Butler and Mrs. John Dern.

Your Thalia's face is red over a slip of the typewriter last week. She wrote that Joseph Cudahy was being congratulated on the romantic engagement of his son, Edward Jr. and his wife's daughter, Nancy Cochran. Of course I meant Edward A. Cudahy and not Joseph Cudahy. Your Thalia warns you to beware of invitations to the wedding on Nov. 30 at old St. Mary's church and the wedding reception at the Casino, of which Mrs. Cudahy is president, have just been received. Your Thalia warns you to beware of the flu. It befuddles the brain.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Nov. 17, 1897.

Dear Julia: I thought instantly of you, when I read in the papers of the death of Dr. Thomas W. Evans of Paris, for I remembered that you had him fill a tooth for you when you and Martha Jr. were abroad. Martha Jr. was with you at his office, she tells me, and she is much interested in reading the accounts of the fabulously rich American dentist who was so honored by all the royal families of Europe.

Empress Eugenie

Paris seems to realize that it has lost one of its most notable figures and is paying suitable tribute to him. He seemed almost like a born Parisian, dressing in dapper fashion and following French customs meticulously. Just think! He had been in Paris almost 50 years, for he went abroad in 1848 as assistant to Dr. Brewster, who was introducing American methods of dentistry into Europe.

When he opened his own office he was fortunate in attracting the attention of Louis Napoleon, whose teeth required skilful treatment, and who soon began to trust him with delicate diplomatic missions, which he discharged with success. For 18 years he had great influence with the emperor, who recommended him to other royal persons until he was surgeon dentist to the courts of Russia, Prussia, the Hague, Belgium, and Baden. His visits to the Russian court were mainly diplomatic, it seems, as Napoleon felt he was more trustworthy than the French ministers whom he always suspected of treachery. The Czar's grandfather gave him the title of Baron, but there! I needn't tell you all this, for I remember you wrote of seeing him in his Russian uniform in Paris on some gala occasion.

I remember, too, your telling of his foreign decorations, which he kept in enormous cabinets and showed to a few favored patients. Will thinks his books [for you know he wrote his Memoirs and some other volumes] show great conceit, but indeed he had much on which to plume himself.

I wonder what will become of his immense fortune, estimated by some to be valued at 35 million dollars. Will thinks that figure an exaggerated one but he was extremely rich and had no children, only nephews and nieces. He owed much of his prosperity to the Empress Eugenie's favor. When Baron Hausmann planned to pull down and rebuild Paris, the empress showed Dr. Evans confidentially a plat of the remodeled city, with the places marked where she herself was buying. Dr. Evans followed her example and bought many lots on what is now the Bois de Boulogne. In a few years his fortune was made.

Speaking of the empress, I am sure she felt he had repaid all her kindness when he helped her escape, with the young prince imperial, at the close of the disastrous Franco-Prussian war. He did her another service when he identified, by means of the filling in the teeth, the body of the poor young prince imperial, who died fighting with the British in Zululand, in 1879.

Tho he was anti-German in his sympathies, Dr. Evans always said that Emperor Frederick, father of the present emperor of Germany, was one of the noblest patients he ever had. It was Dr. Evans who extracted Frederick's teeth, preparatory to the operation performed in hope of arresting the growth in his throat. Alas! that operation did not cure the disease. I wish that Frederick had lived longer to influence Germany. I don't like what I read about the young emperor, who is constantly being rude to some one. He seems to want to precipitate war.

I understand the body of Dr. Evans will be brought to America for burial and that he will be laid to rest beside his wife, to whom he was devoted. He was a member of St. John's Episcopal church, Philadelphia.

We heard Marion Crawford last night in Central Music Hall. He is an interesting speaker and we enjoyed hearing him tell how he came to write his latest book, "Mr. Isaacs."

Ever with love,
Martha Freeman Esmond.

FOOT NOTES

Thomas Wiltberger Evans [1823-1897] had the most distinguished dental practice of the 19th century. Aside from this fact, he took part in diplomatic missions, altho some doubt his claim to have kept France from recognizing the Confederacy. The bulk of his large fortune was used in establishing the Thomas W. Evans Museum and Dental institute, now the dental school of the University of Pennsylvania.

Several members of the Poets Club of Chicago will participate in a program at the party. Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell has written music to a poem, "Never Mind," by the Poets club president, John E. Groves, which will be sung by William Madden. Lorena La Brec Ouelette and Mrs. W. W. Schaible are to read sonnets they have written to musical accompaniment by Mrs. Campbell. Mrs. Jex has arranged for Mary Rose Brown to give a play reading, and she also will present a young pianist, Merle Palmer, and Marion La Badie, who was a sectional winner in the Chicago Music Festival vocal contests. The tea will be from 4:30 to 7 o'clock.

Literary interest sets the program from a noonday book review breakfast Tuesday at the Chicago Woman's Aid. A former president, Mrs. Michael H. Weinberg, will be the speaker. Mrs. Weinberg gives an original turn to her discussion, centering her program on the returned service man as he is portrayed and interpreted in current fiction. Two of the books she plans to comment upon are J. B. Priestley's "Three Men in New Suits" and Lester Cohn's "Coming Home."

The Aid has announced that Judge John Gutnecht will speak at a Friday breakfast gathering for the discussion of current events. With six study tours in South America, the Inter-American Bar conference last year in Mexico, and the Chateltepec conference in March to draw upon for background, he will discuss the "Dilemma in Latin America." Judge Gutnecht has a traveler's wide view of the international scene. In the thirties he made almost yearly trips to Europe. He visited Russia and Germany in 1934, was in Spain at the outbreak of the revolution in 1939, in Prague, and Sudetan and Vienna just before the Munich meeting of appeasement, and in the Balkans at the outbreak of the war.

The club is headed by Mrs. Alma Swane.

Among the musical groups meeting this week is the professional Chicago Artists association, which will officially welcome 60 new members at a reception and program Tuesday night in Curtiss hall. Mme. Nelli Gardini, the voice instructor, will speak. Mme. Gardini is president of the Society of American Musicians, the organization founded by the late Eleanor Everest Freer for the promotion of American music and musicians.

Ada Honderick will present Katherine Hart, pianist, and Alicya Helminiak, mezzo soprano, with Christine Baker as accompanist, in a musical at a meeting of the Chicago Musical Arts club at 3.30 o'clock this afternoon in the Cordon. Preliminary to the program, Margaret Freck Brown will open a series of three book talks on music history. Mrs. LaVergne Passailaigue will preside.

Week's Plans of Clubwomen in Chicagoland

Mrs. Lottie H. O'Neil

None of the war's major problems is so heavily underlined with tragedy, world leaders say, as that of misplaced persons. Driven from home and country by prejudices and hates, or scattered in the bombing and shelling of cities, without possessions and without hope, helpless legions of the lost drift aimlessly across the roads of Europe.

Even in this hemisphere the repercussions are felt. When on Friday the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations gathers at its regular meeting in the Republic building, the morning session, beginning at 10:30 o'clock, will be given to a review of the effects of the situation upon America. Mrs. Wyllys W. Hagen, chairman of American citizenship, has arranged for a talk on "Recent Trends in Immigration and Naturalization." The speaker will be Arthur Crabtree. Mr. Crabtree is in the educational branch of the United States immigration and naturalization service.

A joint education and legislation program is planned for 1:30 o'clock, with talks by Mrs. Claude G. Bassler and Mrs. David Olson, respective chairmen of federation activity in the two fields. They will set the background for Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neil, veteran representative in the Illinois assembly, who will be presented at 2:30 o'clock in a discussion of "The Club Woman's Approach to Legislation." Mrs. George J. Aste will preside thruout the day.

Panel Meeting Friday Planned by Clubwomen

Mrs. Walter M. Rennie

Firm in the conviction that women should be permitted to share with men responsibilities of peace time planning, members of the inter-club group which organized last February as Women's Share in Post-War Planning committee has worked indefatigably to place qualified women on city, county, and state committees, or in places suitable to their abilities. Twenty-five Chicago and Illinois organizations are member units of the delegate committee, which recently has changed its name to the explanatory one of Women's Share in Public Service.

In line with its endeavors to determine how feminine workers may best serve their communities, the organization has arranged a symposium on "Women's Share in Public Health and Welfare" for its next meeting, a dinner, set for 6 o'clock Friday night in Huyler's restaurant, 308 S. Michigan av. Miss Henrietta H. Fernitz, program chairman, will introduce the panel participants, all experienced in welfare and public health fields.

Mrs. Walter M. Rennie, immediate past president of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, will tell of her work as new executive secretary of the board of public welfare commissioners for the state of Illinois, and Dr. Carroll Birch of the University of Illinois college of medicine will speak on public health and discuss the need for more qualified women in medicine and public health service. The status of women gainfully employed and the possibilities for placing more women in public service fields will be touched on by Dr. Martha Ziegler, regional director of the women's bureau of the United States department of labor.

How women may become qualified for occupational therapy work will be described by Miss Beatrice Wade, director of occupational therapy for the University of Illinois.

Exhibition of Pushman's Art Stunning Show

By Eleanor Jewett

Hovsep Pushman has made such a brilliant name for himself thru the years in painting still lifes steeped in an oriental flavor that when even one new canvas from his brush comes to town it is an event. When a group of new paintings by him arrive in a Chicago gallery it is a great event. Last Thursday at the Findlay galleries, 338 S. Michigan av., an entirely new series of paintings by Pushman was discovered to the public. It is a stunning exhibit, one of the finest of the year.

Hovsep Pushman is too well known for the delicacy of his brush, the subtlety of his color, and the infinite charm of his composition for any lengthy exposition of his manner to be necessary. All the beauty, richness, velvety depth and incredible color values which have always stamped the artist's work as extraordinary and brilliant are found in the current show, plus an increased vigor and an aggressive handling of tonal values.

Look particularly to the stirring warrior chief; it is almost as tho in this single canvas Mr. Pushman had personified the war spirit of modern China. It is a daring, glorious, magnificent work. In his kind of picture Pushman is unsurpassed, and these recently completed paintings are Pushman at his best. The exhibit is superlatively fine. No one can afford to miss it.

The Chicago Galleries association, 215 N. Michigan av., has another of the unusually fine new exhibits of this month. Water colors of the American scene by Joseph M. O'Malley of Hollywood, Cal., bring color and variety into the smaller gallery. In the large gallery is an interesting and delightful, fresh, breezy, subtle, and nonchalant group of portraits, figures, and landscapes by Richard A. Chase, one of the most able of our younger Chicago artists, and a colorful collection of Roy C. Keister's figure arrangements and midwest landscapes.

The Palette and Chisel academy, 1012 N. Dearborn st., is another November must with its exhibit of small pictures. Here Leo Marzolo, J. Jeffery Grant, Othmar Hoffler, James Topping, and a goodly list of other talented painters offer an amazingly attractive group of small landscapes, still life, and figure paintings. The pictures are given to the academy by the artists and their sale goes for the upkeep of the organization. Leo Marzolo has contributed a special still life, charming as all of his arrangements are and exquisite in color, to be won by lot. The exhibit is closing with an auction and those are always good fun, exciting, and excellent for the academy bank balance.

Two sets of Christmas cards have come in. The American Artists group again has published an attractive portfolio of cards by artists whose names carry weight in any mention of contemporary American art. Henry McFee, Eugene Speicher, Lauren Ford, Rockwell Kent, Dale Nichols, Adolf Dehn, R. W. Woiceske, Gordon Grant, and Paul Sample are a few of the names attached to this series of infinitely varied cards. The cards are not all of equal value when it comes to suggesting the Christmas message. There are a number which are definitely trite, hackneyed, and heavy; there are others which apply only to Christmas because they carry the words, "Season's greetings"; but, to our immense satisfaction, there are still others which cay Merry Christmas blithely and with an original turn that makes them very enticing.

The other set of Christmas cards is the group put out by the Chicago Art institute. Some of these are in color and others are in black and white. They are reproductions of famous paintings in the museum's permanent collections. The title and artist is shown either on the back of the card or under the picture. If one does not care for the short and snappy "Christmas greetings" salutation, it is possible to use other phrases with one's name, by asking at the reproduction desk to the left of the front door at the institute.

Can BORDERLINE ANEMIA* Sap Your Stamina and Strength?

The answer is yes! Borderline Anemia can steal away your pep and vigor—can take all the fun out of life. Borderline Anemia makes people pale and listless.

And medical records say that thousands and thousands of men—as many as 68% of women—suffer from a Borderline Anemia resulting from a ferro-nutritional deficiency of the blood.

You Need Big Red Blood Cells to Release Energy

If your oxygen-carrying, energy-releasing red cells aren't sufficiently large and red and rich, you can't hope to keep your full vigor. For, your blood is the sole "supply line" of energy to every limb, every muscle, every fibre of your body!

Better Blood, More Energy with Ironized Yeast

Continuing tiredness, listlessness and pallor may, of course, be brought about by other conditions. Always consult your physician regularly.

But when you have a Borderline Anemia, when you envy others their vitality and glowing good looks, take Ironized Yeast. Just remember this—when all you need is stronger, healthier red blood cells—Ironized Yeast Tablets will help you build up your blood and your energy. Ask your druggist for genuine Ironized Yeast.

Resulting from a ferro-nutritional blood deficiency.*

Energy-Building Blood

This is what the doctor sees through his microscope looking at blood rich in energy-elements. Note big, plentiful red cells that carry oxygen to release energy to every muscle, limb, tissue.

Borderline Anemia

Thousands have blood like this—and never know it. Note puny size and irregular shape of red cells. Blood like this can't generate the energy you need! Only sturdy blood can give you top energy.

IMPROVED! HANDY! CONCENTRATED!

Radiant panel heating isn't exactly new, tho it is one of the most modern and most talked of methods of heating at the moment. . . . The early Romans heated their villas with hot gases from charcoal fires passed into flues in the floors and walls, and while this Roman heating was a bit crude it definitely was effective. . . . Today this panel heating, in floor, walls, or ceiling, has gone thru a slow and thoro testing period and it is well worth a thoro investigation by those who plan to build shortly. . . . We have just read an interesting and comprehensive booklet on the subject of this radiant panel heating, which discusses in detail its many excellent features and presents its principles and advantages very clearly to the layman. . . . This 10 page booklet is generously illustrated with photographs and diagrams and is free.

Floors of asphalt tile offer definite advantages in many ways. . . . There are asphalt tiles which are greaseproof and available in a variety of colors; tiles which are easily cleaned with simple mopping, and tiles with an invisible surface granulation which are not slippery, when properly waxed. . . . Asphalt tiling, moreover, is a resilient flooring which cushions sound and is comfortable under foot. . . . And, of course, very enduring.

Lady of the House

Carving That Bird

Is your man of the house proud of his ability at the job, or does he insist it be done in the kitchen?

Years ago correct carving at table required a great deal of practice and it also loomed large in the arts of the cuisine. An interesting old continental cookbook [Leipzig, '82] asserts that young gentlemen of "good family," especially in England, studied and sedulously practiced the art of carving, and deemed it an honor to be asked to carve by their hostess. Indeed, now and then one became so adept he could hold a large fowl aloft on a great pronged fork, deftly slice it into serving portions, and at the same time conduct a lively and witty conversation with his fellow guests. All with the greatest of ease—like the man on the flying trapeze.

On the continent, however, as in America, carving seems to have been largely relegated to the cooks, who so skilfully dismembered a fowl or roast and put it together again to look whole that the host might "carve" and serve the guests with grace, dispatch—and impartiality.

Utensils required for old time carving were: Large, round wooden platter with rim; large three pronged meat fork; long, slender pointed carving knife, and carving shears.

Thus armed and equipped, your carver was ready to face roast goose, wild turkey, whole ham, crown roast, stuffed breast of veal, leg o' lamb, ox tongue, bœuf a la Nelson, great wild boar's head, or maybe just carp a la Chambord.

I often wonder what antics he might have performed faced with the roast suckling pig which confronted the young surgeon, host at a men's dinner. When the ceremony began that young porker glided off the platter with all the elusiveness of the greased pig at the county fair. Of course, he was promptly recaptured and the merry meal proceeded amid the gibes and shouts of the doctor's fellow trenchermen.

No, it cannot be said of many American men, as did a hostess of one of her favorite guests, ". . . and he carves beautifully."

This year Thanksgiving has a very special meaning for us. We approach it in sober as well as joyous mood, and with Florence Denison give—

Thanks

For peaceful fields, their golden harvests yielded,
For fruit trees offering jewels in the sun.
For mercies from Thy hand; for children shielded
From sorrows of a world with grief o'errun.
For hearts united after night of sorrow;
For homes that stand in dignity and peace;
For hopes that face with faith a bright tomorrow
When want and fear o'er all the world shall cease;
Today with humble hearts to Thee we raise
Our voices in this hymn of grateful praise.

And say amen to Clyde Mitchell Morse's thankful salute:

To the Colors

Thank God for the red of a new blown rose,
For the crimson glory a sunrise shows,
For the blood red bars that rippling swell
My heart—and yours—that love them well.

Thank God for the white of the moonlit snow,
For the seagull's wings where the tall ships go;
Thank God for the pure broad bars of white,
My shield—and yours—in the gathering night.

Thank God for the blue of a baby's eyes,
For the wistful blue of October skies,
For the star strewn squares of floating blue
That thrill my heart—and the heart of you.

Thank God! and pray that the unseen years
Bring no regrets nor craven fears;
That the pride of the red and the white and the blue
Possess my heart—and the heart of you.

Katharine Dignum, lamenting that "so many songbirds are killed in Illinois every autumn by ruthless hunters, dedicates these lines—

To a Dying Bird

What chance led me to find you, pretty thing,
Poor, helpless little bird with broken wing?

What cruel marksman aimed you from afar,
And you fell bruised and bleeding, where you are,

To ebb your life away on city walk?
Frail, trembling bird, if you could only talk.

Divine sweet singer, is there aught that I Could do to save you? You were not made to die.

Like Shelley's lark, your wings were made to soar
To fields Elysian—sing forevermore.

And countless people will pass to and fro;
Engrossed in earnest thought, they will not know

That thousand songs are stilled, that beauty's dead
Upon a pavement stone where marks are red.

For instructions in making either of these items, send 15 CENTS in coin [30 CENTS for both—wrap coin securely] to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth av., New York 1, N. Y.

LOOK THIS WAY, PLEASE

Fall, '45, highlights the "open" look

This year it seems, chic is measured as much by over-all effect as by each new detail — the goal of grooming being to achieve the captivating "open" look that's born in poise.

Idea is to be yourself—feel so natural that you look it—free and confident. Not hard at all, providing your complexion is something to be proud of. Young faces find that's easy to have (and to hold)—and with a minimum of care—the natural Yardley "English Complexion" Cream way.

Simply depend on this airy, light cleanser for full skin care. Feel, as you smooth it on, then whisk it off, how gently it tones. Notice the delightfully soft petal-finish it imparts—just perfect for long-lasting powder clinging. Much loveliness for only $2 the larger jar—$1 regular size.

Of course, this "look of the year" isn't limited to youngsters—or to faces. Hands share in it, too—with a look of smooth perfection that tells the touch of suave Yardley Hand Cream, quite the most delightful grooming aid that ever banished roughness!

See how your hands respond as you pour the pink richness of this scented soother into one palm, slick it briefly, thoroughly over your hands. Presto — fragrant, satiny finish without a vestige of stickiness. Wear this Yardley "cream coat" daily while there's a nip in the air—for skin protection. The modest price, 65c for a long-lasting bottle.

Find Yardley beautifiers at all fine drug and department stores. (Prices quoted plus tax.)

Miami Resorts Plan a Variety of Social Fare

By Martha Lummus

MIAMI BEACH, FLA.

Like a three ring circus, with Miami Beach's waving palms, sandy beaches, and blue-green ocean in the central ring, is the prediction for this first South Florida season since the war's end. Eyes of participants and spectators alike already are trying to focus in all directions at once, in an effort to watch everything simultaneously and miss none of the gayety and merriment that make of this city, located on nearly the southernmost tip of the United States map, such an ideal winter vacation spot.

And while the ringmaster, Florida's smiling sun, looks down from above and cracks the whip, signaling the beginning of summer sports in the middle of winter, events follow, one fast upon the heels of another, so that all rings—Miami, Coral Gables, Hialeah, and the Beach—have a part in one of the most spectacular, the most fascinating shows on earth.

With many hotels now in process of renovation, following their use by the government during the nation's war years, and social clubs now getting glamorous with applications of fresh paint, the influx of visitors begins, and there is an air of excitement in this resort area, excitement that will reach its peak during the height of the season and will wane only at the expiration of the winter's mad, merry pace late next spring.

Horse racing, dog racing, night spots, boating, regattas, fishing, tournaments, and swimming events are just a few of the acts in this South Florida show that keep winter visitors both happy and gay during the rush of events that constitute the winter season.

The Indian Creek Country club, exclusive edifice located on Indian Creek Island, Miami Beach, has set the date of its official opening as Nov. 21, with the first event on the social roster being a Thanksgiving day turkey dinner on Nov. 22. David J. Molloy of Golf, Ill., president of this club that numbers among its membership some of the nation's top ranking financial wizards, and Mrs. Molloy, opened their Miami Beach home several weeks ago, in preparation for the 1945-'46 season.

The Surf club, with its row of cabanas and its spacious dining hall, ballroom, and outdoor dining patio, is another rendezvous for Chicagoans. Official opening date of this ocean front club is Dec. 7, with the brilliant procession of social events there being led off by a Victory ball in mid-December. The Saturday evening galas for which this club is famous again will be staged this year under the guidance of Alfred I. Barton, vice president and originator of these colorful events, which were discontinued during the war years. Atmospheres ranging in scope from fiesta time in South America to scenes of Asiatic splendor in ancient temples are created as backgrounds for these elaborate affairs.

Mrs. Eugene B. Clark of Chicago will occupy a Surf club guest house this year, and other Chicagoans who expect to live at the club this winter are Mrs. William A. Doyle, the George W. Griffiths, and Mrs. William F. Whitman. Mrs. Harry D. Crooks of Chicago came to Miami Beach several weeks ago to find a suitable location, and will return in the near future. Among other Chicagoans who make the Surf club their home while in Florida are the Fred Snites, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Yates, Mr. and Mrs. C. Ernest Guyton, Mr. and Mrs. John Marsch, the Walter Olsons, and many others.

Already occupying their Coral Gables home and now engaged in getting their 22 foot boat, TFD, in readiness for numerous fishing trips to the Florida keys are Mr. and Mrs. Adolph D. Bresler. Golf is the chief diversion of Mrs. Bresler, while Mr. Bresler finds angling for Florida fish his favorite of sports. They have been spending the winters in Florida for the past four years and came early this season, arriving the latter part of October. Their daughter, Mrs. N. H. Saeger, is a permanent resident of Miami.

The famous Bath club of Miami Beach concluded its summer season several weeks ago and now is in process of readying things for the winter. This popular club will open Tuesday with weekly social events on the schedule. Among Chicagoans who frequent this spot during the winter is Mrs. Gustavus Babson.

December brings to Florida not only Santa Claus, but the racing season. Gulfstream track, near Hollywood, will open this year's racing events, and, following close on the heels of the Gulfstream meet, which opens Dec. 1, will be the season at Hialeah and Tropical Park. Hialeah opens Jan. 17 and the Tropical Park meet is scheduled for March 5. Chicagoans who always arrive in time to enter their famous string of horses and to be among spectators at all racing events are the Warren Wrights, owners of Calumet farms.

Already here, and entertaining guests in their Miami Beach home, are Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Vaughan of Chicago. Mrs. Harvey Hanson, also of Chicago, is their guest for a few days while getting her Golden Beach home ready for occupancy. Mr. Hanson will join her here before the holidays.

Another Chicagoan listed among early winter arrivals in Florida is Mrs. James C. Cox. She has opened her Lagorce Island home and expects Mr. Cox in the near future.

Armistice day was a double celebration for Mr. and Mrs. John C. Canfield, Chicagoans spending the winter here. Scheduled event for them was a reception to honor the noted artist, William E. Singer, native of Chicago, and 100 guests gathered at their home to witness the unveiling of the artist's latest portrait, one of Mrs. William Loeb, war refugee from Rotterdam. Not scheduled, but none the less welcome, was an Armistice day message from the Canfields' son, Lt. John C. Canfield III., in Manila, stating his intention of returning to this country in the near future, in time to spend a part of his terminal leave in Miami Beach with his parents.

TO BE MARRIED

Miss Kathleen Vickers' engagement to Staff Sgt. James C. Cohrs of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Cohrs of Winnetka, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert I. Vickers of Wilmette. Miss Vickers attends the Art Institute of Chicago. Sgt. Cohrs, who was at home recently on a 30 day furlough after European service, has been transferred from Camp Shelby, Miss., to Camp Miles Standish, Mass.

Iowa Girl Is Engaged to Matthew Scrip

From Jesup, Ia., comes the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. James T. Turner of the engagement of their daughter, Miriam, to Matthew Scrip, son of Samuel Scrip of Chicago. Miss Turner attended the Northwestern Theological seminary in Minneapolis, Minn., and now is a student at the MacPhail school of music in that city. Her fiance studied at the Chicago Music school before entering the army, in which he has served for more than four years.

Legion Women to Open 25th Session Today

Preliminary conferences and committee meetings have crowded the days for American Legion auxiliary members since the arrival here Thursday of Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert of Norwich, Conn., national president. Now the stage is set, and tonight the delegates will post their colors in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel for their silver anniversary convention.

Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert

This afternoon, delegates and alternates—975 are registered for the meeting—will attend the opening of the Legion's convention in the Coliseum. Edward N. Scheiberling, national commander of the Legion, will address the women tonight at their first session in the Stevens.

The meeting will continue thru Wednesday. Heading the convention committee is Mrs. Melville Mucklestone, past national president of the auxiliary. This will be the first full convention of the Legion women since America went to war. Because of hotel and transportation restrictions, however, attendance is restricted to authorized representatives.

Mrs. Melville Mucklestone

Guest speakers on the platform tomorrow morning will be Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, ambassador to China, and John L. Sullivan, assistant secretary of the navy for air. The afternoon will be given to division caucuses, and tonight, revived from pre-war tradition, the states dinner will be held, with Mrs. Gilbert presiding and Legion officials and distinguished guests in attendance.

On Tuesday morning, in addition to numerous committee reports, the delegates will hear Perry Burgess, president of the Leonard Wood Memorial foundation. Miss Oleda Schrettky will be here from the national headquarters of the Girl Scouts in New York, to speak at the Tuesday morning session. The 25 year membership luncheon is set for 1:30 o'clock in the south ballroom of the Stevens.

Wednesday morning the delegates will vote for national officers, clear the slate of business, and adjourn.

Mrs. Gilbert, who before coming to Chicago for the convention, was in Hawaii to visit military hospitals and in Alaska to confer with Legion auxiliary leaders, expects representatives from both territorial departments here at the anniversary meeting.

Another visitor expected is Mrs. Helma Sanua-Seymour, president of the auxiliary in Paris, who is coming from France especially to attend the convention and renew home ties. Mrs. Sanua-Seymour, an American woman, married an officer of the French army during the first World war. Her husband fought again in the second war until capitulation, and then continued with the Free French in the underground.

Mrs. Sanua-Seymour, organized the American Legion auxiliary in Paris, and it was thru her efforts that Pershing hall was built as a school for the children of American soldiers who had married French women and remained in France. In Pershing hall the French-American youngsters were taught English, American history, and the stories and traditions of this country. Many of the Pershing hall boys and girls came to America, and several served with this country's military forces in this war. The hall is now being used as a U. S. O. center.

A Friend in Need

[If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer need, let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

By Sally Joy Brown

It is difficult for many persons to picture the extreme discomfort and gloominess that characterizes the homes of the poor. The appeals received daily at this desk evidence a need for alleviation of such ills, and we give our readers an opportunity to aid in the following cases.

Mrs. L., living on the north side of the city, is far advanced in years, but still active in making a home for herself and a son past 60. Illness prevented his employment for some time, and, altho he has recovered sufficiently to resume work, it will take all they can manage to pay for their daily needs and the rental of their small, damp basement flat. The floor is bare and drafty, and a laundry stove serves inadequately for cooking purposes. A cook stove and rug or carpet would add greatly to the warmth and convenience of their quarters.

The P. family consists of blind parents and four children, living on the south side. The state grant supplemented by occasional piano tuning jobs provides their living essentials, but leaves no surplus for replacements of dangerously threadbare rugs and unsafe chairs. Despite their handicap and inability to remedy the shabby condition, their home is neat and clean. A relative has offered to call for south side offers.

Mrs. X., mother of a 16 month old baby, is receiving agency aid. She has asked our assistance in locating a sewing machine to enable her to support herself and child, and maintain her home. Shortly after her husband's death last December, she was evicted.

Various Child Behaviors Are to Be Expected

By Gladys Huntington Bevans

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

It is a tremendous help to a mother to know what behavior to expect of her child as time goes by. If you've had one little child and have watched him grow in size and do a hundred fascinating [and some very trying] things from day to day, changing constantly, outgrowing one habit and replacing it with another kind of behavior, you have served a sort of parent apprenticeship.

If you are, however, watching your first little baby grow, you may not be prepared for his incessant activity and other phases of his development and so not handle him too well. So recently this column has been aimed at helping you.

Today I want to compress into one article an answer to the question: What shall we be prepared to expect of our child at different ages?

Let us get a general idea so that we can help him to gratify the strong, natural urges that are clamoring for an outlet, instead of repressing them eternally and expecting him to do other things he is not ready for and has no desire to do.

Here then are a few leads which you can follow up from your own observation or by reading:

1. Children and babies need constant physical activity. They almost exemplify perpetual motion. They grow, learn, and probably experience what we might call muscular enjoyment thru always being on the go—doing something. Take this into account, then, and don't expect them to be quiet except when they have some quiet activity which they find or you provide.

2. Little children, as soon as they can move about, set out to explore the world, their world, which means their home. They were given five senses to use so that they could learn and grow and develop in mind and body. Instead of being annoyed at their curiosity, at their desire to touch, examine, take apart, give them objects and opportunities to satisfy it, within reason.

3. Control of their bodily functions is not an instinctive thing; it is acquired, and the acquiring often interferes with their play and their convenience. Expect the formation of these habits to be gradual. Speed is not of paramount importance.

4. Expect your small one to get into an occasional fracas with another of the same age until they have learned to play together. One may bowl the other over with calm interest, bite, scratch, or grab with emotion.

5. Expect tantrums only if your child is handled with inconsistency, or constantly thwarted in the gratification of simple, natural desires. Tantrums don't have to go with the early years even if the small boy or girl is the possessor of a quick temper.

Want your home to look extra happy for Thanksgiving? Then I suggest shining mirrors to sparkle-up the scene . . . to reflect the happy faces of your gathered family! And while you're shopping for framed or unframed mirrors,—why not ask your Furniture or Department Store to fit protective tops of plate glass for tables and desks? They're so practical in protecting furniture from hazards of cigarette burns and stains left by wet glasses! Look in your telephone directory under PITTSBURGH Plate Glass for nearest dealer. The blue label, "Made from Genuine PITTSBURGH Plate Glass" will assure you of quality mirrors and furniture tops.

Ronson Lighter News!

My eagerness to own RONSON Lighters, both pocket and table models, is mounting by leaps and bounds. But accept a substitute? Never,—for the splendid service RONSON, World's Greatest Lighter, gave servicemen overseas proved to me and to everyone that there's not a lighter to equal its efficient "press, it's lit, release, it's out!" action. And there's such an insistent demand for handsome silver plated RONSON Table Lighters for every room in the home . . . to insure safe, luxurious and "always-at-your-elbow" lighting. So bear with me,—and with the makers. If your dealer's temporarily out of RONSONS, he'll receive more and more as production increases . . . be lofty in your patience and wait for a RONSON!

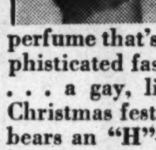
World's Richest Cocoa!

When you mark "cocoa" on your shopping list,—be sure you specify VAN HOUTEN'S! I say this with good reason . . . for since 1828, VAN HOUTEN'S has been unrivaled as the cocoa that's richest in flavor, solubility, nutritional value and digestibility! It's made by the famous Dutch-process and has the world's richest chocolate flavor,—exquisite, full-bodied and concentrated . . . so that a little of it goes a long way. That's why, though VAN HOUTEN'S costs more, it is the wisest cocoa BUY-LINE to choose. Less than 1c per cup . . . and 1 lb. makes 90 servings! Ask your Grocer for VAN HOUTEN'S . . . the FREE Recipe Booklet on each package gives desserts that are ideal for the holidays!

If RY-KRISP isn't invited to do the honors with the cold turkey at Thanksgiving Season parties . . . there'll be a lot of disappointed guests! It has become the "preferred" bread of so many people, (not only in homes, but in all smart hotels and restaurants and on trains and planes) that you'd be making a grave mistake if you failed to serve it to your guests. The crisp-crunchiness and hearty-rye flavor of RY-KRISP add distinction to any meal—and persons with allergies to wheat, milk or eggs insist upon this 100% rye bread . . . or go without any at all. RY-KRISP comes in that famous red-checker-board package at your Grocer's.

Perfect Powder Blend!

To powder and LOOK powdered, as if you'd put layer upon layer, is inexcusably unattractive. If that's happening to YOUR complexion, I'd advise a quick change to HOUBIGANT'S "Translucid" Face Powder,—for it is exquisitely fine in texture and perfectly blended to natural skin tones . . . micro-milling, then careful sifting through fine silk, make it go on smoothly and cling lovingly,—so mist-fine that your own natural coloring "glows" through! "Translucid" Face Powder comes in 9 skin-matched shades, costs $1.50 a box, plus tax. I suggest you choose a matching "Translucid" Lipstick for a vivid touch that's sheer glamour! In 8 beautiful shades at $1. Ask for these aids to SHEER beauty at better stores.



NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 18th—I've been waiting for weeks to tell you about this romantic trilogy . . . three triumphant new perfumes presented by HARTNELL. "Bright Stars" is exactly the delicate, long-lasting fragrance for a winter's evening of lights and romantic shadows. "Stolen Heaven" is the second in the HARTNELL threesome—a brilliant, persistent perfume that's compelling and heady . . . inspired by the new sophisticated fashion trend. "Gay Glitter" is as lovely as its name . . . a gay, light-hearted fragrance for the Thanksgiving and Christmas festivities! Each of these distinguished new perfumes bears an "H"—trademarked after Norman Hartnell, Couturier by Appointment to the Queen of England. Look for them in your Department Store . . . ideal for your wearing NOW . . . wonderful as Christmas gifts!

THANKSGIVING just can't be the good, old-fashioned kind unless there's a fruit cake to add savor to the end of the meal! But DON'T go to all the bother of making one . . . just get a WALDORF RUM AND BRANDY FRUIT CAKE! It has all the goodness of one "home-made" from grandmother's secret recipe,—l-o-a-d-e-d with fruits and nuts . . . is as moist as a cake just out of the oven! And the flavor . . . uh-m-m . . . leaves no doubt in your mind about the REAL rum and brandy used in its making! WALDORF Rum and Brandy Fruit Cake comes in a hermetically sealed and waterproof canister . . . guaranteeing safe delivery if you send it as a Thanksgiving Greeting. Cost is only $2 for a 2 lb. cake . . . at Food, Candy or Department Stores.

Whether man or woman . . . there's a certain pride in wearing a hat, suit or dress with a label inside that marks it "MADE" by a top designer or manufacturer. End the Rich Holiday Meal on Light Note

By Mary Meade

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

Thanksgiving dinner this year will be much more like the traditional holiday feast. We can have poultry or meat; cheese and whipped cream are back again to enrich the meal, even tho a Thanksgiving dinner needs no enrichment.

Since sugar still is scarce, perhaps more families will serve a Thanksgiving dessert of fresh fruit, cheese, and toasted crackers, probably the best ending for a large meal ever invented. But there will be many a call for a pudding or pie dressed up with whipped cream, simply because we've had to do without our favorite fluffy dessert dressing for so long.

Since whipped cream is a high calorie food and most desserts in which it is used are calorific, too, portions should be small when a festive meal ends with a fluff covered sweet dish. A Thanksgiving dessert should be chosen for its refreshing qualities, not its richness. How much more welcome is a portion of lemon sponge with a tiny dab of whipped cream than a large piece of mincemeat pie after a big dinner! Mince pie is wonderful in its place, but since it is a meal in itself, that place had better be at another meal rather than the turkey dinner.

These are a few whipped creamy desserts which aren't an anti-climax after a large feast.

Fruited Rum Parfait
[Serves six]

½ tablespoon [½ envelope] plain gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
½ cup sugar
½ cup water
2 egg whites, beaten stiff
1 cup cream, whipped
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup finely chopped mixed candied fruit
2 tablespoons rum

Pour the rum over the candied fruit and let it stand for an hour or overnight. Soften gelatin in cold water. Meanwhile, cook sugar and the ½ cup water to the soft ball stage and pour sirup in a fine stream over the stiffly beaten egg whites, beating constantly with rotary beater. Add soaked gelatin to warm egg and sirup mixture and stir until dissolved. Place bowl in another bowl of ice cubes and stir until the mixture begins to congeal. Then fold in whipped cream, salt, vanilla, and rum soaked fruit. Freeze without stirring.

One-fourth cup of slivered almonds may be added to the recipe, and sometimes it is nice to line the freezing tray with a thin layer of crushed graham crackers or chocolate cookies, and to sprinkle a few of the crumbs on top of the dessert.

Cranberry Mousse
[Serves 10]

1 pound cranberries
2 cups water
1½ cups sugar
Grated rind of ½ lemon
Grated rind of ½ orange
Juice of ½ orange
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons plain gelatin
½ cup cold water
1 pint cream, whipped

Cook cranberries in water until soft, strain thru a sieve, and add sugar, fruit rinds, juice, and salt. Soften gelatin in cold water, add to the hot berry mixture and stir to dissolve. Chill until mixture begins to thicken, then fold in whipped cream. Part of the cream may be saved to top the finished desserts, if desired. Pour into a large mold or individual molds and chill overnight. Serve plain or with small dabs of whipped cream as garnish

Lemon Snow
[Serves eight or more]

2 tablespoons plain gelatin
½ cup cold water
2 cups hot water
1¼ cups sugar
½ cup lemon juice
3 egg whites, beaten stiff
Whipped cream or custard sauce
Maraschino cherries for garnish

Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve in hot water. Add sugar and lemon juice. Chill until partly set, then whip until frothy. Fold in egg whites, chill until firm. Unmold, top with soft custard or whipped cream, and decorate each portion with a cherry. A richer dessert is obtained if the hot water is reduced to 1¼ cups and ½ pint cream, whipped, is folded into the dessert. Frozen sliced strawberries make an attractive and colorful sauce for this pudding, too.

Meringue shells filled with fresh fruit and topped with whipped cream also are welcome after a large meal.

Meringue Shells
[Makes 10]

6 egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vinegar
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar

Add salt, vinegar, and vanilla to egg whites and whip to a stiff foam. Add sugar gradually and beat until mixture holds peaks. Place heavy brown paper on a cookie sheet and drop the meringue mixture by spoonfuls on the paper. Use a spoon to hollow the center of each mound. Bake at 275 degrees for 40 to 50 minutes. Unless the paper used is very heavy, two or three layers should be placed on the cookie sheet. Do not grease the paper.

Fashions

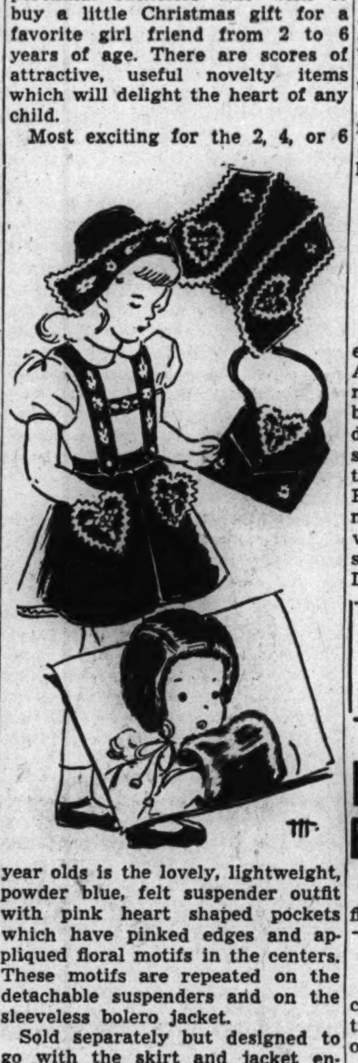
We believe in solving the problems of doting unmarried uncles or perennial bachelors who wish to buy a little Christmas gift for a favorite girl friend from 2 to 6 years of age. There are scores of attractive, useful novelty items which will delight the heart of any child.



Most exciting for the 2, 4, or 6 year olds is the lovely, lightweight, powder blue, felt suspender outfit with pink heart shaped pockets which have pinked edges and appliqued floral motifs in the centers. These motifs are repeated on the detachable suspenders and on the sleeveless bolero jacket.

Sold separately but designed to go with the skirt and jacket ensemble, is the cunning Dutch bonnet, with a dainty pink floral trimmed heart in the center back. The same treatment is used on the envelope shoulder strap purse. It is available in gray, red, navy, as well as powder blue.

The coziest and most heartwarming is this rich brown mouton hat and muff set. The snug fitting cap is lined in red and tied at one side with a red cord. The round muff, red lined, has a red cord bracelet. This outfit is available in two sizes from 3 to 6 and 7 to 14, and in a low price bracket.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of spades.

If I were to suggest to my readers that it requires the taking of five tricks to defeat a three no trump contract they would, no doubt, be offended, and with good reason. Yet, observation of their play upon occasions, leads one to believe that this elementary truth should from time to time be brought again to their attention. The idea that the declarer should plan his campaign immediately the dummy is spread is pretty generally understood. But that the defense should also adopt an organized plan to reach its objective [in this case the taking of five tricks] is frequently lost sight of.

Against the final contract of three no trump West led the queen of spades. East played the four. Not a high enough card to get partner excited yet not the lowest, so that it would appear that the continuation of the suit was mildly suggested. Inasmuch as East held four of the suit he realized that his partner could probably establish it in one more lead. Declarer won the opening lead with the king and played the king, queen, and another club, West waiting until the third round. The jack of spades was continued and declarer held up. The 10 of spades drove out the ace.

Declarer then played the queen of hearts and the jack, but was permitted to hold them both so that dummy's king would not become an entry to cash the clubs. East was then given the lead with the ace of hearts, and promptly returned his partner's suit. West cashed his remaining spade but was obliged to lead away from his king of diamonds and permit declarer to score his ninth trick with the queen.

East had played without planning. When he won the heart trick he knew that his partner had only one more spade to cash and that would be only trick number four. Since five tricks were required, it would be necessary for the defense to cash a trick in diamonds. If West did not have a high diamond all was lost save honor. Since West might find it embarrassing to lead a diamond himself, East's proper play at this point was to lead that suit. Declarer would have had no recourse but to take the finesse and the king of diamonds would have been the setting trick.

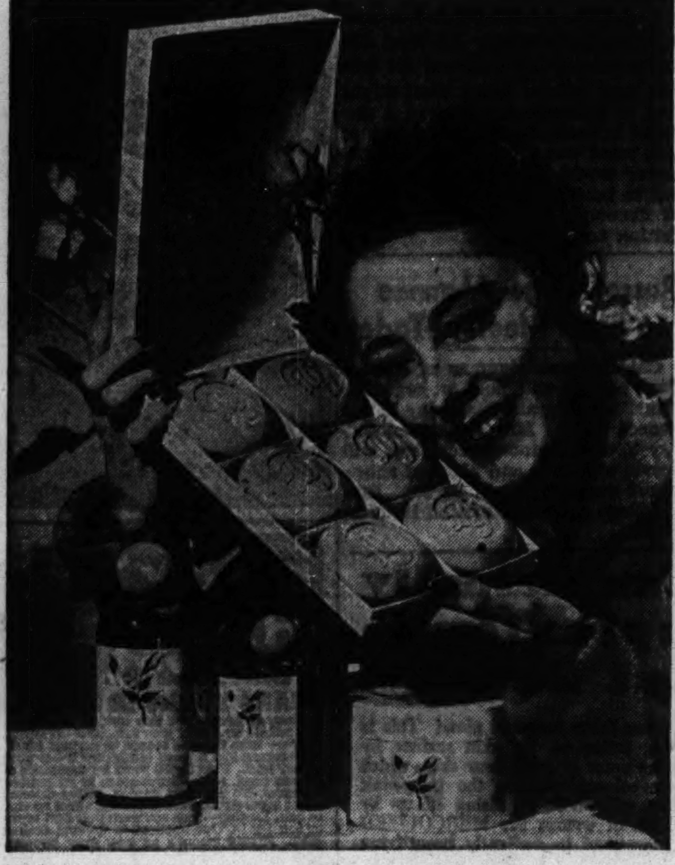
Thru the Looking Glass



A new and distinctive assembly of bath luxuries has made its debut. Scented with a lighthearted, gay kind of fragrance and importantly packaged, they're the kind of trimmings to brighten both bath and bathroom.

A new and complete bath line has made its debut, and if bath luxuries are your weakness we think you'll want to investigate this one. It's the latest offering of a fine cosmetic house and carries on the family tradition in bright style.

The line includes cologne, bath oil, bath powder, soap [both hand and bath size], toilet water, and sachet pillows. All the items are in a beautiful, lighthearted kind of fragrance designed to make you feel in the pink. This is the kind of scent to set you in good spirits on dull, wintry days.

It's a mixed sort of fragrance, delicate and unobtrusive but with plenty of personality nonetheless. We don't think you'll get tired of it, for it has no heaviness or overbearing quality. It's simply the nice kind of pretty scent most women are fond of and like having waft about them.

A bath trimmed with these luxuries is a real treat. The oil scents and softens the water, and there's pleasure in scrubbing with the sweet, rich lather of the lovely soap. After you've lolled in the tub, dry yourself off, splash on cologne or toilet water, and finish off with an all-over dusting of body powder in the same lilting fragrance. Then slip into lingerie which has been scented by the sachet pillows, and you'll feel fresh and dainty as a rose.

The packaging of the line is outstanding. It was designed by a nationally known woman decorator, and the sweet rose motif and the attractive rose, blue, and pink of the packages make them attractive bathroom accessories. They're the kind of things you could plan a bathroom color scheme around, transforming a dull looking room into a cheery spot.

The items may be purchased individually, and if you've started racking your brain over appropriate Christmas gifts, we'd suggest you consider the bath line for the women on your list. Any or all of the things will make ideal gifts for girls from 16 to 60. And we'll wager that when you see the line you'll want to indulge yourself and buy something out of it for your own use.

First Post-War Papers Made in Subtle Hues

By Edith Weigle

For the first time in several years new and colorful wallpapers are being made. Manufacturers are now finding it possible to produce new patterns instead of continuing with a line of old ones as they had been forced to do.

A Chicago firm is coming out with an unusually artistic group of hand-blocked papers, the chief features of which are their originality, their very lovely colors, and the detailed accuracy with which the original design has been reproduced. Each line and brush stroke of the artist, no matter how delicate, has been faithfully copied, so that the rolls of wallpaper really look like paintings.

A number of the designs are being printed on a silver paper that has a sturdy quality which makes it much easier to apply than the tea chest variety. Among them is one called the Zodiac in which all 12 astrological signs are carried out fancifully and in seven colors, the effect being very gay and sophisticated.

A perennially popular pattern made by this company, called Lace and Flowers, also is made with the silver background. Here graceful flowers are outlined in pink and white against the silver, and there are vertical stripes of white lace about 20 inches apart. This is one of the most charming wallpapers we've ever come across. It can be used in a bedroom, bathroom, hallway or foyer, or in a dressing room or powder room. The same design also is worked out in a delicate green, or a soft blue on the silver.

Canton is the name of a new pattern which was in the process of being hand-blocked when we visited the firm. It is a light, airy design, very Chinese in feeling and besides being printed on the silver paper it also will be available in blues and greens on bone white.

Stunning for a man's room, or a wall of a game room, or a small bar is a paper called Tunis, the work of Porter Woodruff. Six spirited horses and three or four Arabs form a sort of circular design and are done in grays and reds on white.

A paper that is receiving considerable acclaim is one done in a spatter-dash effect with flecks of scarlet, yellow, and pale gray on bone white, the paper being divided into large squares. Called Coffer Panel, it would make a very handsome screen, or might be used just on one wall of a room, if desired.

Jon Radaeker, who designed it, also has done another, Woodweave, which makes an excellent background paper, as it is all in tones of beige and white. The effect is that of strips of thin wood interwoven like the mats children make in kindergarten of strips of paper. It also is printed in a rather deep tone of gray, called "storm cloud."

Splashy and brimming with lively, clean colors is a pattern by Marian Dorn, Three Flowers. The tones are red, lilac and green on white. A filler paper also is available, to be used on the ceiling or on one or more side walls. This repeats the tiny lilac blossoms found as part of the detail of the other paper.

New Millinery Face Flattering and Luxurious

By Rea Seeger

Midseason millinery collections are vastly different creations compared with last year's bits of fluff that literally perched on the forehead leaving the rest of the coiffure and head uncovered. Such small trifles are so dated that few smart women wear such miniatures even with theater or dinner costumes.

Fall hats have been influenced by the summer affairs which were tall and towering, sometimes even unusually bulky. The midseason hats now on display are well under control, but height and some bulk still are stressed.

Beautiful creations of velvets, shimmering brocades, flowers, and hats made entirely of the finest handwork in beads, simulated jewels, and sequins, vie with the luxurious hats of fur and feathers in fashion importance and face flattery. Fine supple felts in glowing colors are included, forecasting 1946 silhouettes among the usual velvets, brocades, and feathered creations.

But the feathered toppers still are going strong. Feather hats of all kinds, together with some sensational models made of rare and costly gourah, are featured.

Gray and natural tones, soft pastels, deep brown, shiny black, and a few high hues of scarlet, vivid blue, and bright gold, provide a complete assortment of feathered hats—small, medium, high, wide, and very handsome.

Face framing felts are tremendously important. There's a sculptured effect that accomplishes wonders in flattery. Such hats fit securely on the head; skilled fingers have draped, twisted, and turned the softest of felts into outlines that are anything but trying or harsh. All of them are successful models of simple looking but distinctly flattering silhouettes for both face and head line.

Neutrals, winter whites, the sophisticated combinations of black with brown, are best of these midseason new felts.

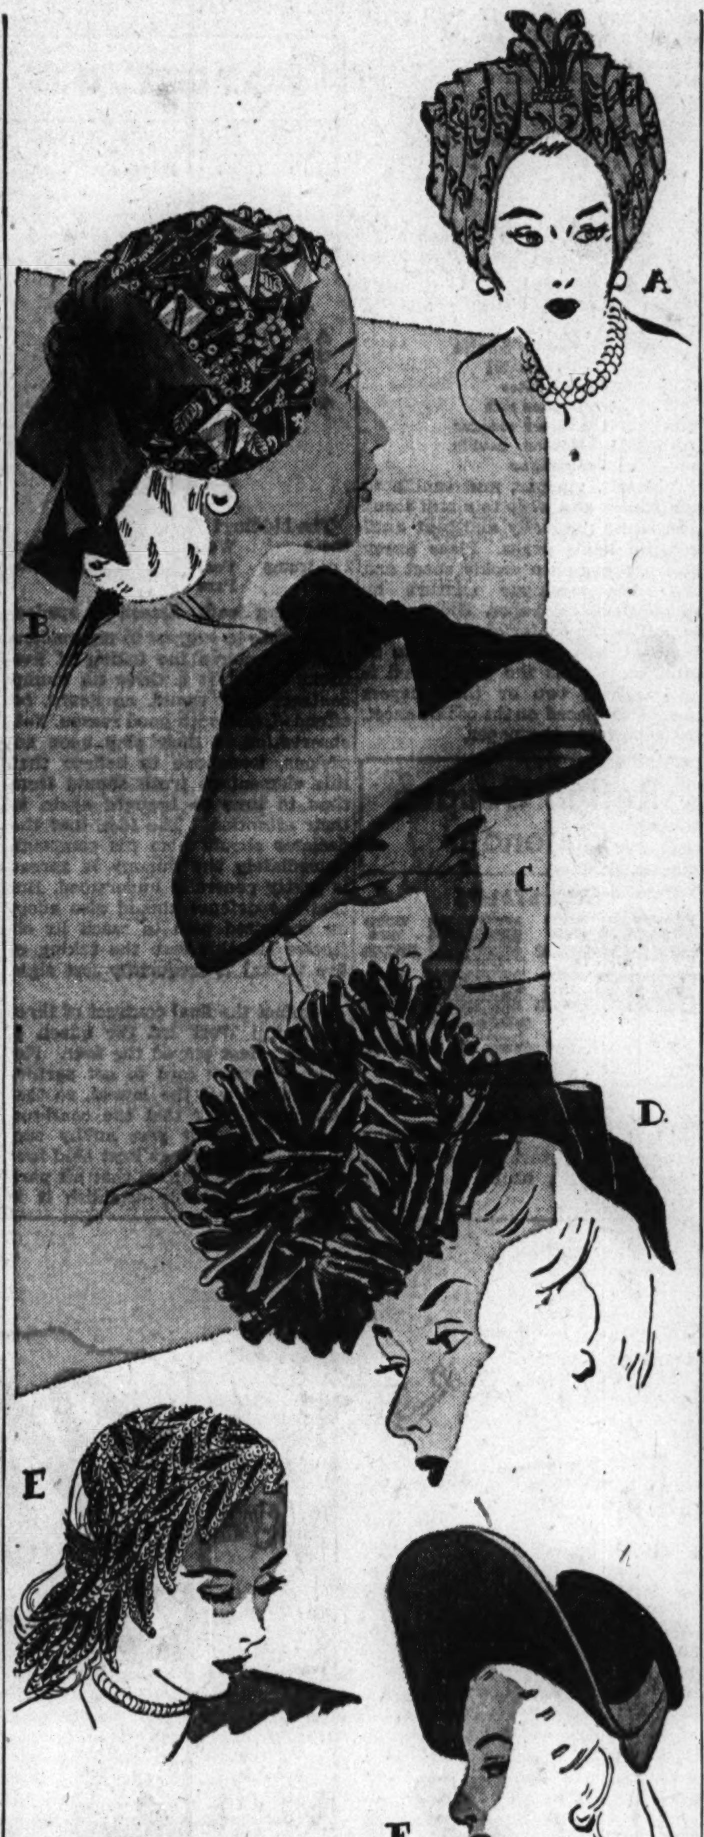
Fine brocade turbans, in many instances a single hat only, because there was only enough of the rare brocade of that particular color and pattern to make one hat, are jewel precious models for dress clothes, cocktail suits, flashing dinner suits, and dresses animated with festive sequins, beading, and silken embroidery. These turbans are high and beautifully moulded or swathed in picturesque outlines; most of them are worn to conceal every stand of hair. Jeweled pins, antennae feathers, simulated flowers, birds, and bees made entirely of beads and little fake jewels, add even more brilliance. This same sort of festive bead work, sequin trim, and jeweled flowers and leaves, make the new bonnet effects, or wreath head dresses for the debs and subdebs.

Sketched are six new hats from the midseason collection to be found in a Chicago store. Others from the same lavish assortment have the same gala shimmer and beauty. For further information call Superior 0200.



A. Dache bejeweled, hand beaded, and Javanese-inspired evening bonnet with two pastel blue velvet bows at back. • B. John Frederic's handsome one-of-a-kind metallic brocade turban. • C. Dache's felt is face framing bonnet. • D. Sophisticated toque of black satin with velvet roses massed high. • E. John Frederic's delightful wreath head dress worked in shining sequins. • F. Dache's newest sculptured hat comes in stunning street colors.

Y. W. C. A. Leaders to Draw Up Plans for March Meeting

Miss Eldri Dieson of New York, industrial staff member of the national board of the Young Women's Christian association, will arrive here today for conferences with local Y. W. C. A. officials preliminary to the opening tomorrow of a four day meeting of the National Industrial council of the Y. W. C. A.

The council sessions, scheduled in the McCormick Y. W. C. A., 1001 N. Dearborn st., will bring together industrial girls from all sections of the country. The meeting will be devoted chiefly to drawing up plans for the National Industrial assembly to be held in conjunction with the National Y. W. C. A. convention in Atlantic City next March. Members of Chicago Y. W. C. A. Industrial clubs will entertain the visiting delegates at dinner tomorrow night.

The situation now confronting industrial women workers as a result of reconversion will be discussed today by Miss Dieson. The association's national industrial department, she points out, has recommended that local Y. W. C. A.'s conduct a community census to provide a complete picture of the situation now facing women workers in regard to available sources of employment, wages, hours, and other current problems.

Resort Season to Begin Soon in Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith

Here it is 95°, and the Palm Beach season will soon be bustin' out all over. In just the drop of a coconut will come the familiar rush of parties, the magnificent philanthropias, the avalanche of cultural events, and all the tremendous trivialities that make up the brilliant and complex pattern of life on this flowery tropical island.

Conversion to peace time pursuits is well under way. Missing from the scene is the V. for V. canteen. The building has reverted to private ownership and once more is a de luxe grocery store. The military personnel noted in these parts is diminishing rapidly. But enough remain to add youthful high spirits to activities.

The grim business of house and apartment hunting goes merrily on. Both landlord and would-be tenant seem to regard the OPA rent control as an albatross hung about their necks. The way it has worked appears to have been a headache to all concerned.

The project of finding an abode for the next few months is not limited to the wealthy sun seeker. It also is a problem and a serious one to the vast number of working and business people whose services make possible the luxurious existence for which Palm Beach is famous. There are hundreds of clerks, office workers, bartenders, musicians, waiters, tutors, nurses, masseurs, caterers, and free lance butlers, who must have a roof over their heads. One little waitress in a swank cocktail bar remarked plaintively that she had located a cute little apartment but that the price was a thousand dollars for the season, and that would take nearly all she made.

The seasoned Palm Beach resorter rarely falls into the category of the house hunter. The majority either own their winter home or have had the foresight, to say nothing of the wherewithal, to make arrangements well in advance. Most of the Chicago colony either own their domiciles here or have lived at the same hotel, club, or apartment, for many seasons.

Among the eariest arrivals was Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock who opened Casa Alejandro in time for the miniature hurricane that lashed Florida this fall. Mrs. McKinlock is expecting several house guests later on.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar W. Johnson have been at their Manana Point villa for several weeks. Mr. and Mrs. George H. Malcolm have opened their lake front home. With Mrs. Frank Gordon at her El Bravo Way villa are her daughters, Mrs. Harmar D. Ker and Miss Evelyn Gordon. Mrs. Ker is leaving for Chicago this week to join her husband.

Receiving a warm welcome from fellow Chicagoans are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hibbard who have taken a handsome villa here for the season. Mr. and Mrs. H. Mitchell Harper are expected this week-end from Winnetka. Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. Gifford of Elgin are among the early arrivals. Mr. Gifford is president of the Sailfish club. Mrs. Maurice McGrath was another late October arrival. She spent the summer in New York but returned to Evanston in time for the 57th wedding anniversary celebration of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clark McIntosh, on Oct. 18.

Gabriel Heatter, radio commentator, and Mrs. Heatter, arrived on Thursday at the Villas where they will stay until their newly acquired home on Barton av. is ready. Mr. Heatter will broadcast from a local station this winter. Also at the Villas are Mr. and Mrs. George Poole of Glencoe.

At a fashion show at Taboo recently Charles Francis Coe, acted as master of ceremonies, but even Mr. Coe's admittedly penetrating vocal equipment failed to make a dent on the solid wall of laughter and conversational buzz. The little bamboo-trimmed cocktail lounge was packed to its decorative walls. People stood on chairs to watch the parade of attractive models who included Mrs. Barbara Morse McCall and Mrs. A. Parker Bryant.

Mr. Coe was telling some one about the potent effect of the movies, saying that the Hottentots were even copying Veronica Lake's hair-do, and a disgruntled young army officer said that it looked to him like it was the other way around; that the local glamor girls were trying to ape the Hottentot hair style.

Fashions and Fancy

By Judith Cass

Mrs. Chauncey McCormick

The search for an individual bit of jewelry never is ended, and many a woman has secured what she thought was a piece that no one else would have, only to find a copy or "reasonable facsimile" pinned to a neighbor's frock or worn around her wrist. Attending the races at Sportsman's Park at the beginning of the final Charity Race week was Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, who wore an appropriate as well as "different" piece of jewelry, a horse and jockey pin. Mrs. McCormick's husband is chairman of the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, which was promised the first $75,000 of the week's charity money, and which will feature horse races [with wooden ponies] at its benefit "Victory Derby" Dec. 8 in the Drake hotel. Mrs. Tracy Lay Turner Jr. has a charming conversation piece pin which she wears nowadays, a miniature of her daughter, Rosemary, painted when she was but 2. It is framed in an antique gold medallion, about two inches in diameter, and the soft coloring of the miniature is lovely with any of Mrs. Turner's dresses. Here on a visit from Newell, W. Va., Mrs. Arthur A. Wells was wearing an unusual pin which occasioned much admiration. It was a gold "passion flower," and so constructed that the outer petals, all studded with precious jewels, could be worn folded in toward the center or opened out wide. Mrs. E. Cummings Parker and Mrs. Abner J. Stilwell were among Mrs. Wells' Chicago acquaintances who amused themselves moving the petals about and watching the flower unfold. The former was wearing one of the smartest new black frocks seen about town this fall, a severely simple vee necked dress made with a peg topped effect at the hip line and an exceedingly narrow skirt, slit about two inches at the center front hem line so that she can walk.

Mrs. Selim McArthur

A hand knit suit of silk ribbon in a soft shade of pistachio green provides a perfect background for the handsome old gold jewelry in Mrs. Jay C. McCord's jewel case. The other day at the Woman's Athletic club she was wearing the two piece suit with twin gold bracelets that looked as if they might have been family heirlooms, and an amber and gold cameo which was fastened to a double gold link necklace. A brace of sables and toque of pale green faille bows completed her costume. Mrs. Donald Easter carries her good luck talisman with her when she wears a diamond horseshoe pin. The same day at the club she fastened it above the bill of her little black jockey cap, also reminiscent of her favorite hobby, with a cluster of small white chrysanthemums on either side of the pin. Her suit was of natural brushed wool. Over the luncheon table Mrs. Clinton Merrick and Mrs. Selim W. McArthur compared notes on the experiences of two of their sons-in-law, Maj. Phil Gilbert and Lt. William E. Dunshee, who have just returned home from overseas and are awaiting discharges. Maj. Gilbert served in Europe, where he was awarded the croix de guerre, and Lt. Dunshee's last tour of duty was in the Pacific with the navy. Mrs. Merrick's black gown was slashed across the shoulder with pale blue wool, the same material that lined the sleeves, and a large medallion of brilliants was embroidered over one side of the bodice. Her little black felt hat, shaped almost like a small beret, was fringed around the edge in black silk tassels. Rushing off to the Tuesday afternoon Symphony concert in Orchestra hall with Mrs. Grant H. Laing, Mrs. McArthur slipped a short black Persian lamb coat over her black suit, which was ruled across the front of the jacket in diagonal ginger colored stripes. Mrs. Laing's electric blue postillion hat, worn with an all-black costume, had a flashing band of brilliants and gold sequin rosettes.

N. American Travel Group Looks to '46

By Mildred Peterson

With the theme "Travel Strengthens America," some 800 travel agents and officials, representatives of bus, air, steamship, and railroad transportation, hotel executives, and editors of travel magazines and newspapers attended the first post-war meeting of the North American Travel conference at the Morrison hotel.

In addition to representatives from the United States, members were present from Costa Rica, Cuba, Mexico, the Dominican Republic, Honolulu, and the following places in Canada: Banff, Lake Louise, Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver, and Victoria. D. Leo Dolan, director of travel, Dominion of Canada, was chairman of the conference.

While speaking of airplane services and plans for the future, N. F. Redfern, executive secretary, Air Transport association, Washington, D. C., stated that he was looking forward to the time when the traveler would be able to purchase an interchangeable travel script, or ticket, which would take care of his passage on a plane, ship, bus, or train. He also pointed out that there could be no mass air transportation unless and until present restrictions were removed.

The "Victory Vacation Year," to be celebrated in 1946, was commented upon by Elmer Jenkins, national travel director, American Automobile association, Washington, D. C. It is expected that by 1950 travel will top the peak that was reached in 1929.

"Transportation is the builder of the nation," stated Lt. Col. Harry Dooley, president of the Gray Line association, Chicago, who recently returned from three years duty in the army in Europe and who, with his association, was host at a luncheon given for conference members.

Speaking at the luncheon, Francisco J. Hernandez, chief of the travel division, Pan American Union, Washington, D. C., described the network of highways south of the border, which are greatly increasing, as the "arteries of democracy." He believes that transportation and travel break down barriers and he stressed the importance of promoting travel between North and South America.

"Trade follows travel," stated Dolan, who described a picture of health and recreation thru travel for the war free peoples of the earth. He advocated the formation of a North American travel institute to coördinate all travel services of the growing travel industry. This institute would hold travel expositions, sponsor or oppose legislation pertaining to travel, and would carry on travel research and surveys, according to Dolan. He emphasized that every one connected with travel service should assist in launching an extensive campaign of courtesy, friendliness, and hospitality.

"What's going to happen when the post-war boom days are over and when rooms are empty?" was a question answered by Garth Cate of New York, who stated that "every time a man cranks up his car or buys a transportation ticket he starts a wave of purchases and puts industry in motion." Mr. and Mrs. Everyday Citizen are going to have to take the place of Uncle Sam as the No. 1 spender in the post-war period, he said.

Valerie Kuhn, manager of the Redwood Empire association, San Francisco, Cal., and Mrs. Laura Waters, head of the Waters Travel agency, Washington, D. C., were the only women on the long list of program speakers, many of whom spoke in favor of a motion, which was passed, to consider the amalgamation of the North American Travel conference with the National Association of Travel Officials, which met at the Hotel Sherman last week.

A resolution was passed recommending to the inter-American economic and social council an early study of means to eliminate barriers to the movement of travelers thruout the countries of the western hemisphere, reducing to a minimum, or suppressing if possible, passport and visa requirements, fees, and other formalities."

Officers reëlected were: chairman, Mr. Dolan; vice chairmen, W. Bruce Macnamee, National Federation of American Shipping, Washington, D. C., Lt. Col. Dooley, and Mr. Hernandez, and secretary, Miss Jewel Burton, secretary of the Gray Line, Chicago. The executive committee, consisting of 19 members from Canada, United States, Mexico, Cuba, and Puerto Rico, also was reëlected.

Wild Boars Now Hunted Without Aid of Dogs

ROBBINSVILLE, N. C. [Special]—Wild Russian boars in the mountain recesses of western North Carolina have so increased in numbers in the last few years of war time restrictions that it is now possible to hunt them without the aid of dog packs. Heretofore dogs have been necessary to drive the boars from thickets into shooting range.

The Alcoa Steamship company, general agent for the war shipping administration, has announced that the S. S. George Washington will begin operating a temporary fortnightly round trip service to Bermuda next Friday.

Other Friday sailings are scheduled for Dec. 7, Dec. 21, Jan. 4, and Jan. 18. The ship will leave New York at 11 a. m. and will arrive at St. George's, Bermuda, on Sunday at 8 a. m. It will leave Bermuda on the northbound voyage the following Sunday at 3 p. m. and arrive in New York Tuesday morning, 11 days after its departure from New York. This allows for a seven day stopover in Bermuda.

The George Washington will lack many comforts and conveniences and is being used as a stop-gap measure until ships can be assigned to this trade regularly. American passengers making round trips are not required to have passports, but must carry proof of United States citizenship.

Chicago Hotel Men Operating Spa in Mexico

TUCSON, Ariz. [Special]—Heading this season's list of expanded winter resort facilities in this area is the Playa de Cortes, at nearby Guaymas in Mexico, recently acquired from the Southern Pacific of Mexico by an American corporation formed by Chicago hotel men.

Operators of Chicago's Hotel Sherman, the Ambassadors, the Pump room, and College inn, Frank Bering and Ernest Byfield have organized Mexico Hotels, Ltd., which will operate the Playa de Cortes. They project one of the most ambitious resort operations in the west.

Guaymas, on the Gulf of Baja California, a day's run south of Tucson, boasts a unique combination of desert hinterland and salt water recreational facilities. The new operators of the Playa are acquiring 11 new Higgins boats from New Orleans for use in the famous Guaymas fishing grounds where lurk marlin, sail fish, giant bass, tuna, totuava, and other deep sea game fish.

In consultation with Norman bel Geddes they have designed a fabulous bar-cafe with windows opening onto the swimming pool on one side and on the other looking across Guaymas bay famed for its Neapolitan style sunsets.

The Playa's cuisine will feature Mexican dinners in which whole animals will be barbecued in full view of the guests. Both indoor and outdoor restaurants will be available. On a recent visit to Tucson, Mr. Byfield said, "We plan to make the Playa the most charming, exciting, and talked about resort in the Americas."

Accommodations for 90 guests will be available.

Wool is a warm gesture

IN THE RIGHT PLACE

Especially when the temperature takes a drop to the inevitable 10 below. In fact, you'll be wise and glad to get your hands into the warmest thing there is—a pair of Carson's finger-fueling wool gloves or mittens—some hand-knit, some that aren't but look it, and one that's mated with a cap and spiked with nailheads. All so gay and colorful, the only problem is to choose.

1. Wool broadcloth, black, red, green, yellow, shocking and brown. 2.25
2. 70% wool, 30% angora, red, black, white, yellow. 2.00
3. Long worsted wool gloves, white, lime, black, shocking. 2.25
4. Black, brown, green, red, pink, light blue. Mitts, 7.50. Beanie, 2.50
5. "Poodle Mitts," hand-knit, black, white, red, green, blue, lime, yellow. 4.00
